TRAFFIC DEATH TOTAL HITS 442, MAY BE WORST RECORD TO DATE

Safety Council Renews Warning to Drivers—Estimate of 32 Persons Injured for Each Fatality.

CHICAGO, Dec. 24 (AP)—Traffic accidents had taken 442 lives as the long Christmas holiday passed the midway point today. Twenty-nine persons had died in fires and 66 in miscellaneous accidents, bringing the death total to 537 so far during the four-day holiday.

The National Safety Council estimated that for each person killed outright or dying soon after a traffic accident, 32 are injured.

The Safety Council reported that unless drivers used greater caution during the remainder of the period from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Tuesday, the Council forecast of a record 660 killed on the highways will be exceeded.

Appeal Renewed.

Council President Ned H. Darborn renewed his appeal for motoring Americans to drive as in a national emergency. He warned: "Look out for the other driver. Don't trust him."

Last year's three-day Christmas weekend holds the present traffic death record at 609. The over-all accident total was 782 then, which was 23 less than the record holiday total set during a four-day Independence day period in 1955. The Christmas record death total is 789 for 1951's four-day Christmas period.

A mixture of snow, fog, freezing drizzle and rain made driving conditions hazardous on Saturday and Sunday over much of the eastern portion of the country. Safety experts cited the poor weather and motorists who drank before driving as important factors in the growing accident list.

Lull Until Tomorrow.

A comparative lull in the slaughter on the highways was predicted by safety officials until tomorrow—Christmas afternoon — when many travelers were expected to end their holidays visits and take to the roads, increasing the traffic crush.

Surveys of non-holiday weekends show smaller fatality tolls than for holiday periods when operating conditions were similar. The Associated Press recorded 500 traffic deaths from 6 p.m. Friday Dec. 14 to midnight Tuesday, Dec. 18—The four-day weekend preceding this Christmas period.

Missouri listed 11 highway deaths this holiday weekend, four from fires and one from a miscellaneous cause. In Illinois there were 33 traffic fatalities, one in a fire and one from a miscellaneous cause.

California led the nation in highway deaths, listing 47 Texas had 30, Michigan 21, Ohio 19 and New York 18.

In Canada 25 were killed in traffic accidents, six in fires and two from miscellaneous causes, a total of 33.

Any New Missouri Traffic Deaths to Set New Record.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 24 (AP)—Every Missouri traffic death in the closing days of the year will set a new record.

The old record of 1071 in 1941 was surpassed last week as 11 fatalities boosted this year's total to 1082. The highway patrol warned today that some of the most hazardous driving days of the year are still to come during the holiday season.

Last year at this time in December the total was 1040 but a tragic holiday toll lifted the yearend total to 1071.

In the pre-Christmas week last year 38 persons were killed in a series of multiple death crashes.

HOLIDAY TRAVEL, SHOPPING FALL OFF ON LAST DAY

Large Stores Closing at 4:30—Trains, Planes, and Busses Leave With Empty Seats.

The rush of last-minute shoppers and travelers heading home for the holidays slackened today as St. Louisans prepared to celebrate Christmas tomorrow.

Most department stores will close at 4:30 p.m. today, giving sales persons time to make their own preparations for Christmas.

Large crowds thronged Union Station, Lambert-St. Louis Field and bus terminals over the weekend and last night but trains, planes and busses were leaving here today with empty seats.

Christmas Forecast.

Assistant Meteorologist Arthur A. Rausch predicted a partly cloudy Christmas day with a low of 25 degrees and a high in the 40s.

Police traffic details will be strengthened tonight and tomorrow night to discourage speeders and cut down holiday accidents. St. Louis police will double the normal number of officers assigned to radar patrols and motorcycles.

A total of 50 auxiliary police will assist the St. Louis county police from 3 p.m. today until 11 p.m. tomorrow and all 58 men assigned to Troop C headquarters of the Missouri Highway Patrol will be on duty during the holiday hours.

In East St. Louis, extra crews will be assigned to traffic duty tonight and auxiliary police will work with each 58-man watch maintained by the Illinois State Police of French Village.

Church Observances.

Midnight masses will be celebrated in most Catholic churches in the St. Louis area tonight and the usual Sunday schedule of masses will be in effect tomorrow. Christmas eve and Christmas day services will be held in Protestant churches here.

Archbishop Joseph E. Ritter will be celebrant at a solemn high midnight mass at St. Louis Cathedral, Lindell boulevard and Newstead avenue. Christmas carols will be sung for half an hour before mass by the parish choirs.

Christ Church Cathedral, Thirteenth and Locust streets, will have an organ recital at 4:15 p.m. today, candlelight service at 5:15 p.m. and holy communion at 11 p.m. Tomorrow the church will have services at 8 a.m. and 11 a.m.

POLICE TO LIGHTEN BLIND GIRL'S DAY WITH PRESENTS

MILWAUKEE, Dec. 24 (AP)—A trip in a police car to the Seventh precinct station was the happy Christmas journey planned for 15-year-old Marilyn Unruh today.

The girl, who has been blind since birth, did not know it but she was 'adopted' this holiday season by the officers of the precinct.

Under a Christmas tree in the station, the officers placed gifts the girl had wanted for several years a—Braille wristwatch, a three-speed phonograph, records, a briefcase for her schoolbooks, a pair of slippers and a pair of warm, innerlined mittens.

It started a couple of weeks ago when patrolman Ben Wacker helped her across the street and asked her whether she had placed her order with Santa Claus.

"She just looked sad and said, yes, she had, but she didn't think it would do much good because it was the same order she'd given other years," said Wacker.

"I went back and told the boys at the station and they were 100 per cent behind me in wanting to give her a nice Christmas."

A telephone call to her mother, Mrs. Lloyd Unruh, gave Wacker the list of her Christmas wishes.

BARUCH TO BUY ISLANDS TO KEEP BILLBOARDS AWAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 24 (AP)—Financier Bernard Baruch is going to "buy" two little islands in the lower bay to help Parks Commissioner Robert Moses keep the billboards away.

The islands, Swinburne with two and a half acres and Hoffman with 11½, are being disposed of by the Federal Government, which once used them for quarantine stations. More recently Hofman was used for a maritime service training school.

Under the Surplus Property Act, such property can be sold to states or municipalities for half its assessed value. The Government has determined that the islands are worth $20,000.

Moses became convinced that unless the city took over the islands, they would be bought by persons seeking a place to put huge billboards, so Baruch put up $10,000, a sum apparently not available from any city funds. Moses is planning to turn the 14 acres into about 250 acres of public park by filling in between them.

GOOD YARN FOR FIANCE—GIFT SOCK HELD BY POLICE

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 24 (UP)—Colleen Kennedy was knitting frantically today to finish some Christmas work undone by a thief.

Are You a Game Cook? If So Try 'Christmas Pye' Recipe of 1747

BALTIMORE, Dec. 24 (AP)—Are you housewives lamenting the time you'll be slaving over a hot stove preparing the Christmas dinner?

Why not try a "Christmas pye," from the cookbook, "The Art of Cookery Made Plain and Easy?"

Here's the way the recipe goes:

"First make a good standing crust, let the wall and bottom be very thick, bone a turkey, a goose, a fowl, a partridge, and a pigeon, season them all very well . . .

"Open the fowls all down the back, and bone them; first the pigeon, then the partridge, cover them; then the fowl, then the goose, and then the turkey, which must be large; season them all well first, and lay them in the crust, so it will look only like a whole turkey.

"Then have a hare ready cased, and wiped with a clean cloth. Cut it to pieces, that is jointed; season it, and lay it as close as you can on one side; on the other side woodcock, more game, and what sort of wild fowl you can get.

"Season them well and lay them close; put at least four pounds of butter into the pye, then lay on your lid . . . It must have a very hot oven, and will take at least four hours.

"This pye will take a bushel of flour."

It's from the first edition of the cookbook, printed in 1747. Walters Art Gallery here has a copy.

Feel better now, girls?

EGYPT STILL DELAYS SALVAGE WORK ON SUEZ

New Hitch Develops on Use of British, French Despite Port Said Pull-Out.

PORT SAID, Egypt, Dec. 24 (AP)—The question of using British and French salvage crews in clearing the Suez canal delayed work on the blocked waterway again today. A United Nations salvage fleet, including British and French ships, was ready to go to work but Egypt still had not given the go-ahead.

It was thought salvage operations could be started south of Port Said as soon as British and French troops completed their withdrawal from Egypt. The last of the soldiers left Saturday.

Some British and French salvage ships remained behind as part of the U.N. salvage fleet, with their crews wearing civilian clothes and the blue-and-white U.N. flag flying in place of their national pennants at the insistence of Egypt.

The fleet has not moved from Port Said harbor. An Egyptian Suez Canal Authority official told reporters a hitch remains on the use of British-French salvage crews. He said the U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold is expected to go to Cairo to talk over the use of the British and French vessels.

'Critical' Situation.

United States Lt. Gen. Raymond A. Wheeler, in charge of the U.N. clearance operation, said the situation regarding the use of the ships was "in a very critical state at the moment."

Wheeler said he hoped to move some salvage equipment into the canal today, but that he still had not received permission from Egyptian authorities.

Before the British - French forces left, they announced Egypt had agreed to the use of the salvage crews as "U.N. volunteers."

"It's a high policy decision not ours to make," Tewfik El Dib, staff director of the Canal Authority, told newspaper men yesterday.

Dib said Hammarskjold was planning to go to Cairo soon to discuss the question with President Nasser.

In United Nations, N.Y., a spokesman for the Secretary General said Hammarskjold has no plans now to go to the Middle East.

Jack Connors, a technical aid to Hammarskjold in the canal clearing operation, said a survey of canal obstructions would be completed in a week. He said there are about 50 obstructions in the 103-mile waterway.

Two salvage vessels from Aden are at the southern end of the canal ready to work there. One is a Danish ship and the other a Dutch tug.

Big Celebration.

The end of the seven-week British-French occupation brought a big celebration in Port Said. Barbed-wire barricades were ripped out and flags the British and French had left behind were hauled down. Thousands paraded in the streets shouting above the pealing of bells.

Excited Egyptians toppled a statue of Ferdinand de Lesseps into Port Said harbor. He is the Frenchman who directed construction of the Suez canal.

The Egyptians tried twice to dynamite the statue they regard as a symbol of foreign influence. They made only dents in the statue, but the crowd finally managed to knock the figure from its base.

The Egyptian army re-entered Port Said. A brigade group moved through the city with artillery and 50 tanks after

CHOU WILL VISIT RUSSIA, POLAND TO SIZE UP NEW 'NATIONALISM'

Red China's Premier May Go to Other Satellite Countries, Too—He Is Said to Favor More Freedom.

LONDON, Dec. 24 (AP) — Warsaw radio announced today that Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-lai will visit Poland in mid-January. Earlier, the Soviet Government had announced Chou is interrupting his South Asian tour to visit Moscow.

Western diplomats in the Soviet capital had speculated the Chinese leader and the Russian chiefs would discuss the Kremlin's current troubles with its satellites.

There have been indications that the Red Chinese regime favors giving the satellites more freedom from Moscow. Apparently Chou wants to form a first-hand opinion in talks with Poland's new "nationalist" Communist government, which already has won considerable independence from the Kremlin.

Observers in London considered it likely that Chou would also visit other east European Communist countries in what may be a review of Communist China's place in the Communist world. Whether he would go to revolt-torn Hungary was another question.

The brief Moscow and Warsaw announcements were almost identical, saying Chou's visit was to further strengthen the "friendship and fraternal cooperation" between their governments.

(In a news conference in Karachi, Chou side-stepped a question as to whether his forthcoming visit to Moscow had any direct connection with Southeast Asian views of Soviet intervention in Hungary, the United Press said. He said the question was "a very complicated one."

(He deliberated a moment and then said, "I have not talked to all Asian leaders on this question. Those I have talked to held different opinions."

(He refused to enlarge on this but he said "I found that most Asian leaders admitted the fact that the Western countries carried on subversive action in Hungary with the purpose of overthrowing the Socialist (Communist) government."

(A Moscow dispatch hinted that Chou might be going to the Kremlin as part of a complicated international "conversation" involving Indian Prime Minister Nehru, President Eisenhower and Soviet Communist party boss Nikita Khrushchev.

(Diplomatic sources in Moscow said Nehru was acting as the go-between in efforts to smooth Chinese-American relations and that Chou probably would report to Khrushchev on the Nehru-Eisenhower talks after talking with Nehru again. He saw Nehru before the Indian visited Washington.)

Chou presumably will go to the Soviet bloc about Jan. 7 and remain until Jan. 18. Now winding up his stay in Pakistan, he goes next to Nepal and then on Dec. 30 to see Prime Minister Nehru. His arrival in Afghanistan, previously scheduled for Jan. 7, has been postponed to Jan. 19.

NIXON SAYS COMMUNISM SUFFERED MORTAL BLOW IN HUNGARIAN UPRISING

Pope Declares Defensive War Against Reds Is Morally Right

Urges in Christmas Message That U.N. Be Empowered to Prevent Aggression and Police Threatened Nations.

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 24 (AP) — Pope Pius XII proclaimed the morality of defensive war and called on the world yesterday to give the United Nations "the right and power" to prevent aggression.

In some of the strongest words of his 18-year reign, the head of the Roman Catholic Church condemned Communism in his annual Christmas message for trying "to impose on all peoples, in one way or another, a special and intolerable way of life."

The message was carried by radio around the world.

The Pope made it clear that, in the eyes of the church, the freedom fighters of Hungary had the moral right to resist Russian force with force.

"It is clear," he declared, "that in the present circumstances there can be verified in a nation the situation wherein, every effort to avoid war being expanded in vain, war—for effective self defense and with the hope of a favorable outcome against unjust attack—could not be considered unlawful."

Against Communism, he said, "only the unanimous and courageous behavior of all who love the truth and the good can preserve peace, and will preserve it." As usual, he did not call Communism by name but he left no doubt of his target.

The 80-year-old Pope said nations — such as Hungary — which refuse to admit United Nations observers should be refused membership in the United Nations.

The world organization, he continued, should have "the right and power of forestalling all military intervention of one state in another. . . . And also the right and power of assuming by means of sufficient police force, the safeguarding of order in the state which is threatened. . . .

"Only in the ambit of an institution like the United Nations can promises of nations to reduce armament, especially to abandon production and use of certain arms, be mutually exchanged under the strict obligation of international law."

CHRISTMAS TO BE FAMILY HOLIDAY FOR EISENHOWERS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24 (UP) — President and Mrs. Eisenhower will spend a quiet Christmas Eve at the White House tonight and save most of their holiday celebration until their grandchildren arrive tomorrow afternoon.

The President spent two and one half hours in his office this morning, but had no official callers.

Mr. and Mrs. Eisenhower and her mother, Mrs. John S. Doud, will spend a quiet evening at home tonight. There will be no guests, but that the three may open a few gifts.

Tomorrow afternoon, the Eisenhower's son and daughter-in-law, Maj. and Mrs. John Eisenhower, and their four children will join them to open presents around the Christmas tree at the White House. The grandchildren — 8-year-old Dwight David, Barbara Anne, 7; Susan Elaine, 4, and Mary Jean, 1,—will have two Christmases. The first will be at their Ft. Belvoir (Va.) home on Christmas morning and the second with their grandparents.

The three older children have been practicing Christmas carols to sing tomorrow afternoon. The Eisenhowers will have a traditional Christmas feast of turkey and all the trimmings tomorrow evening.

DILEMMA FOR U.N.: TURKEYS WON'T GOBBLE VITAMINS

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch. Copyright 1956.

JERUSALEM, Dec. 24.—How to fatten two skinny turkeys is a problem that has been occupying a United Nations mission in the disputed Gaza strip for several days.

The ten-member group, core of the Egypt-Israel Mixed Armistice Commission, was overrun in the initial stages of the Israel attack on Egypt. Since then it has held its quarters with almost nothing else to do. It is headed by Col. Robert Bayard of Plymouth, Mich.

The turkeys were procured locally but needed some attention to fit them for the Christmas table. Feed was available but the turkeys didn't appear hungry. Vitamin tablets were the first experiment but the turkeys objected violently to efforts to make them swallow these pills.

Since then, members of the group have taken turns walking the birds in the garden of the U.N. billet on the theory this might give them an appetite. At last report this wasn't working too well either.

Public Kissing Barred.

BLAIR INVITES H. SAM PRIEST TO HEAD POLICE

St. Louis Board Presidency Offered to Former Holder of Post—Answer Not Given.

H. Sam Priest has been offered the presidency of the St. Louis Police Board by Gov.-elect James T. Blair Jr., the Post-Dispatch learned today.

Priest, who served as president of the board for two years and three months under the first administration of Gov. Phil M. Donnelly, would not comment on the report he had been invited to take the post when Blair takes office next month.

It was understood, however, that Priest had not as yet advised Blair whether he would accept the police board presidency. The post is now held by I. A. Long, president of the Southwest Bank.

Priest is a vice president of the Gaylord Container Corp., in charge of the minerals division. He is 50 years old and lives at 5122 Westminster place.

When he was police board president, Priest was largely responsible for most of the modernization of the police department. His work was praised by Gerald B. Norris, then head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation office here. He also was commended by the American Bar Association and the local bar association.

The police department building at Twelfth street and Clark avenue was remodeled extensively under the Priest board to allow for maximum efficiency. The training school program for young policemen was enlarged and FBI training methods were adopted.

Priest's board firmly resisted pressure for the removal of Capt. Joseph Wren, now dead, as head of the gambling squad. Wren was unapproachable by gambling interests.

A steadfast Democrat, Priest often has been urged by party leaders, because of his widespread popularity, to be a candidate for governor, but he has refused. He was elected circuit clerk of St. Louis in 1934 and was re-elected for successive terms until he resigned in 1945.

His father, the late George T. Priest, was a member of the police board during the administration of Gov. Guy B. Park. His grandfather was the late United States District Judge Henry Samuel Priest.

RETURNS TO U.S. FROM AUSTRIA TO REPORT ON REFUGEE STUDY

Plans to Make Recommendations to Eisenhower on How to Help Find Homes for Hungarians.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24 (AP)—Vice President Nixon said today "international Communism has suffered a mortal blow from which it cannot recover" as a result of the sacrifices of the Hungarian people.

Nixon made this comment at the airport here on returning from a first-hand study of the Hungarian refugee problem in Austria.

Nixon said he will make "specific recommendations" to President Eisenhower within the next week on "ways and means we can do our full share" in finding new homes for the 175,000 Hungarians who have fled Hungary rather than continue to live under Communist rule.

(The United Press said that Nixon will report on the plight of the Hungarian refugees in a special Christmas day program.

(His address will be carried by TV and radio networks of NBC, CBS and ABC, plus the Mutual radio network.

(The Vice President will appear on a program set for 5 p.m. St. Louis time.)

To round out his study, Nixon may visit the refugee center at Camp Kilmer, N.J., which is handling many of the Hungarians coming to the United States. Aids said he is considering a trip to Kilmer but has made no definite decision on when to inspect the facilities there.

Problem Only to Russia.

"I am convinced, as I return from a first-hand study of the situation," he said, "that the courageous people who fought for freedom in Hungary should be considered a problem only to the Soviet Union.

"As a result of their sacrifice, international Communism has suffered a mortal blow from which it cannot recover. It has been exposed as a gigantic failure."

Nixon said "the whole world knows" now that Communism can "maintain its hold on the people it controls only by force. And history tells a regime based on force alone can be temporarily successful as it is in Hungary today, but in the long run it is doomed to fail."

Nixon, who seemed fresh despite his six-day trip, declined to say whether he will recommend to Mr. Eisenhower that the United States open its borders to more than the 21,500 Hungarians it has already agreed to admit.

"Our efforts up to this time have been commendable," Nixon said at the airport, "but it is an opportunity and a challenge for us to join with other free nations to complete this task of seeing that the refugees find new homes during this period when they are unable to return to their own land."

Sees President Wednesday.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty announced that Nixon will report to Mr. Eisenhower Wednesday. The Vice President will be accompanied then by two other government officials who went to Austria with him—Deputy Attorney General William P. Rogers and John Hollister, director of the International Co-operation Administration.

Hagerty said Rogers will report to the President on any changes which may be required in the immigration law, while Hollister will discuss the aid aspects of the refugee relief program.

Nixon's report, Hagerty said, will cover the over-all picture.

Some 200 persons, including Mrs. Nixon and Austrian Ambassador Karl Gruber, greeted the Vice President as his big Air Force Constellation landed.

Nixon in talking with the Austrian Ambassador agreed to meet with him about the refugee situation at Nixon's home later this morning.

In this talk, held in the Nixon living room, the Vice President told the Ambassador that Austria, as host to thousands fleeing Red rule, "needs help."

"Austria certainly is carrying by far the greatest burden in this problem," Nixon said. He added that he would make specific recommendations to President Eisenhower for help to Austria.

Leaving Nixon's home, Gruber told reporters: "From what the Vice President told me, I have received great encouragement."

Nixon's plane came from Iceland where he stopped off for six hours en route home to talk with leaders of the Iceland Government and meet with some of

NEHRU IN LONDON FOR TALKS WITH EDEN, URGES NEW PEACE EFFORTS

Middle East Troubles Expected to Be Dominant Subject of Their Discussion — Menon to Participate.

LONDON, Dec. 24 (AP)—India's Prime Minister Nehru arrived today for talks with Prime Minister Eden.

Nehru came to Britain after private conversations with President Eisenhower in Washington and Gettysburg and Canadian Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent in Ottawa. He flew here in the President's private plane.

At the airport, Nehru called for renewed efforts in this Christmas season to bring peace to the world.

"I would think there are indications and helpful signs for us in spite of all the difficulties we have had to face," he said.

V. K. Krishna Menon, India's diplomatic troubleshooter, also flew in from New York where he had been attending the United Nations General Assembly session. He was expected to join in the talks with British leaders.

The Middle East troubles were expected to be the dominant subject of the Eden-Nehru talks. Observers here also thought the talks might deal with ways of smoothing over the strains in the British commonwealth over the British-French invasion of Egypt.

Nehru reaffirmed his ties with the commonwealth while in Canada.

Content With Results.

The Indian leader appeared content that his eight-day mission to the United States and Canada had been a success. It was clear that his main objective had been to broaden official understanding and public acceptance of his way of thinking.

Nehru will spend Christmas in London with his sister, Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, India's high commissioner to Britain.

On his way home he plans to see West German Chancellor Adenauer briefly. He is due in New Delhi Dec. 30 to receive another call from Chinese Communist Premier Chou En-lai. Chou visited Nehru just before the Prime Minister's departure for the United States, causing speculation that Nehru was acting as a go-between to smooth over the long-smoldering disputes between the two countries.

In a departure statement at Ottawa, Nehru said he found "a large measure of agreement" in his talks with Canada's prime minister and Foreign Minister Lester B. Pearson.

Near in Many Matters.

"Our feelings of co-operation and understanding have grown," he said. "It is a pleasure to find how near we are to each other in many matters, and even where we differ in our views, it does not affect our commonwealth understanding."

He did not explain what differences there might be.

His daughter, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, said the main objective of her father's journey had been "to get to know the President and various other people and he did accomplish that."

In one of his last appearances of his schedule in Canada, Nehru said in a television interview with Edgar McGinnis, president of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs:

"I have long waited for a gesture from France in Algeria, where matters are worse than they are in Hungary."

Hungarian Solution.

In Hungary, Nehru said, the passive resistance used by the people will help solve the problem.

"I have no doubt," he continued, "that the Hungarian episode has shown the way to greater national freedom of many countries."

The Hungarian revolt demonstrated, Nehru said, that a great country, even with the strength of the Soviet Union, no longer can impose its will even on a relatively weak country.

Asked whether he had found any common ground between President Eisenhower and the Red Chinese government, Nehru said:

"It seems inevitable that two great countries like the United States and China should have an understanding, whether they agree or not. I hope the understanding will grow."

He agreed that detention by the Peiping government of 10 Americans was a needless irritation on the part of the Chinese Communist regime.

REPATRIATION SHIP LEAVES RUSSIA WITH 1025 JAPANESE

TOKYO, Dec. 24 (AP)—The repatriation ship Koan Maru left Nakhodka, Siberia, today with 1025 Japanese detained by Russia since the end of World War II.

The Japanese, from the Kwantung imperial army and the Japanese firms which once ruled Manchuria, were returned as part of the Soviet-Japan agreement reopening diplomatic relations. Japan claims more than 10,000 other nationals are unaccounted for in territory occupied by Russia the last week of the war.

Soviet officials reported eight Japanese decided to stay behind with Russian wives or for other reasons. Twenty-two former generals were among those who boarded the ship.

MOROCCO WANTS SAY ON AMERICAN BASES

Denies U.S. Accord With France Is Valid—Urges Bilateral Talks.

© New York Times News Service

RABAT, Dec. 24—The Moroccan Foreign Minister said yesterday that the time was ripe for the United States to negotiate a military base agreement with Morocco.

Sultan Mohammed V is sympathetic now toward the presence of United States forces here and the government is favorable toward negotiations, Foreign Minister Ahmed Balafrej indicated.

He added in an interview that United States bases constitute a guarantee of Moroccan liberty and security as long as there is no American interference in Moroccan affairs, he continued.

Balafrej said he had made Morocco's view clear to the United States that the French-United States accord, under which United States strategic air bases costing more than $400,000,000 were established here under the French protectorate, has no validity because the Moroccan sovereign was kept in ignorance of the agreement.

The Foreign Minister said he also had made it clear that Morocco was prepared to begin bilateral negotiations with United States to "regularize" the status of the bases.

The French government's attitude is that the status of United States bases and of the French army in Morocco should be worked out in tripartite talks because under the French-United States accord the bases are French and the United States is simply a tenant.

NO PLACE FOR PROMOTERS, SALESMEN IN INAUGURATION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24 (AP)—The committee in charge of arrangements for President Eisenhower's Jan. 21 inauguration said yesterday it is determined to keep "the fast-talkers, promoters and unscrupulous advertising salesmen" out of the picture.

The committee said it sponsors no programs or other publications which carry advertising, and added: "Persons or organizations soliciting funds or selling advertising for publications ostensibly sanctioned by the committee should be reported immediately."

Inaugural costs, the committee said, are being met as in the past by the sale of tickets for the parade, the inaugural balls and other events and by the sale of the official program which carries no paid advertising.

AUTO UPSETS, OWNER DIGS OUT WITH SCREW DRIVER

SANDWICH, Mass., Dec. 24 (UP) — A young man tunneled to safety with a screw driver yesterday after his sports car overturned, trapping him against the rain-softened earth.

Donald D. Crocker, 20 years old, said he was unable to attract passing motorists by flicking his lights on and off. So he set to work with the screw driver, carefully piling earth into corners of his wrecked car until he had dug a passage to freedom. He said it took him three hours.

Then he flagged a car which took him to a hospital.

AWARD TO JOHN HAY WHITNEY

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24—John Hay Whitney, financier and philanthropist and reported to be President Eisenhower's choice to be the new American ambassador to Britain, has been named recipient of the 1957 Albert Einstein commemorative awards for outstanding achievement in the field of citizenship, it was announced yesterday.

The award was established early this year by the Albert Einstein College of Medicine of Yeshiva University. The award, a medallion bearing a bas relief of Dr. Einstein, will be presented to Whitney next spring.

Sailors Give Refugees $7500.

ROME, Dec. 24 (AP)—Crew members of the United States aircraft carrier Coral Sea today handed United States Ambassador Clare Boothe Luce $7500. The money which they originally intended to spend for Christmas will be used instead for Hungarian refugee relief.

Children Carried Out.

In his study of the refugee picture in Austria, Nixon said he was "most impressed" by the number of very small children whom parents have carried with them in their difficult flight into Austria.

Some parents, carrying these youngsters, walked 10 miles over snow-covered fields, sometimes feeding their children sleeping pills so they would not cry out in the night and arouse Communist border guards.

The Vice President in denouncing Hungarian Communism noted that the regime for 10 years had "complete control" of the nation, concentrating its efforts on the intellectuals, students and workers.

"However, it was these three groups who led the revolt against them," Nixon said.

Agriculture Secretary Benson shook Nixon's hand vigorously when he walked down the airport ramp.

"Congratulations, a job well done," Benson told Nixon.

Tracy Voorhees, President Eisenhower's newly appointed special refugee co-ordinator, also was on hand and promptly arranged a meeting with Nixon.

Nixon, in his stopover at Reykjavik, broadcast greetings and best wishes from the American people to Iceland.

In Munich, Germany, Saturday, Nixon said "a lot has been done" for the refugees, "but a lot more remains to be done."

U.S. EXPECTS RISE IN OIL DELIVERIES TO WEST EUROPE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24 (AP)—Secretary of the Interior Seaton yesterday reported an improved outlook for petroleum deliveries next month to countries of western Europe and the Mediterranean.

Seaton based his statement on estimates of the Middle East Emergency Committee, composed of representatives of 15 United States firms engaged in foreign trade.

The committee estimates that western European and Mediterranean countries will receive an average of 2,267,000 barrels of oil daily during January. The December daily average was 1,908,000 barrels.

No breakdown was given as to the source of the oil, but it will come from the Middle East, United States Gulf Coast and South America. Not included in the estimate is 220,000 barrels daily expected to be produced by European oil fields.

H. A. Stewart, director of the Interior Department's oil and gas office, said the 2,267,000-barrel estimate would leave Europe approximately 20 per cent short of its pre-Suez supply.

TOLL ROAD MOTORISTS GET WARNING AGAINST SPEED

VALLEY STREAM, L.I., Dec. 24.—Every motorist paying his 10-cent toll on the southern state parkway receives a reprint of an editorial entitled, 'Anyway, you'll die in comfort," from The Suffolk County News.

The reprint, distributed at the direction of Robert Moses, chairman of the Long Island State Park Commission, attacks the new automobiles on the ground that they accentuate speed and power at the expense of safety. At the bottom of the reprint is the commission's slogan, 'Slow down and live."

NEW JAPANESE PREMIER DENIES HE IS ANTI-U.S.

Ishibashi Asserts He Will Not Be 'Yes Man' to Anyone — Names Cabinet.

TOKYO, Dec. 24 (AP)—Prime Minister Tanzan Ishibashi told his first news conference today, "I will not be a 'yes man' to anyone, including the United States."

"I have been wrongly accused of being anti-American and standing for anti-Americanism," said the new Prime Minister, who formed his conservative cabinet yesterday.

"Circumstances in the future may force me to argue against the United States on differences of opinions, but it will be in the interests of both nations."

The 72-year-old economist, often critical of the United States in the past, said Japan "will not veer from the line of the free nations of the world."

"Japan cannot and will not try to open diplomatic relations with Red China because Red China has been branded an aggressor nation," he said. "However, we will work toward getting the United Nations to relax the brand."

Ishibashi said Japan will "further economic ties with China as much as possible," and that Japan hopes to strengthen economic relations with countries of Asia and Africa.

"We must not overdo it and create the misunderstanding that Japan is undertaking new economic aggression," he added.

Installed yesterday, Ishibashi managed to form a new cabinet despite factional sttrife. He had to take over the ministries of defense, postal service and Hokkaido development himself because of inability to get party leaders to agree.

Of the men named to run the country, Ishibashi is the only holdover from the cabinet of Ichiro Hatoyama, who resigned last week because of ill health.

The new foreign minister is Nabusuke Kishi, who was narrowly defeated by Ishibashi for the presidency of the Liberal-Democratic party and the prime ministry. He replaces Mamoru Shigemitsu.

The Socialists, a minority party but growing stronger, forecast a short life for Ishibashi's cabinet. They expressed belief it would not last beyond next April or May, when the 1957-58 budget is to be announced.

A call for dissolution of parliament and a national election was sounded by Japan's largest newspaper, the Asahi Shimbun of Tokyo.

"There is no way . . . to settle the present factional struggle inside the Liberal-Democratic party which, without doubt, is poisoning Japan's politics," the newspaper said editorially.

The new cabinet list includes:

International trade and industry—Mikio Mizuta, six-time member of the lower house.

Finance—Hayato Ikeda, former finance minister.

Agriculture and forestry—Ichitaro Ide, an expert on the subjects and six-time member of the lower house.

National public safety commission (police) — Tomejiro Okubo, a governor general of Formosa in the days of the Japanese empire.

Economic planning board—Koichi Uda, industrialist.

Education—Hirokichi Nadao, prewar deputy home minister.

Justice — Umekichi Nakamura, a prominent jurist.

Welfare — Hiroshi Kanda, business executive and four-time member of the lower house.

Local autonomy board—Isaji Tanaka, a prominent lawyer.

Construction—Taneo Nanjyo, business executive and lawyer.

Transportation—Taneo Miyazawa, once purged from politics by the allied occupation powers.

UNEMPLOYMENT THREAT HANGS OVER HUNGARY

Christmas Dimmed by Grim Forecast in Communist Party Newspaper.

BUDAPEST, Dec. 24 (AP)—The Hungarian people, trudging by hundreds of thousands through snow and slush to complete their Christmas shopping, got some more bad economic news today.

The official Communist party newspaper predicted there soon will be 200,000 unemployed because of the drastic coal shortage and other economic dislocations that followed the anti-Soviet revolt.

Under 11 years of Communist control, Hungary never has had a high standard of living, but has had no unemployment.

The country's biggest industrial center, the huge Csepel iron and steel works south of Budapest, shut down production yesterday for at least 10 days and sent 17,000 workers home on half pay. Lack of coal has forced similar layoffs in other big plants.

Half of the pre-revolt total of 90,000 Hungarian miners has disappeared. The prospect is that coal production in 1957 will total only 14,000,000 tons, instead of the planned 24,000,000.

Foreign Loans Needed.

Detailing the unemployment problem and the economic situation, the newspaper Nepszabadsag of Premier Janos Kadar's party said Hungary will imperatively need foreign loans, including help from "the capitalist countries" to rebuild its economy.

There was no indication from Western sources here that the Hungarians have yet initiated such requests.

Budapest and most of the country will have a white Christmas. Shoppers lined up in the battered capital for fish and other foodstuffs for their traditional Christmas eve dinner.

Those living on the Buda side of the Danube had a pleasant surprise when a Russian tank which guarded that end of the chain bridge disappeared in the night. However, there are still three tanks on the Pest end of this bridge, which is near the parliament building, seat of Kadar's government.

A lifting of the military curfew just for tonight permits Roman Catholics to hold their traditional midnight mass.

But the Government announcement yesterday came so late that many churches already had arranged to hold masses in late afternoon today so the participants could get home well before curfew. The new instructions were to hold midnight masses where public transport and other circumstances permitted. All churches, Catholic and Protestant, are sure to be crowded.

Christmas Official.

Celebration of Christmas this year is even indorsed by the government and party press. Nepszabadsag published a front page editorial about the "festival of peace." The government-controlled trade unions paper Nepkarat wrote about "peace for mankind" and even the paper Sport devoted its front page editorial to "thoughts about the festival of love."

The Indian ambassador to Moscow, K. P. S. Menon, arrived here by air this afternoon from the Soviet capital to stay at least a week. He is on his second personal inspection tour for Prime Minister Nehru.

Meanwhile an official of Veszprem Technical University in western Hungary said students who were arrested by the Russians and reported deported to the Soviet Union have returned to their homes.

HUNGARIAN SPIES ENTERING U.S., EX-AID OF NAGY SAYS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24 (AP)—Mrs. Anna Kethly, who was minister of state in the short-lived Hungarian government of Imre Nagy, says she thinks secret police are entering this country to spy on refugees.

Responding to a question on a radio-television interview yesterday, she said "Oh, yes, the spies, they will come out." Asked "How many spies . . . do you think are coming over here with the refugees?" she replied that "nobody knows" but said perhaps there are many of them.

Mrs. Kethly escaped from Hungary when Russian troops put down the revolts which led to establishment of the Nagy government.

Fall of Indonesian Cabinet Reported Near After Revolt

Sastroamidjojo Must Resign or Send Soldiers to Crush Sumatra Coup.

JAKARTA, Indonesia, Dec. 24 (AP) — Indonesian government circles indicated today that the end is near for the government of Premier Ali Sastroamidjojo as a result of the spreading army revolt on Sumatra.

Government sources said Sastroamidjojo has two alternatives—to resign or to send troops to quell the rebellion. But "the army will not fight against itself," political circles declared.

The leader of the bloodless army coup on the richest and second largest of the 3000 Indonesian islands, Col. Malaudin Simbolon, called for a reunion of President Sukarno and ex-Vice President Mohammed Hatta. The Sumatrans want to get back more of the revenue from the rubber, coal and oil their island produces and also want less control of their local affairs by the Javanese who dominate the national government.

Seeks Cabinet Crisis.

Sukarno met today with a non-party member of Parliament from Sumatra, Mohammed Jamin. Afterward Jamin told newspaper men it would be better to have a Cabinet crisis now so Sukarno and Hatta could take over the government.

Informed sources said there is good chance the revolt, in which an army junta already has seized control in north and central Sumatra, may engulf south Sumatra.

The Indonesian Foreign Ministry confirmed the cabinet would inform all foreign missions the government could not guarantee the safety of foreigners in the areas affected. There are 500 Americans and substantial American investments on Sumatra. But there has been no report of any fighting or resistance to the army rebels, or of any danger to foreigners.

Plane communications were resumed with central Sumatra today, but not with north Sumatra. In Jakarta, outgoing news cables were still being censored heavily.

Many political leaders feared Sukarno would seize on the present crisis to set up a dictatorship. Long the most popular man in the country, he urged just over a month ago that a constitution be drafted rejecting capitalism, a federal form of government and the "liberal democracy of the West."

Cause of Revolt.

The recent resignation of Hatta, a Sumatran, is supposed to have angered his fellow islanders and led to the revolt. The island produces half the country's wealth but its leaders think Java, which is smaller, gets most of the benefits.

Simbolon, who led the revolt from his post of commander of the first military district comprising north and central Sumatra, made it plain he struck the blow against the Premier rather than the president. He said, "President Sukarno and Ex-Vice President Hatta are the persons to be obeyed until the new cabinet is formed."

Rebuffing suggestions that it resign, the government has said only Parliament can kick it out. Parliament is in recess and will not reconvene until mid-January.

SEARCH DROPPED FOR TWO LOST IN AIR CRASH IN OCEAN

PALOS VERDES, Calif., Dec. 24 (AP)—The Coast Guard today called off its hunt for two men who disappeared after a private plane with three aboard plunged into the ocean a mile off shore.

Saved from the chill water was Jerry Buzzan, 39 years old, Lomita, Calif., who unstrapped his safety belt and kicked his way free as water poured into the cockpit of the sinking plane.

Presumed dead are the pilot and owner of the plane, Jerry Dowdy, 43, Torrance, Calif., and Michael Lee McCowan, 20, Lomita, a passenger.

McCowan and Buzzan were together in the rear cockpit of the converted World War II BT-13 trainer when the engine sputtered and quit an hour after they left nearby Torrance airport yesterday on a pleasure flight.

BULGANIN SAYS PRODUCTION IS UP 11 PER CENT

He Also Reports 9 Per Cent Rise in Soviet Consumer Goods Output in 1956.

LONDON, Dec. 24 (AP)—Premier Nikolai Bulganin, in a report to the Central Committee of the Soviet Communist party, has cited an increase in Soviet production, it was announced today by Moscow radio.

The broadcast said that Bulganin reported an 11 per cent increase in industrial production and a 9 per cent rise in consumer goods output in the past year.

"The U.S.S.R. has become even stronger," his progress report read. "Its economic and defense power has grown, and the material welfare of the people has improved.

"On the basis of the priority growth of heavy indsutry, other branches of the national economy are successfully developing."

But the Communist party report admitted what it acknowledged as "failures" during the year under the Soviet plan.

"The 1956 plans for the extraction of coal and the production of metal, cement and timber have not been fulfilled," the report said.

Bulganin's report was broadcast as Moscow Radio disclosed to the Russian people that the Central Committee had met during the last four days.

The meetings frequently give a clue to new trends in Soviet government policy.

Retirement of Soviet President Reported Being Planned.

© New York Times News Service

NEW YORK, Dec. 24—Marshal Kliment Y. Voroshilov may retire soon as nominal chief of state of the Soviet Union, according to reliable information reaching the United States from Moscow.

The reports suggested that the central committee of the Communist party, now in session in Moscow, might select a successor to the 75-year-old chairman of the presidium of the Supreme Soviet, a position that corresponds to that of titular president.

There was no information available on the possible successor to Voroshilov. In the past former Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov was considered a likely candidate, but only six weeks ago he was appointed minister of state control, the chief auditing and inspection officer of the Soviet Government.

SEVEN KILLED IN HOSPITAL FIRE CAUSED BY SHORT IN TREE LIGHT

Minneapolis Chief Says Possible Violations of Fire Door Rules May Have Contributed to Deaths.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Dec. 24 (AP)—A hospital fire sparked by a short-circuited Christmas tree light yesterday took the lives of seven persons and left six others in serious condition.

Six patients died in the fire and a seventh, 81-year-old Mary Stein, died today of the effects of smoke inhalation.

Fire Chief Reynold Malmquist said that "possible violations" of fire regulations may have contributed to the deaths in Doctors Hospital. Malmquist said he would inquire as to why fire doors in the 44-year-old 125-bed capacity hospital were not closed when the fire started.

"If those fire doors had not been open," Malmquist said, "the smoke and fire would have been confined to the lobby and would not have affected any of the patients."

Doors Propped Open.

A fire door leading to a wooden tower enclosing a fire escape on one side of the building was propped open, said Robert T. Palmer, Minneapolis fire prevention chief. Malmquist said fire doors on the third and fourth floors also were propped open permitting smoke to travel.

A. G. Stasel, director of the hospital, took issue with some of Malmquist's statements. Stasel said most of the fire doors were closed.

The fire roared up through a funnel-like stairway off the lobby of the hospital.

Other victims, all of whom suffocated, were:

Mrs. Ella M. Mullins, 82 years old; Miss Caroline Vale, 73; Mrs. Lydia Becken, 66; Mrs. Sara C. Stone, 59; Miss Mary S. Balliet, 47, and Clarence O. Green, 53, all of Minneapolis.

A baby boy in an incubator was rescued from the blaze only to die a few hours later from a congenital heart condition.

Talked Out of Jumping.

Firemen talked numerous patients out of leaping from windows in the five-story structure.

Some patients were guided down ladders, others — mainly the elderly and seriously ill—were swathed in bedsheets and carried to safety.

"Some of the patients were knotting bedsheets and dropping them out of windows," said Miss Aagot Ramberg, an X-ray technician who lived across the street.

Green, a major in the Salvation Army, one of those who suffocated in his bed, was held captive by traction splints fitted for his broken legs.

Fire department and hospital officials placed the damage at $100,000.

First Noticed Fire.

The fire broke out about 3 a.m. It was first noticed by Miss Frances Menefee, the night telephone switchboard operator. She said she heard "a sharp cracking sound like a light bulb popping"—then the flames burst out and the lights and switchboard went dead.

Miss Menefee summoned aid by using an outside phone in one wing of the hospital.

Nurses got most of the doors on the second floor closed, saving many patients. The deaths occurred on the third floor of the brick structure.

On the top floor a dramatic fight was waged by two nurses, Mrs. Cecilia Janick and Mrs. Barbara Brassil, for the lives of six babies.

Water-soaked diapers were put over the infants' faces to keep them from inhaling the deadly smoke. Occasionally the women stuck their heads out the window to gasp some fresh air.

MERIDEN, Conn., Dec. 24 (AP)—A mother and her four children perished and four other persons were injured in a fire that swept through a four-story apartment building in downtown Meriden last night.

The dead were identified as Mrs. Eulia Morales Rios, 39 years old, and her children, Gladys, 17, Isobel, 6, Eddie Nelson 4, and Eddie, 3, Mrs. husband, Luis, 41, was injured. A medicel examiner said the five died of suffocation.

Police were searching for a group of boys chased out of the basement earlier for playing with matches.

About 200 persons were evacuated from a movie theater next door, but firemen kept the flames from spreading to the theater.

The building which burned housed stores on the first floor. It was a mass of flames when firemen arrived. Police said the building was occupied mostly by Puerto Ricans.

ST. LOUIS CLERK AT $16,000 LEVEL IN $64,000 TV QUIZ

Theodore Nadler, 1461A Clara avenue, reached the $16,000 plateau last night on the television program, "The $64,000 Challenge," by answering a six-part geography question which his opponent missed.

Nadler, a $70-a-week clerk with an encyclopedic memory, correctly identified six islands —Ireland, Madagascar, Sakhalin, Iceland, Corsica and Cyprus—after being shown their outlines and told of their approximate size in square miles. His challenger, Joseph Doniger, Roslyn Heights, N.Y., missed on the fourth island.

In August Nadler won $16,000 by answering a geography question in the "any and all" category. Later in the month he was given a try at the $64,000 question but was unable to answer a complicated question on the 1947 World Series. His opponent also missed.

The Nadlers plan to move Wednesday to a home at 8157 Vardaman drive, University City. The home was purchased with Nadler's winnings on the CBS program.

WIFE LEAVING YOUTH, 16, ESCAPED MENTAL PATIENT

DENVER, Dec. 24 (AP — Seventeen-year-old Mrs. Clo Ann Wiegner said today she has decided to go home with mother, apparently leaving—at least temporarily—the 16-year-old husband she says she loves.

"I want to be with my mother," the girl from Daly City, Calif., said softly. "Someone has to take care of me."

In another room at Denver General Hospital her husband of five weeks, Mike, threatened again to file kidnap charges against Mr. and Mrs. John Mowatt "if they take Clo Ann away from me." Wiegner, an escapee from Napa (Calif.) state mental hospital, added: "She's my legal wife, and we love each other."

They are recovering from injuries received when a stolen car in which they were speeding from 10 police cars here last Thursday crashed into a deep ravine.

SAFE CONTAINING $980 STOLEN FROM STORE

A safe containing $980 was taken from Lazar & Sons, a household appliance store at 2206 South Broadway, police reported today.

The safe, about two feet high, was wheeled out of a sales room and through a rear door, which had been forced open, John L. Giulvezan, partner in the firm, said. The theft was discovered early today when police making their rounds noticed the rear door standing open.

HOSPITAL'S ETHER EXPLODES

Ether stored in a locked refrigerator at Christian Welfare Hospital, 1509 Illinois avenue, East St. Louis, exploded last night, blowing the refrigerator door open, shattering glass in two windows and breaking a light fixture. No one was injured.

The refrigerator, containing several cans of ether, some open, was in a fourth-floor corridor near an operating room. The refrigerator was moved several feet by the blast.

ROBBER ESCAPES UNDER FIRE WITH 13 HAMBURGERS

Everything was peaceful on Probationary Patrolman Joseph Herbst's beat until he investigated an automobile parked without lights in the middle of Trudeau street early yesterday.

The driver showed Herbst his license but refused to pull to the curb. Herbst watched helplessly as he suddenly drove away in the darkness.

Just then another man ran out of a restaurant around the corner at 2209 South Broadway with Miss Edith Hunt, a waitress, in hot pursuit. She was shouting, "Stop that man."

Herbst joined in the chase, firing a shot in the air and another at the fleeing man. But his quarry got away. Miss Hunt said he took with him 13 of her 25-cent hamburgers.

The excitement was not over, however. The motorist, apparently a companion of the man with the hamburgers, had driven around the block. Herbst again tried to flag him down, but the driver accelerated his car, driving straight at the officer. Herbst jumped to safety.

Police today arrested a man identified by Herbst as the driver. The man, who denied being the motorist, was booked for illegal parking and driving without lights. He was ordered to appear in police court Wednesday.

BURGLARS STEAL $300 AND GIFTS VALUED AT $100

Burglars stole $300 and Christmas gifts valued at $100, from the home of Fire Capt. William J. Cook, 5118 Goodfellow boulevard, yesterday while the family was absent.

The cash was taken from a dresser drawer, and the gift-wrapped packages from a closet. Articles stolen, purchased for relatives who attend the Cooks' annual Christmas eve party, included a wristwatch, pen and pencil sets, hosiery, sheets, pillow cases, pajamas and slippers.

The only bright spot in the picture for the Cooks was the fact the burglars overlooked well-hidden gifts for the four Cook daughters. Entrance to the home was gained by forcing a window. Capt. Cook is assigned to Engine Co. No. 9.

111-YEAR-OLD N. BROADWAY RESIDENCE TO BE RAZED

The 111-year-old Emil Lambert Walter residence at 4013 North Broadway will be razed soon for the widening of North Broadway, Dr. William G. Swekosky, a dentist whose hobby is the study of old buildings, reported today.

The two-story brick house with a two-story wooden porch in the rear built in 1845, was purchased the same year by Emil L. Walter for $2000, Dr. Swekosky said. Walter died in 1849. In 1887 the home was occupied by his son, Lambert Walter. Walter, who also spelled his name Walther, lived in the residence until his death in 1930.

His son, Lambert Edward Walther, rented the residence from 1935 until last June to Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Schrieber, who then moved to 4015 North Broadway, Dr. Swekosky reported. Walther was city counselor from 1910 to 1912.

SIX FLEE FROM FLAT WHEN BLAZE STARTS

Woman on First Floor Arouses Family of Five on Second Floor.

Six persons, including three small children, fled from a two-story flat at 4224 Cook avenue early yesterday when a fire broke out in the basement.

The blaze was disvorered by Mrs. Sarah Coleman, who lives on the first floor. She ran upstairs and awakened the owners of the building, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Ross, who hurried to safety with their three children.

Fireman James Bruce, 910 Iron street, a member of Hook and Ladder Co. 9, was treated at Homer G. Phillips Hospital for a puncture wound of the right foot. Damage was estimated at $2500 to the building and $500 to contents. Firemen said the blaze originated in rubbish.

A grease rack in a gasoline filling station at 2242 Market street collapsed yesterday, upsetting a taxicab and starting a fire which caused an estimated $1000 damage to the building and $2500 to contents.

Willie Brown, an attendant who was working on the taxicab, suffered minor burns and was treated at City Hospital. Brown, a Negro, lives at 3938 Delmar boulevard.

TRUCK DRIVER FATALLY SHOT IN DISPUTE AFTER COLLISION

John Davis, 1350 North Garrison avenue, died yesterday at Homer G. Phillips Hospital of a bullet wound suffered late Saturday when he was shot in an altercation which followed a traffic accident at Lucas avenue and Beaumont street.

Police arrested Lee Edward Harbin, 34 years old, at his home at 313A Sidney street. He was quoted as saying he shot Davis when his automatic pistol was accidentally discharged. A warrant charging second-degree murder was issued against him.

Harbin said his automobile was struck by a truck driven by Davis at the intersection. He told police he fired one shot in the air as Davis advanced on him brandishing an iron bar. Harbin then swung at Davis with the pistol, Harbin said, and the gun was discharged. The bullet struck Davis in the chest. Davis, 52, was a laborer. Both men are Negroes.

DINERS UNAWARE AS ARMED MAN ROBS MEDART'S

Well-Groomed Holdup Man Flees With $400 at Evening Dinner Hour.

The cashier of Medart's Restaurant, 7030 Clayton avenue, was robbed of $400 late yesterday by an armed man who got away without attracting the attention of customers or employes.

Described as well-groomed, the man walked up to Miss Ruby Stoltz, the day manager, and Miss Betty Woods, hostess, in the Cheshire taproom shortly after 5 p.m. Displaying a snub-nosed revolver, the man remarked, "I guess you know what this is, let's get the money and you won't get hurt."

Five diners sitting nearby failed to notice anything unusual.

Holding the revolver against Miss Woods's back, the robber ordered her and Miss Stoltz to lead the way to the cashier's counter in the kitchen of the drive-in section of the restaurant. When they reached the counter, Miss Woods told Mrs. Marjorie Richardson, 3518 Humphrey street, the cashier, "This is a holdup, give him the money."

Kitchen Help Unaware.

Miss Stoltz added, "Let him get out of here before someone gets hurt." Twenty persons working in the kitchen were unaware there was a holdup.

Stuffing currency into the pocket of his gray topcoat, the robber walked out a side door and across the parking lot. At that point, Mrs. Blossom Medart Amara, owner of the restaurant, entered the kitchen.

Told there had been a holdup, Mrs. Amara started after the robber. As she drew near him in the parking lot he pointed the revolver at her, and she retreated to the restaurant.

The robber saw Miss Stoltz, who had followed Mrs. Amara outside, and waved to her. He then walked west in Clayton avenue.

In addition to the customers in the Cheshire taproom, several hundred persons were having Sunday dinner in other sections of the busy restaurant. None knew the holdup was in progress.

Filling Station Robbed.

Lester Clark, attendant at a filling station at 9311 South Broadway, Lemay, was held up early today by two men, who fled after striking Clark with a revolver. He was not seriously injured. The robbers, who appeared to have been drinking, obtained about $30, Clark said.

John Senkvacs, janitor at St. Joseph's Orphan Home, 4753 South Grand boulevard, was held up near the home early yesterday by three youths, who took his wallet after one struck him in the face. The wallet contained no money. Senkvacs was treated for a laceration of the chin.

Henry Smistik, operator of a wrecking company at 1604 Mississippi avenue, East St. Louis, reported to police today that a revolver and $209 was stolen from his living quarters at that address during his absence last night. The thief apparently used a key, which Smistik places under a box on the porch.

$78 Robbery Reported.

Vernon Rayfield, route driver for National Biscuit Co., reported to police he was robbed of $78 and his watch today by a man armed with a knife who entered Rayfield's parked truck at Jefferson avenue and Dickson street.

Rayfield said he had stopped the truck and was rearranging its load of bakery goods when the robber came through the machine's rear door and placed the knife against his ribs. After taking the money and watch, the robber fled on foot, west in Dickson. Rayfield lives at 6508A Pasadena boulevard, Pasadena Hills.

The body of a soldier found lying in Bayard avenue Saturday night, shot in the head, was identified yesterday as that of Sgt. Famous Lazenby, 34 years old, of Fort Leonard Wood. His pockets were turned out, indicating robbery as the motive, police said.

Lazenby, a Negro, had been drinking with other soldiers, it was learned. His companions were sought for questioning.

REFUGEE CLASSES IN CITIZENSHIP, ENGLISH PLANNED

Special classes in English and citizenship for Hungarian refugees are planned by the St. Louis Resettlement Committee for Catholic Refugees, it was announced today. The classes would be open to refugees of all faiths.

The Rev. Victor T. Suren, who heads the committee, said he hoped to start the classes after Jan. 1. He is looking for about four retired teachers, or instructors seeking additional work, to conduct the classes. His committee has received about 45 Hungarians who fled their Soviet dominated country.

Father Suren said he also is seeking quarters for the Hungarian classes. A total of 125 displaced persons, refugees, or other persons expelled by Soviet-ruled areas are already attending classes on Monday nights at the committee's offices at 3835 Westminster place.

A total of 37 Hungarian refugees who arrived here Friday are presently housed, along with four Hungarians who had arrived earlier, in the parish hall of St. Stephen of Hungary Catholic Church, 1041 Chouteau avenue. They will be placed in rented quarters after Christmas.

ORCHARD PAPER CO. BUYS LOS ANGELES CORPORATION

Orchard Paper Co. of St. Louis announced today purchase of the Associated Paper Converting Corp. of Los Angeles, Calif., bag and printed roll specialty manufacturers. Terms were not made public.

The West Coast plant, which will continue operation under its present name as a wholly owned subsidiary, is the second to be acquired by Orchard in the last two years. Early in 1955 the firm merged with Racquette River Paper Co. of Potsdam, N.Y. acquiring its mill, timber lands and converting plants.

Plans call for extension to the California factory of lines manufactured both at Potsdam and in the St. Louis plant, which is at 3914 Union boulevard. Products at Los Angeles now include handle bags, printed notion and millinery bags and phonograph record sleeves.

Added Injury.

BRANTFORD, Ont., Dec. 24 (AP) — Paul Rozen saw two hitchhikers ahead of him yesterday, swerved his car to avoid them, and crashed into a ditch. He told police the hitchhikers came up, beat him and robbed him of $25.

"Everybody responded to our appeals this year," the spokesman said. "They began mailing early and continued at an even pace, giving us an opportunity to keep the mail moving."

Deliveries were made in all residential areas yesterday, the second time regular mail has been delivered here on Sunday. Special delivery letters, perishable parcel post and any package resembling a Christmas present will be delivered tomorrow, Christmas Day, the spokesman said.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24 — Four St. Louis residents are sponsoring the entry of 10 European refugees scheduled to arrive in this country Thursday on a Navy transport, under the refugee relief program.

The area sponsors and refugees, as listed by the State Department: E. A. Beck, 1023 Theobold street, sponsoring Josif Cendekowitsch of Yugoslavia and his wife and child; William Simon, 4339 California avenue, Stanislaus Obrcut of Poland and his wife and child.

The Rev. Richard Resse Broholm, 6195 Washington boulevard, Wilhelm Orlet of Czechoslovakia and his wife and child, and J. Yambrovich, Madison, Liselotte Jabering of Czechoslovakia.

TWO SUSPECTED OF PASSING 100 BAD CHECKS FOR $5000

Carl Bone and Eddie Collins, former St. Louisans, were held in Chicago today suspected of passing more than 100 worthless checks for a total of more than $5000 in the last three months.

Police said Bone and Collins, both arrested Saturday, would go into a filling station, order a battery and tender a $50 bogus check in payment. Their change usually would amount to $25, police stated.

Collins was arrested first, when a policeman observed he resembled a man sought for passing bad checks.

3 ST. LOUIS AREA RESIDENTS DIE OF AUTO INJURIES

Victims Include Washington U. Student, Scott Base Worker and Pedestrian.

Martin E. Sherman, a Washington University student, died at the University of Missouri hospital at Columbia today of head injuries suffered Dec. 15 in an automobile collision at Kingdom City, Mo.

Sherman, 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Sherman, 1079 Wilson avenue, University City, lost control of the car he was driving on U. S. Highway 40 and it crashed head-on into an automobile driven by Airman 1/c Alfred S. Jackson of Fort Valley, Ga.

Two Passengers Injured.

Brent I. Greenberg, 715 McKnight road, University City, and Alfred Wolf, 626 Eastgate avenue, passengers in Sherman's car, were injured. Greenberg, also a student at Washington University, is reported recovering at Boone County Hospital. Jackson is in Callaway County Hospital, Fulton.

Sherman and Greenberg attended the University of Missouri last year with Wolf, a fraternity brother. Sherman's death increased Missouri's highway fatality record, already above the record high of 1074 set in 1941.

Wafe Reed, 4045 McPherson avenue, died at City Hospital last night of a fractured skull suffered late Saturday when he was struck by an automobile at Vandeventer avenue and McPherson.

The driver, Lloyd Yancey, 4259 Vista avenue, and witnesses told police Reed was attempting to cross Vandeventer with the traffic light in favor of Yancey's southbound car. Reed, a tester, was 49 years old.

Dies of Injuries.

Richard L. McGinnis, 21-year-old maintenance employe at Scott Air Force Base, died today at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Belleville of head injuries suffered yesterday when he fell from the trunk of a moving automobile.

The driver, Rudy Prohaska of O'Fallon, Ill., home on leave from military service, told state highway patrolmen he and McGinnis were driving on Hartman's lane, north of Belleville, when McGinnis asked him to stop, saying he wanted to ride on the trunk. When the car had gone a short distance, McGinnis fell off, Prohaska reported.

McGinnis was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth E. McGinnis Sr., 14 Belle drive, near Belleville. Highway patrolmen said Prohaska's driver's license had been revoked in Illinois last February for driving while intoxicated.

PERILS AND HOPE SEEN BY DULLES IN RUSSIAN WOES

Frustration May Lead to Risks, He Says—Other Leaders' Opinions on Outlook.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24 (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said today that the difficulties besetting Soviet rulers may lead them to take risks and that this is "a vista of danger" to the free world.

But Dulles said in a copyrighted interview in U.S. News & World Report that the free world also has entered the second postwar decade with "a vista of hope" for peace.

Both possibilities stem from the same circumstance—conditions in Russia and its satellites, Dulles said.

"When a despotic regime, possessed of great military and material power and subject to no moral inhibitions, encounters such difficulties as now beset the Soviet rulers, they may take risks in hope of gaining external successes . . . to offset their frustrations," Dulles said.

On the other hand, Dulles said, greater demands for more personal security, intellectual freedom and better living within the Soviet Union, and rising rebelliousness in the satellites have opened up "a vista of hope."

If the United States and its allies maintain their "moral offensive" and "military defensive, the promise of peace . . . will, I am convinced, become reality," Dulles said.

Other Leaders' Views.

Other world leaders included in the interview had these views on the possibilities for peace:

President Syngman Rhee, Republic of Korea—"The situation is more dangerous than ever before. The Communists know that the free world is alerted to the danger of their conquest of weak nations. Nevertheless, for reasons both of internal problems and of special external opportunities, the Communists' pressure for expansion is not less but greater."

French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau—"If the West, which is in the process of reinforcing its unity, behaves with realism and composure, and if the Soviet Union is given no reason to doubt our resolution, war will be avoided."

Prime Minister Ben-Gurion of Israel—"I believe that . . . the peace of mankind can be maintained if the free forces of the world effectively unite and organize themselves . . ."

Hammarskjold's Opinion.

Dag Hammarskjold, Secretary General of the United Nations—"we (the U.N.) are seeking to cope with world issues of great difficulty but equally of high challenge. The hope of finding peaceful, just and constructive solutions of these issues rests upon our ability to foster the growth of understanding, cooperation and mutual accommodation of interests among all the nations."

Ngo Dinh Diem, president of South Viet Nam — "Whether peace will prevail in 1957 depends on how strong and watchful the free world will be in regard to the Communist bloc."

Heinrich von Brentano, foreign minister of West Germany —"I think the international tension as it existed during the last weeks has relaxed." But "as long as there are still states which ignore" the rights of others and believe "that political and military force can be pitted against the will for freedom . . . there is a need for a close union of all those who stand for freedom and world peace."

Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese minister of foreign affairs—"I regret to note that the world situation is not as bright as I wish, but I do not believe that a major war will come in the near future."

ROAD PROGRAM TO COST MORE, TAKE LONGER

Work on 382 Miles of System Contracted at Third Above Authorized Spending.

© New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24 — Government officials are coming to the conclusion that the nation's multi-billion-dollar highway building program will take longer and cost more than originally expected.

A Senate public works subcommittee has scheduled hearings on the $27,600,000,000 highway plan for Jan. 7. The new federal highway administrator, Bertram D. Tallamy, will be taking over soon.

The latest figures of the Bureau of Public Roads show that in the nearly six months since President Eisenhower signed the highway legislation, contracts have been awarded for work on 382 miles of the 41,000 mile national system of interstate highways.

The contracts cover 166 projects in more than 30 states and involve a cost of about $585,500,000. The Government's share on those projects will be about $436,500,000, just more than one third of what Congress authorized for the current fiscal year.

13-Year Program.

Congress directed that the new highway system, which will link 42 state capitals, be completed within 13 years. At the current rate, some officials fear it might well take somewhat longer.

One major delay in awarding more contracts stems from the act itself. A provision required that the Department of Labor determine prevailing minimum wage rates in the states before contracts can be let. This must be done in hundreds of areas.

Moreover, some state highway agencies are lagging in doing their share of the necessary planning preliminary to federal approval of specific projects.

One problem federal highway officials are struggling with is what to do with 1000 miles Congress wants added to the official interstate system.

11,000-Mile Excess.

In 1944 Congress limited the system to 40,000 miles. Eleven years later, in 1955, all 40,000 miles were designated in general throughout the country.

At the last session Congress added 1000 miles to the national system. The Bureau of Public Roads asked the states for proposals. They put in enough bids for 12,000 miles, and the bureau is trying to eliminate the excess 11,000 miles.

Another issue revolves around billboards. Senator Albert Gore (Dem.), Tennessee, says he wants to find out what the states are doing to prevent the 41,000-mile system from being lined by unsightly advertisements.

The highway act approved by Congress left it up to the states to decide what to do about billboards, and few if any states adopted legislation barring the advertisements from the official interstate route.

CONVICT TO GIVE ACCORDION RECITAL FOR HIS PARENTS

JOLIET, Ill., Dec. 24 (UP)—A prisoner at Stateville penitentiary, serving a term for armed robbery and criminal attack, who wanted to prove he could do "something worthwhile," will play a special accordion recital for his parents on Christmas day.

Theodore R. Heflin, 25 years old, was granted permission by Warden Joseph Ragen to play before his parents in an anteroom off the main visitors' section.

Heflin, in a letter to Ragen, requested the recital to show his parents that "you can better yourself" even in prison.

"I'd like to show my father I can put my mind to something long enough to attain something worthwhile," Heflin said. He learned to play the accordion in a music instruction course while behind bars.

CHILD'S LIP SEWN BACK ON AFTER HIGHWAY ACCIDENT

ST. JOSEPH, Dec. 24 (AP)—A child's upper lip, cut off in a highway accident, was sewed back on by a surgeon here yesterday.

The victim, David York, 5 years old, Kansas City, Mo., was hurled through the windshield when the family car skidded on ice and plunged into a ravine off U.S. 169, 10 miles south of here.

Clyde York Jr., 34, his wife, Mildred, 28, and their other son, Clyde, 9, also were injured.

Sgt. Miller Asbury of the Highway Patrol found David's missing lip after several troopers made an inch-by-inch search of the crash scene. He packed the lip in a snowball and rushed it to the hospital.

FALL ENROLLMENTS RISE UNDER KOREAN G.I. BILL

Fall enrollments of veterans under the Korean G.I. Bill show signs of surpassing the record set last fall according to preliminary reports, J. F. Kelley, manager of the Veterans Administration St. Louis office, said today.

With complete national enrollment figures still not in, the Nov. 1 total stood at 688,000 enrollees, or 11 per cent over the enrollment figures reported on the same date last year.

In the St. Louis area, Kelley said, enrollment totaled 10,395 at the beginning of last month, an increase of 637 over last year.

Prince Akihito's Birthday.

TOKYO, Dec. 24 (AP)—Japan's future emperor, Crown Prince Akihito, who is destined to become the 125th in one of the world's oldest reigning dynasties, celebrated his twenty-third birthday yesterday.

POPE PIUS CALLS DEFENSIVE WAR MORALLY RIGHT

year, the Pape indorsed President Eisenhower's "open skies" disarmament inspection plan, which provides for aerial inspection to assure observance of disarmament pledges. He solidly backed the West's demands for disarmament with iron-clad controls, saying: "The acceptance of the control: this is the point crucial for victory, where every nation will show its sincere desire for peace."

Wearing regal robes of white and gold, the frail but vigorous Pope spoke yesterday from his throne in the consistory hall of the Vatican Palace.

He made it clear that his declaration approving defensive war did not mean that he had veered from support of the cause of peace.

"No one," he said, "can accuse us of favoring the stiffening of opposing blocs, and still less of having in some fashion abandoned that mission of peace which flows from our apostolic office. . . . We remain closely allied to the cause of peace, and God alone knows how much we yearn to be able to announce it in full and happy tones with the angels of Christmas."

The Pontiff said European solidarity is "a definite need of this period—a means of insuring the whole world's peace and a fruitful share of its goods."

Such unity, he warned, cannot be achieved until all the associated nations "realize that the political and economic defeats of one can nowhere, in the long run, result in true gains for the others."

Warns Against Criticism.

He suggested also that there was a hazard in even justified criticism among nations in time of common peril if the criticism of one nation's actions is expressed by the others "with such one-sidedness as to cause doubt that any bond of union at all remains."

Some Vatican sources privately interpreted these words as a criticism of both the British-French invasion of the Suez canal zone and the sharp American reaction it produced.

He went on to describe the present struggle in the world between forces of Communism and liberty.

"Present day conditions, which find no counterpart in the past, should be clear to everyone," he said. "There is no longer room for doubt concerning the aims and methods which rely on tanks, when these latter noisily crash over borders sowing death in order to force civilian peoples into a pattern of life they explicitly detest."

The Pope praised the "generous reaction toward the oppressed Hungarian nation on the part of all our beloved sons, of charitable organizations, of entire nations, and also of fair-minded newspapers."

He closed his 7000-word message on a note of encouragement:

"Peace is the fruit of men's effort, but also a priceless gift of God."

Mass to Be Broadcast.

By the United Press.

The Pontiff spent Christmas eve alone meditatiing and praying.

Roman Catholics throughout the world will hear the voice of Pius XII at the stroke of midnight (5 p.m., St. Louis time) when he recites the first of three traditional Christmas masses in the small private chapel adjoining the papal bedroom. The papal mass will be broadcast over the Vatican radio for the second time in the history of the Catholic church.

The Pope will celebrate the midnight mass at a small bare altar surmounted by a gilt-framed painting of the Virgin Mary. He will recite the second and third masses starting at about 7 o'clock (midnight, St. Louis time) Christmas morning.

CHOU WILL VISIT POLAND TO SIZE UP NEW REGIME

United States insists that Peiping give recognition to "United States interference in China's liberation movement."

Communist China, Chou said at a news conference, will never recognize what he called the United States "occupation" of Formosa. He gave this as the reason for the long deadlock in the talks at Geneva between United States and Peiping representatives.

The United States has been holding out in the Geneva talks for the release of 10 Americans still held by the Red Chinese and for Peiping to promise not to use force to take Formosa. The United States has given no indication it would end its mutual defense alliance with the Chinese Nationalists in exchange for such a Chinese declaration.

Accusations Against West.

The Chinese Premier admitted that the other Asian leaders with whom has has talked during his tour disagreed with him on various aspects of the Soviet action in Hungary, but he contended they admitted Western countries carried on and were still carrying on subversive activities to overthrow the Communist government in Hungary.

Chou during his trip has publicly advanced the Moscow line that the Hungarian revolt was a Western-sponsored attempt by Fascists to take over.

Chou dropped his smile and his temper boiled over at a news conference after a dinner for 500 guests at the Chinese embassy. Pakistani reporters asked him questions about Hungary until he shouted:

"Hungary is China's friend and the United States and imperialist powers are trying to make confusion there."

The questions switched to Chinese Nationalist Formosa, or Taiwan as the Chinese call it. A questioner used the term Formosa.

"No," snapped Chou. "It is not Formosa. It is Taiwan. Only the United States calls it Formosa. The United States is creating trouble in Tibet, Taiwan and even in Kashmir."

Karachi Joint Statement.

The Chinese leader and his United States allied Pakistani host, Prime Minister H. S. Shurawardy, issued a joint statement today declaring there was no area of conflicting interests between their two countries. But the statement did not contain an expression of agreement on the "five principles of peaceful coexistence" to which Chou and the governments of India, Burma and Cambodia previously subscribed.

Chou and Suhrawardy said the difference between their political systems and the divergence of their views on many problems should not prevent the strengthening of friendship between the two countries. Pakistan is allied with the United States and is a member of the Baghdad pact and the Southeast Asia defense alliance, both of which the Chinese Reds bitterly oppose.

"The prime ministers," the joint statement said, "have noted with much concern that there has been a considerable change in the international situation since they last met (in Peiping two months ago)."

"They are agreed that there has been an increase in tension and the situation requires constant vigilance and constructive action on the part of all peace-living countries. . . .

"The prime ministers would like to reiterate their desire that every effort should be made to reduce international tension and promote the cause of a world peace and understandings."

a ceremonial flag-raising at the railroad station.

The U.N. troops who took over occupation of the city from the British and French were little in evidence. They confined their patrols to the European quarter, while Egyptian police kept order in the Arab areas.

The U.N. Emergency Force announced it would shift its attention now from Port Said to the Sinai peninsula, still largely in the hands of Israeli troops.

The U.N. troops in the Suez Canal Zone will leave shortly to reinforce the contingent taking over the Sinai, an announcement said.

The U.N. police are under instructions to supervise Israel's withdrawal from all territory occupied since the Oct. 29 invasion, including the Gaza strip. However, Israeli Premier Ben-Gurion has declared his government never will turn Gaza back to Egypt, which has occupied the coastal strip since the 1948 Palestine war.

Burns, Israelis to Meet.

Maj. Gen. L. M. Burns, commander of the U.N. Emergency Force, will meet with Israeli commanders on Wednesday to discuss further withdrawal of Israeli forces from the Sinai peninsula.

The meeting will be held at El Arish, and the Israelis will be represented by Maj. Gen. Moshe Dayan, Chief of Staff of the Israeli forces. The meeting will be the third between the two commanders on matters related to the withdrawal of Israel's troops from the peninsula.

So far the Israeli forces have pulled back to a line about 46 miles east of the Suez canal and still occupy two thirds of the peninsula.

Hammarskjold announced two days ago that Israeli forces would be withdrawn to El Arish by the first week in January in the next phase of the pullback. The town is on the northeast coast of Sinai about 50 miles from Gaza, which the Israelis also occupy.

Egypt Demobilizing.

Egypt announced it was demobilizing its National Liberation Army, formed of volunteers, and collecting its arms.

"After the withdrawal of the aggressors . . . each one should return to work," said Maj. Kamal El Din Hussein, Liberation Army commander. "The stage of construction lies ahead."

Port Said Gov. Mohammed Riad said he expected the U.N. force to leave the city in a few days. Col. Carl Engholm, Danish commander of the U.N. soldiers here, confirmed this.

Engholm said the International Red Cross has set up refugee points at churches with U.N. help because many Europeans in Port Said have received letters threatening them for alleged co-operation with the British-French forces.

There was no official word of the fate of Anthony Moorhouse, the young British lieutenant kidnaped by an Egytian underground gang. The U.N. command reported Saturday it had been informed Moorhouse is alive, but Engholm said no further information has been received.

Brig. Gen. Amin Helmy, Egyptian liaison officer with the U.N. force, said the Egyptian army had been unable to find Moorhouse.

(Lt. Gen. Sir Hugh Stockwell, who commanded the British-French invasion force in Egypt, returned to London today from Malta. He told newspaper men: "It's good to be home—especially for Christmas—and I can't say I am very sorry to be out of Egypt. In my opinion, the United Nations forces have a difficult task there and are doing it very well.")

Israel Accuses Egypt of Renewing Fedayeen Raids.

JERUSALEM, Dec. 24 (AP)—Israel accused Egypt today of renewing fedayeen (commando) raids and of "deliberately flouting" the United Nations cease-fire resolution.

A statement by Walter Eytan, director general of the Israeli Foreign Ministry, charged Egypt with aiming to keep alive the "flames of armed conflict."

Eytan said Israel "still awaits assurances from the United Nations against the renewal of Egyptian belligerency by land and sea."

He also said a "heavy responsibility" for the fedayeen attacks rests on Jordan, "from whose territory these nocturnal raiders carry out their attacks." Israel claims many of the commandos escaped from the Gaza stripe to Jordan.

Eytan said the Egyptian fedayeen attacks had been renewed "as Cairo radio boasted they would be." He cited the time-bombing over the weekend of the clinic at Yokneam village, 13 miles southeast of Haifa, and said "it was only by a miracle that doctors, nurses and patients were not killed." There were no casualties. The infiltrators came from Jordan, the Israelis said.

(Other infiltrators from Jordan blew up a rainwater reservoir in northern Israel, the United Press reported.)

The Israeli official said each fedayeen group operats as part of the network controlled from Cairo." He accused Egypt of "deliberately flouting" the U.N. General Assembly's Nov. 2 resolution calling on all countries concerned "to desist from raids into neighboring territory."

STALIN BIRTHDAY NOTED ONLY BY HOME AREA PAPER

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

MOSCOW, Dec. 24 — The Communist party newspaper in Stalin's native Georgia has departed from the course of the entire Soviet press by marking the late dictator's birthday.

Zarya Vostoka printed a large portrait of Stalin and a biographical article in its issue of Dec. 21 — the seventy-seventh anniversary of his birth in the Georgian town of Gori—which reached Moscow yesterday.

On that day, other Soviet newspapers, including the policy setting dailies like Pravda and Izvestia, did not mention Stalin.

Notice of Stalin's birthday in Zarya Vostoka obviously had party approval. Taking local sentiment and pride into consideration, the Kremlin is moving more cautiously in stamping out Stalin worship in Georgia than elsewhere.

MEN USE ROWBOAT TO DO JOB 100 FEET ABOVE GROUND

PORTSMOUTH, N.H., Dec. 24 (UP)—Two men were working 100 feet above ground today in a rowboat.

Faced with the task of dismantling a 500,000-gallon, 100-foot high water tank at the Portsmouth naval base, salvage officials didn't pull the plug first. They hoisted a rowboat inside.

Workmen are paddling inside the 95-foot circumference unbolting one five-foot section at a time. When one is gone the water level is lowered to permit them to reach the next.

FEWER DEATHS, MORE MILES FOR AIRLINES IN '56

Fatalities Drop From 156 in 1955 to 143 Despite Big Increase in Passenger Miles.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24 (AP)—The commercial airlines improved their safety record this year, as compared with 1955, and the nonscheduled carriers went into the final week of 1956 without a single passenger fatality, the Civil Aeronautics Administration reported yesterday.

The safety mark for domestic scheduled airlines was estimated at 0.62 fatalities per 100,000,000 passenger miles, compared with 0.76 in 1955.

The total domestic passenger miles for 1956 was estimated by the CAA at 28,183,000, compared with 20,550,940 miles in 1955. The passanger fatalities in domestic scheduled operations were 143 in 1956 as of Dec. 14, compared with 156 in 1955. The tabulation did not include 39 passenger deaths caused by the explosion attributed to sabotage aboard a plane over Colorado.

In reporting on 1956, the CAA said:

There were no passenger fatalities in United States international flying and the nonscheduled lines operating both domestically and on overseas runs have not reported a passenger death since Nov. 17, 1955.

In a year-end review, CAA said scheduled airlines continued to expand their operations in 1956. Domestic revenue passenger miles for 1956 were estimated at more than 22 billions, an increase of 13 per cent. The figure for international passenger miles was more than five billions, up 15 per cent.

The total number of scheduled airline passengers increased 11 per cent in the year, from 41,441,000 in 1955 to an estimated 45,860,000.

CAA said it is closing out the year "working night and day to improve the airways system in two more years to be ready for the 550-mile-an-hour jet airliners" now on order for delivery in the fall of 1958.

A modern radar-based air traffic control system has been developed to the point where production is about to begin, the agency said, and hundreds of additional control and maintenance personnel are in training.

Pointing up the approaching shift to jet transport, CAA said that in 1956 it was asked for the first time to approve more jet engine projects than conventional piston engine designs. The jet applications were in front 21 to 18.

CAA engineers must certify that all new aircraft and engines are safe and airworthy.

CHRISTMAS GIFT IDEA—SUBMARINE FOR $75,000

BALTIMORE, Dec. 24 (AP)—The Navy has just the answer for the last-minute Christmas shopper who is looking for something out of the ordinary.

For the man with an extra $75,000 or more, the Navy is offering for sale the Pike, a 21-year-old submarine. Bids must be received or postmarked before 10 a.m. Jan. 8.

Here is the catch. The buyer must move the boat from the naval reserve training center within 15 days after the sale and must guarantee to have it scrapped within one year.

U.S. REDS PUT RIGHT TO DISSENT IN PARTY JARGON

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24 — The Communist party of the United States prepared yesterday to drop the terms "democratic centralism" and "monolothic unity" from its jargon.

Both terms have served to justify dictatorial decisions made by the party's leadership.

"Experience has shown that under these concepts and their application, rigid conformity and an almost total absence of the right to dissent has resulted in stifling independent and creative thinking, destroyed initiative and helped bureaucracy flourish," the announcement by the party's national committee explained.

WRECKAGE FROM TRAIN-AUTO CRASH IS FATAL TO DRIVER

MORRIS, Ill., Dec. 24 (AP)—Wreckage flying from an auto-train collision fatally injured a woman motorist who believed she had cheated death. She was Mrs. Joseph Studyvin, 59 years old, of Gardner.

Her car stalled yesterday on a Gardner crossing of the Gulf, Mobile & Ohio Railroad tracks as a Chicago to St. Louis fast passenger train approached. Unable to start the engine, she jumped from the car and ran out of the train's path.

The speeding train scattered parts of the car more than 100 feet. Some of the metal hit Mrs. Studyvin, inflicting injuries that caused her death today.

GREASE FACILITATES RESCUE

SANTA CRUZ, Calif., Dec. 23 (AP)—Greased from head to toe, a 16-year-old youth was pulled to safety last night after being stuck three hours in a narrow crevice in a cavern.

"I feel fine," said Earl Clark of nearby Watsonville. Rescuers had dropped 20 pounds of grease to the tightly wedged boy. He smeared it over his body and they were able to pull him up through the narrow hole into which he had fallen.

ITALIAN PLANE FOUND, ALL 21 ABOARD DEAD

Airliner Crashed and Burned on Mountain; American Pair Among Victims.

MILAN, Italy, Dec. 24 (UP) —Alpine search parties found a missing Italian DC-3 airliner on the northwestern slopes of snow-capped Mount Giner today and reported all 21 persons aboard were killed when it crashed and burned.

The plane carried four crew members and 17 passengers, including two Americans, Mr. and Mrs. Harris Gray of Atlanta, Ga.

Their daughters, Connie, 14 years old, and Pamela, 5, were told here last night by officials of the Coca-Cola Co., for whom their father worked, that their parents were dead.

The plane took off Saturday from Rome's Ciampinio airport en route to Milan. It disappeared over the Italian mountains, and snowstorms hid it until today.

Carabinieri (federal police), mountain troopers and Alpine guides found the charred plane. Some bodies were still in the wreckage and the others were scattered in the snow.

A preliminary investigation indicated the 21 persons aboard were killed instantly when the plane crashed and burned soon after dusk Saturday.

Gray was the Italian representative for the Coca-Cola Co. He and his wife had been on a business trip to Rome and boarded the plane for Milan to spend Christmas with their two daughters.

Before the Gray children were told of the death of their parents, they had been under the watchful eyes of a family friend who told them their mother and father had been forced to stay in Rome "because of some urgent business."

Friends disconnected the family radio and television sets at hours scheduled for news broadcasts and the two girls plotted their "big surprise" for their parents throughout the weekend. They had bought Christmas presents in Milan while awaiting their return.

Connie is known to millions of Italian television fans as "the English speaking little girl" appearing in "Passaporto," an English-teaching program.

HOSPITAL CHRISTMAS PARTY

The St. Louis Junior Chamber of Commerce gave a Christmas party yesterday for 200 residents of the St. Louis Chronic Hospital, 5800 Arsenal street. Announcement was made of the group's presentation of 16 television sets as Christmas gifts.

Fifteen club members and their wives were hosts, distributing gift packages with soap, toilet articles, candy and fruit. Entertainment was provided by the Ford School of Dancing and the Metropolitan Singers of St. Louis. Sanford Zimmerman was chairman of the Chamber's party committee.

Tory Leader in House of Lords Begins Move to Dump Eden

Salisbury Hopes to Make Butler Prime Minister—Jamaica Trip by Sir Anthony Angered Many.

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Radio. Copyright, 1956.

LONDON, Dec. 24—The Marquess of Salisbury, Tory leader in the House of Lords, is reported on the highest authority to have decided that Sir Anthony Eden must go as Prime Minister.

Salisbury is said to have told R. A. Butler, leader in the House of Commons, to get ready to succeed Eden. Butler, former chancellor of the exchequer, was highly unpopular when he left that job a year ago. Out of the limelight, he has regained some political prestige. He presided over the Cabinet during Eden's recent absence.

Salisbury wants to dump Eden because at the height of the Suez crisis he showed himself unable to stand the strain. He went to Jamaica for three weeks for his health and left his colleagues to clear up the mess.

Unforgivable Sin.

Old-line Tories say that Eden "let the side down"—an unforgiveable sin in Britain.

Whether Butler can get the majority of Tory members behind in is questionable. He has promised to try. Salisbury, it is stated, believes that if Butler fails, a general election must be held early in 1957.

As it now stands, the Labor party is confident of winning. Polls and recent special elections indicate that the socialists would be returned to power.

Salisbury, scion of one of Britain's oldest and most powerful families, is an important political figure in Britain. He is lord president of the Privy Council advises Queen Elizabeth II.

Salisbury would take the prime ministership himself except that there is now strong feeling in Britain against any member of the peerage holding that position.

Old Friend of Eden.

He is regarded as one of Eden's oldest friends. They resigned from the Foreign Office together in 1938 in protest against Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's appeasement of Mussolini.

Salisbury is said to believe that world affairs are so tense today that Eden cannot be trusted to give Britain the leadership it needs.

Tories are quick to defend Eden's decision to send troops into the Suez Canal Zone, but they will not defend his action in going to Jamaica when the heat was on.

The present plan is to get votes lined up for Butler and then convince Eden he should resign.

In case Butler is unable to win enough support, the plan is to convince Eden that the voters should be allowed to select a government to try to dig Britain out of the hole.

550 INDONESIAN TROOPS TO JOIN U.N. FORCE IN EGYPT

UNITED NATIONS, Dec. 24 (AP)—An Indonesian contingent of 550 men will soon join the United Nations Emergency Force in Egypt, a U.N. spokesman disclosed today.

Indonesia will be the ninth nation to contribute troops to the emergency force which now totals 3827 officers and men. In addition, there are 112 military and civilian personnel working at El Ballah, the U.N. military headquarters in the Suez canal zone.

An advance party of six Indonesian officers is expected to arrive in Cairo on Dec. 26. The Indonesian contingent will be flown from Jakarta to Beirut in the first 10 days of January by United States Air Force planes.

SOVIET ARMY NEWSPAPER WARNS ON INDIFFERENCE

MOSCOW, Dec. 24 (AP)—Red Star, the official newspaper of the defense ministry, declared today that an "indifferent attitude" toward Maarxist-Leninist theory cannot be tolerated among Soviet army officers.

Such an attitude, the newspaper said, leads to "a loss of perspective." It added:

"The Communist party demands all our personnel, whether party members or not, to conduct an active decisive struggle against bourgeois ideology, to expose malicious contrivances of reactionary foreign propaganda, and to educate the Soviet people in a spirit of patriotic love of homeland."

BREAK IN JAIL TERM FOR DEFIANT TEACHER

Man Serving Term for Keeping Daughter Home Gets Out for Christmas.

VERSAILLES, Mo., Dec. 24 (UP) — School teacher William Cheney decided today to spend Christmas at home while a wealthy widow fights to keep him from returning to jail in his school defiance case.

The 35-year-old high school English instructor started Saturday a 10-day term for keeping his daughter out of the Rock Island rural school in Morgan county.

After a visit with his wife, who made the 15-mile trip from home with neighbors yesterday, Cheney accepted the offer of Sheriff Cornie Wood to defer completion of his term until after Christmas.

The extra day will be added to the end of his sentence unless legal proceedings free him by then.

Cheney and his 33-year-old wife, Irene, maintain the school's playground is dangerous because of an uncovered storm cellar on the premises. They also object to their daughter's removal from school for a trip to town without the parents' permission and knowledge.

Cheney's wife must serve an identical sentence when his time is up. Both were sentenced and fined $10 each by Circuit Judge Claude Curtis.

Mrs. James A. Reed of Kansas City, widow of the United States Senator, instructed her attorney to take up the fight a few hours after Cheney was jailed. The lawyer, John R. Baty, also of Kansas City, was trying to work out steps necessary to prevent Cheney from returning to his cell after Christmas. Mrs. Reed has agreed to finance an appeal.

Curtis offered to suspend both the jail sentences and the fines if Mr. and Mrs. Cheney would send 7-year-old Stephanie back to school. They refused.

Cheney said he was "glad I can fight this thing," when told of Mrs. Reed's offer to aid. He said he had to enter jail because he had no money for an appeal. He said he had decided to serve his sentence then move his family to another state.

Curtis said the child was getting adequate instruction in being tutored at home by Mrs. Cheney, but tha she was being deprived of "needed social contacts."

G.I.S IN KOREA TO MARK CHRISTMAS EVE QUIETLY

ON THE WESTERN TRUCE FRONT, Korea, Dec. 24 (UP)— American fighting men who watch, wait and guard against Communist treachery along the bitterly cold Korean front will mark Christmas eve quietly tonight.

Some will be manning lonely outpost, others will patrol the military demarcation line between the United Nations and the Communist positions.

But whatever their station will be, they would be looking forward to hot turkey dinner with all the trimmings that all of America's fighting men in Korea will eat in the Christmas observances.

The baby was "doing fine," and Mrs. Glickman reported, "I feel pretty good — considering."

$5259 FOUND CONCEALED IN SEAT OF MAN'S TROUSERS

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 24 (UP) — When police arrested Fred Holden, 59 years old, they found $5259 concealed in the seat of his pants.

Holden was found lying on a street corner Saturday. A jail search revealed a bib from a pair of overalls pinned to his trousers seat.

Rolled inside the bib were four $1000 bills, a $500 bill, six $100 bills, two $50 bills, and smaller currency — totaling $5259.

Holden said it was his life savings as a laborer. He said he withdrew it from a bank and intended to go to Blue Ridge, Ga., to visit an uncle. He said he would deposit the money again after appearing in court on a drunkenness charge.

Stay of Execution.

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 24 (AP) —There are 50 happy boys and girls here today and as many dogs probably even happier. Mayor George E. Norvell granted a stay of execution to the animals as a gesture of Christmas good will. All of the dogs were claimed shortly after the Mayor's action.

EX-CONVICT ADMITS THEFT OF $4, WATCH FROM HOME

Earline Sampson, a former convict living in the 3100 block of Pine street, was arrested today by police about 20 minutes after a burglary at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Lechner Jr., 1515 Carr Lane avenue.

Sgt. Charles Calcaterra and Patrolman Harry Plaisted of the Magnolia Avenue District, said Sampson, a Negro, admitted the theft of $4 and a wristwatch, which he was carrying in his pocket when he was arrested in an alley about two blocks from the Lechner residence.

Lechner called police after his 12-year-old son, Don, informed him he had seen a man in the house. The boy feigned sleep until the intruder left, then told his father. Police said Sampson has served three penitentiary terms for burglary and larceny and is wanted in Chicago for parole violation.

Nehru Visit Rated a Success By Indian Envoy Who Forecasts Better Mutual Understanding

G. L. Mehta Predicts Profound Impact on Peace Efforts as Result of Premier's Talks With Eisenhower—Goals Viewed as Same.

By DONALD GRANT
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.

THE six-day visit to the United States last week by India's Prime Minister, Jawaharlal Nehru, was "very successful," the Indian ambassador to the United States, G. L. Mehta, said today.

Commenting on the conferences between Nehru and American public and private figures — including a two-day conference with President Eisenhower — Mehta declared:

"It was made more evident than ever that the foreign policies of the United States and India are running on parallel lines. Even where there are differences, there is a better appreciation by each country of the other country's position.

"I believe that the Prime Minister's visit can thus have a profound and useful effect on peaceful relations between nations, relations based on justice and freedom," he added.

Mutual Admiration.

Nehru told his Indian associates, following his talks with President Eisenhower that he considered the American President "a very great man." Nehru was reported to have said he now trusts Mr. Eisenhower's sincere desire to work for world peace "completely." Indian diplomats said they were told that this feeling was reciprocated by President Eisenhower in his view of Nehru.

One Indian diplomat said Nehru left here convinced that "whereas the United States and India sometimes have different approaches, their fundamental objectives are "quite the same."

At the two points where Nehru's associates had anticipated trouble, they said, there had been none.

On the Red China issue, they said, Nehru gained a better understanding of American "strong emotional reaction" against the Chou En-lai government, and the United States, in its turn, seemed to realize that Nehru believes that no Asian problems can be settled without acknowledging the existence of the government which represents 600,000,000 Chinese.

Dulles Statements.

The second "issue" on which trouble was anticipated was Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, who previously had made a number of statements unpopular in India, including one concerning the Portuguese position in the dispute over the enclave of Goa, in India.

The Indian diplomats said it would be a mistake to conclude that Indian-American relations will be entirely smooth from now on. No attempt was made, they said, to settle precisely the role each nation is to play in approaching difficult issues such as the situations in the Middle East and in eastern Europe.

However, they said, an atmosphere was established which should enable diplomatic negotiation on these issues—so far as the United States and India are concerned—to proceed better in the future than they have in the past.

It was emphasized that great importance was attached to the meeting between Nehru and Mr. Eisenhower. Nehru represents not only the 370,000,000 people of India, but to a large extent the billion and a half people of all Asia. The President represents the largest aggregate of economic, military and political power in the world.

Wide Impact Expected.

Indian diplomats believe that both leaders are genuinely concerned with the peace of the world and that their meeting is thus expected to have a wide impact over the world. They pointed to the communique issued after the talks, which mentioned their conviction that "the greater understanding of their respective policies" would facilitate "the achievement of peaceful and friendly intercourse among nations in accordance with the principles of the United Nations."

It was notable that in his closed-door talks with members of the Asian and African delegations at the United Nations Nehru stressed the necessity for this group to work in the U.N. not only for its own good, but for the general welfare of the world. He urged them not to be "governed by the passions of the moment." His words, it was believed, could have an important effect on the attempts to settle the future of the Suez canal and the question of peace between Israel and the Arab states.

Supports Commonwealth.

In his private talks to delegates from the British Commonwealth countries, Nehru stressed the importance of continuing the Commonwealth, despite "differences" between members. The most severe recent differences occurred when Britain participated in the invasion of Egypt, an action which aroused widespread indignation in India.

Nehru also talked with private non-governmental groups both in Washington and in New York, in an attempt to get a better understanding of indian policies and to improve India's public relations generally. Many Indian diplomats believe India does not "get a good press" in this country. Some observers tend to blame V. K. Krisha Menon, head of the Indian delegation to the United Nations and Nehru's chief foreign policy adviser.

Impresses Business Men.

Perhaps one of the most important meetings addressed by Nehru was at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, where 30 New York business men gathered under the auspices of the Far Eastern American Council. Indian diplomats believe Nehru succeeded in convincing most of them that India is not hellbent for doctrinaire socialism, but merely trying to make sure that the country's economic growth is of a maximum benefit to its people—by adopting a mixed, "New Deal" type of economy.

The least successful meeting attended by Nehru was the gathering Thursday night in New York, attended by liberal and Democratic party bigwigs, including Adlai Stevenson, Democratic candidate for President in the last election, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Gov. Averell Harriman of New York. The meeting was badly managed and in the confusion several persons attempted to ask distinctly unfriendly questions, especially on the subject of Kashmir. Nehru did not enjoy the experience, his associates said.

More Success This Time.

Indian diplomats close to the Prime Minister said the trip was immeasurably more successful than his first visit, in 1949. As Nehru himself said: "Somebody told me once that nobody should go to the United States for the first time."

Not the least important result of Nehru's visit, it was learned, was the fact that he managed to convince Ambassador Mehta that he should continue in his post. Mehta is due to leave for India Jan. 11, and had not expected to return. At the direct request of Nehru he has agreed to come back after a vacation of a month or so.

Mehta is one of the senior diplomats of Washington and one of the most popular, especially with Americans, in and out of the government. He is a former journalist and a successful business man with many pressing interests in Bombay, and has for some time wanted to return to India.

Nehru—and some influential Americans—believe that Mehta should continue as ambassador, however, to help implement the new relationship established by President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Nehru.

GOOD WILL FOR U.S. EVEN IN RED CHINA, SENATOR SAYS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24 (AP) —Senator A. S. Mike Monroney (Dem.), Oklahoma, said yesterday the United States has a fund of good will in Asia, "even inside Red China." Monroney returned recently from a meeting of the Interparliamentary Union in Bangkok, Thailand.

Questioned in an NBC television interview "Youth Wants to Know," he said a great many Asian countries look to India for leadership. He said many also look to the United States, particularly since this country opposed British-French military action against Egypt.

"We have a fund of good will even inside Red China, our intelligence tells us," he said.

In response to a question, Monroney said he does not think the so-called neutralist nations of Asia are "leaning toward either the United States or the Soviet Union.

"They are looking for a way to find their own pattern and their own path," he said. "I believe there's a place in the world for neutralists . . . Nehru may be showing that way which will be to our advantage if the Asian nations don't fall behind the Iron Curtain."

U.S. TO CONTINUE PAKISTAN ARMS AID, NEHRU IS TOLD

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24 (AP) — President Eisenhower was reported yesterday to have given no encouragement to Prime Minister Nehru in their talks here last week on India's efforts to diminish and eventually end United States military aid to Pakistan.

India and Pakistan are at Loggerheads over the province of Kashmir, which both claim. Each has sent occupation troops into Kashmir, and the Pakistanis bear United States-supplied arms. They got them under a military aid agreement because they are members of two anti-Communist alliances which the United States strongly supports: The Baghdad Pact in the Middle East and the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

Nehru was said to have indicated to Mr. Eisenhower that India would like to see a cutback in United States military aid to Pakistan—a tapering off over the years until it stopped altogether. Mr. Eisenhower was reported to have given Nehru no encouragement that any change could be expected.

ATOMIC QUEST

Scientists Decide That if Atom Bomb Is Made, U.S. Must Be First

Compton and Lawrence Convince Conant It Is Vital to Beat Nazis to Punch.

Following is the second of a series of articles based on the new book, "Atomic Quest: A Personal Narrative," by Arthur Holly Compton, Nobel Prize winner, former chancellor and now distinguished service professor of natural philosophy at Washington University.

By ARTHUR H. COMPTON
(Copyright 1956 Oxford University Press, Inc.)

THE ATOM'S ENERGY first began to take on for me a vast personal significance in the spring of 1940.

I was talking with Prof. Ernest O. Lawrence of the University of California at Berkeley about the use of his newly built cyclotron in the experimental treatment of cancer.

After lunch at the Faculty Club our conversation turned to the war that was enveloping Europe and Asia. We agreed that sooner or later the United States would be in the struggle on the side of the Allies.

Our immediate concern was what part atomic energy would play in the war. The scientific world was already alert to what the large-scale release of the atom's energy might mean. We knew that a committee on atomic energy had been set up in Washington but we had not heard of much progress.

We agreed that each of us would look diligently into the military possibilities of nuclear fission.

As of mid-1941, a year after our conversation at Berkeley, no feasible proposal had yet appeared that gave promise of making atomic energy of wartime significance.

Early in September, three months before Pearl Harbor, such a definite possibility did appear, and it seemed of critical importance.

Lawrence telephoned me in Chicago from Berkeley. Certain new developments made him believe it would be possible to make an atomic bomb. Such a bomb, if developed in time, might determine the outcome of the war. The activity of the Germans in this field made it seem to him a matter of great urgency for us to press its development.

I made a date for Lawrence to see me in Chicago the following week when James B. Conant, president of Harvard University, was also to be there. Conant was chairman of a division of the National Defense Research Committee.

It was a cool September evening when we three sat down together at the University of Chicago. My wife greeted Conant and Lawrence as they came into our home and gave us each a cup of coffee as we gathered around the fireplace.

Lawrence began by telling briefly of new results from England and how this work was confirmed by experiments in the United States. This work had convinced him of the feasibility of making an atomic bomb using only a few kilograms of fissionable material.

He described recent Berkeley experiments, indicating that the bomb could be made equally well either with uranium 235 or with a new chemical element discovered in his laboratory which was soon afterwards named plutonium.

There was every reason to believe, he said, that the Nazis saw in the atomic bomb the possibility of a new weapon of decisive importance. If they succeeded first they would have in their hands the control of the world.

Conant was reluctant. As the result of the reports so far received he had concluded that the time had come to drop the support of nuclear research as a subject for wartime study. Every one of our competent research men was needed for work on problems that would bring useful results during the period of the war.

I rallied to Lawrence's support and confirmed his interpretation of the new scientific results.

Conant began to be convinced.

"If this task is as important as you men say," he remarked, "we must get going. I have argued with Vannevar Bush that the uranium project be put in wraps for the war period.

"Now you put before me plans for making a definite, highly effective weapon. If such a weapon is going to be made, we must do it first. But I'm here to tell you, nothing significant will happen on such a job as this unless we get into it with everything we've got."

Conant turned to Lawrence.

"Ernest, you say you are convinced of the importance of these fission bombs. Are you ready to devote the next several years of your life to getting them made?"

Here was a serious personal decision. Lawrence was working on many war projects and also directing a major program of basic science research that was precious to him.

He hesitated only a moment. "If you tell me this is my job, I'll do it."

Conant told me to get my National Academy Committee together and get up a report on

Pravda Assails 'Nationalism' in Red Countries

Warns Satellites 'Going It Alone' Is Contrary to Marxism.

MOSCOW, Dec. 24.

THE Soviet Communist party yesterday attacked elements inside the Communist world which place "nationalism" above unity with the Soviet Union and other Communist countries.

Pravda, the party newspaper, warned that those Communists who favored "going it alone" threatened a serious breach in the Communist world's "solid front." It said "talk about imaginary national Communism" was contrary to fundamental Communist doctrines laid down by Marx and Lenin.

This attack was directed against Polish Communists who recently have raised demands that their national aspirations should receive more attention. By extension it was aimed at Yugoslavia, where the theme of "national Communism" has received its fullest support, and at elements in Hungary and other "people's democracies" where signs of nationalism have emerged increasingly of late.

Major Statement of Policy.

This seemed to be a major statement of policy. Ideological problems raised by the events of the last few months are reported to be occupying considerable attention of the leading Soviet Communists.

The statement in Pravda replied to questions raised in the Polish newspaper Nowa Kultura. Like most discussions of this kind the article centered on an important, but fine, point in Communist theory: "What is "proletarian internationalism?"

The Polish writer who had raised the question was all wrong in his definition, Pravda said.

He had suggested that proletarian internationalism meant working relations among Communist and workers parties and among socialist countries on a basis of "coexistence" and without tendencies toward domination of one by another. He suggested Communists should fight against "Stalinism" as well as against "conservatism and reaction."

Pravda disagreed. It insisted that Communists owed their loyalty not to individual nations

ALSOP

Responsibility Resting Fully On U.S. as Aftermath of Suez

Criticism of Allies' Methods Means Burden Has Passed to America and Task Appears Difficult If Not Impossible.

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON.

AT the NATO meeting in Paris, the British and French representatives in effect told Secretary of State John Foster Dulles "It's up to you to get a bearable settlement of the mess in the Middle East."

The warning served to underline again the extent of an American responsibility whose very existence is not even realized by most Americans. The responsibility very plainly exists, all the same.

The nature of the responsibility is simple. Not without self-righteousness, we told our allies and the Israelis that their way of safeguarding their own vital interests in the Middle East was wrong. We argued that the right way was by adopting United Nations resolutions and being nice to Egypt's President Gamal Abdel Nasser. We labored successfully to transform Nasser's humiliating military defeat into a political victory.

Four Things to Be Done.

In these circumstances, the British and French, and the Israelis too, rather understandably argue that responsibility for safeguarding their vital interests has now passed to us. This means, in effect, that through the United Nations, by prayer or by pressure, the American Government has got to get four essential things done in a reasonable time.

First, the canal itself must be rapidly cleared. Second, the broken pipeline from Iraq across Syria must be restored to use. Third, President Nasser must be persuaded to accept a system of Suez canal management offering at least modest guarantees to the users. Fourth, passage of Israeli ships through the canal must be guaranteed, and arrangements must be made for the Gaza strip that will protect Israel against future attacks by Egyptian guerrillas.

The signs are clear already that getting these things done is going to be inordinately difficult, if not actually impossible. In our dealings with President Nasser, we have imitated the kind of bridge player who runs out all his aces in the first leads, and so leaves the opposition in total control of the hand thereafter. We have pressured the British and French into doing the same.

Israel Holding One Ace.

Only the Israelis have obstinately insisted on keeping at least one ace in hand. They have refused to evacuate the Gaza strip until they have something more solid to go on than President Nasser's highly unspecific professions of good will to the American Ambassador in Cairo.

Meanwhile, the Egyptian government is plainly in no hurry to get the canal open rapidly. It has been taking the position that negotiations about the future status of the canal cannot even begin until the United Nations force has actually left Egypt.

Qualified Egyptian spokesmen have further insisted that free passage of the canal by Israeli ships cannot possibly be permitted—although this will amount to defiance of the United Nations. And spokesmen of the Syrian government have said that the oil pipeline cannot be repaired while "there are foreign troops on Egyptian soil," thereby meaning United Nations troops.

The pattern is all too clear. The American government impulsively took a leading role in rescuing President Nasser, without asking him for a single commitment of future co-operation. And now Nasser, who has played his own relatively weak cards with a skill worthy of a bridgemaster, has pretty well gained full control of the hand; and he is not going to co-operate.

On top of this, Nasser some time ago mounted an all-out attack on the pro-Western government of his enemy, Nur I Pasha, in Iraq. The cutting of the trans-Syrian pipeline, which automatically cuts off most of Iraq's oil income, is part of this attack.

A Defense From Southwest

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

This is in reply to a letter in this column Dec. 7 and another a few days later. Both stated there is an overemphasis on extra-curricular activities in high school, especially overemphasis on a musical production in our public schools, and that these activities interfere with regular school work.

We are convinced that these extra-curricular activities are definitely beneficial to the students. Since this is an outgrowth of work done mostly in the regular classes it does not interfere with academic studies.

In checking the grades of 22 students who took the leads in our recent operetta we find their grades in all subjects far above the average student's. Therefore, we do not feel that their studies have been neglected because of overactivity in the musical field.

Also, checking the grades of our varsity basketball squad we again find that the average grades of our players are considerably above the average student's, proving that these extra-curricular activities do not interefere with scholarship.

Extra-curricular activities keep our good students occupied, give them a sense of achievement under excellent leadership, and prevent delinquency. We definitely favor them!

All in the Point of View

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Reader William D. Coburn's remark, "A Southern Democrat is as good as a Republican," is well taken. But to be specific, there are many of us who think he is better.

Devil's Brew Brewing?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

What huge devil's brew is bubbling at this sacred season?

An Austrian friend writes me from Vienna: "Caused by the Hungarian affair, public opinion is much more anti-American and anti-western than even yourself imagine! The only consolation for America may be that the Russian policy also lost its mask. . . . But now the remainder of faith in western political slogans is destroyed. . . . From afar people are continuously stirring up by radio and propaganda in the name of freedom and Christianity, but when a little one stands up and sheds his blood the big American disappears. . . . Hungarian refugees all told me that Hungary is disappointed about America."

A veteran correspondent has cabled that plans have been laid for revolt in East Germany and that weapons are being supplied from West Germany. A columnist reports that Chiang Kai-shek is cacheing arms in Communist China. Let us ask ourselves whether either of these things could happen without the knowledge and connivance of American officials.

Should we not celebrate the birth of the Prince of Peace by urgently demanding of our policy-making officials an immediate discarding of such policies?

Road to Understanding

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I have just had the pleasure in looking through and reading the Italian supplement of the Dec. 16 Post-Dispatch.

This feature was highly interesting and very educational. I don't think the average American had any idea that some of these foreign countries have banks as much as 400 years old.

This kind of information should be in the hands of every pupil in the country, as it surely would lead to a better understanding of these countries and their people.

Popular Treaty Making

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I was glad to read the Post-Dispatch reprint of the Louisville Times on the Bricker amendment. I thought that the only newspaper opposing the Bricker amendment was the Post-Dispatch.

But the Times uses the same vague arguments and suggests some diabolical plot is afoot in turning over the power to make treaties to the American public.

While I am not a subscriber of the Louisville paper, the caliber of this one editorial would indicate that it is editorially supporting a city manager form of municipal government, unicameral state government, strong federal control of internal affairs, federal aid to education, public housing for the working "class," and the whole gamut of liberal views. They have probably found that while this tripe doesn't help the country it sure sells newspapers.

The Louisville Times describes the Congress of the United States as a little band of blind men who would dare to ask for the power to chart the nation's destiny.

The public isn't excited about the Bricker amendment because they always believed that the Congress was the seat of our government and didn't know that the executive branch had gradually usurped the powers of the Congress.

The Bricker amendment only returns the power to make treaties to the people. What have you and the Louisville Times to fear from allowing the citizens to make their own treaties?

Christmas Eve

Rochester is hardly one of England's greatest cathedrals. But with no more than a suggestion of stone lace on its West front, just a bit of lace caught on a knight's visor, it has Norman ruggedness. Its solid walls and massive central tower suggest one of the Conqueror's mounted retainers guarding the old Dover road to London.

It comes to mind this time of year because it was on the day before Christmas that Charles Dickens wandered up and down its aisles and discovered the tomb of Richard Watts, "with the effigy of worthy Master Richard staring out of it like a ship's figure-head." And the effigy pointed Dickens's way to a quaint old door over which he read:

RICHARD WATTS, Esq.
by his Will, dated 22 Aug. 1579
founded this Charity
For Six poor Travellers, who being neither ROGUES, or PROCTORS,
May receive gratis for one Night,
Lodging, Entertainment, and Fourpence each.

The energetic Dickens soon learned that the substantial building provided for the six travellers had been taken over by those entrusted with its management. Its dining room had been set aside for board meetings, and the chambers were occupied by the housekeeper and her daughter. Chill and crowded sleeping quarters for the travellers had been provided in a little gallery at the back, and the board was considering taking off a bit of the yard to build a sitting room of sorts. Meanwhile the fourpence were being distributed, but the money no longer bought much food. Entertainment? Well, what do people expect?

On this particular Christmas Eve, however, Dickens took charge—and this we may believe even though he pretends he is telling only a story. He was able to persuade the housekeeper, since Christmas comes but once a year, to let him entertain the travellers in the house this night. So from the inn came turkey and beef, sauces, vegetables and sundries. And Dickens himself mixed the wassail which, he admits, was "a glorious jorum."

Charles Dickens, of course, was a great one for Christmas, but he was an odd one, too. He published a weekly, "Household Words," for which he wrote a Christmas story every year. But he had the notion that Christmas stories should be about ghosts and ghouls. He even made a bargain with Wilkie Collins, spook-ster extraordinary, to help him with some of the stories. Feeling that Christmas is more enjoyable without a touch of the weird, we need not read these stories tonight. But Dickens started the series with a story—or rather an essay—describing a Christmas tree and the little tapers and bright objects on its boughs:

> There were rosy-cheeked dolls, hiding behind the leaves; and there were real watches (with movable hands, at least, and an endless capacity for being wound up) dangling from innumerable twigs; there were French-polished tables, chairs, bedsteads, wardrobes, eight-day clocks, and various other objects of domestic furniture (wonderfully made, in tin, at Wolverhampton), perched among the boughs, as if in preparation for some fairy housekeeping; there were jolly, broad-faced little men, much more agreeable in appearance than many real men—and no wonder, for their heads took off, and showed them to be full of sugar-plums; there were fiddles and drums; there were tambourines, books . . . guns, swords and banners . . . imitation apples, pears, and walnuts, crammed with surprises; in short . . . there was everything and more.

Most of us will be glowing beside such a tree tonight and, like Dickens, our thoughts may be drawn back to the trees of our childhood, indeed to all the Christmas trees and all the Christmas gifts we can remember. Could there be a more delightful way of composing an autobiography? From dolls and lead soldiers, memories will move to mechanical building sets and footballs; from books in which "A" was for Apple and "Z" was for Zaney to Tom Swift, and then Becky Sharp.

A little of the wonder will wear off, no doubt, as we reach slippers and scarves, but by then personal recollections — especially of friends gathered at gay Christmas parties—will become more important than what's on the tree, or under it. Each bough on this memory-tree may stand for a year, yet as we move from one to another there will be no diminution in the richness of Christmas.

The ribbons may come off the fancy-paper packages with a little less eagerness. But the candles will burn as brightly as ever. The wreaths will be as heavy with red holly and blue juniper. The carols will be as clear. Each bough will bring greater warmth, deeper joy.

And so we wish you such another Christmas, and with the oldest greeting of all: Peace on earth to men of good will.

Keep This Alarm Clock in Japan

Anybody who has had his morning sleep disturbed by a crowing rooster on the farm, reveille bugle in the Army or honking motorists in the metropolis, will be alarmed by a report from Japan.

Geneticists there, experimenting with cross-breeding, have produced roosters that can awaken farmers with a non-stop alarm clock crow of 15 to 20 seconds. As we remember the American rooster, its ordinary three or four second cock-a-doodle-do was sufficient.

Shakespeare well described that barnyard salutation to sunrise:

> The cock, that is the trumpet to the morn,
> Doth with his lofty and shrill-sounding throat
> Awake the god of day.

It would be all right if roosters with such stentorian voices were kept in Japan but if they came over here, they would be a bigger nuisance than Japanese gold fish and a bigger pest than the Japanese beetle. Ordinarily we are for low tariffs but in this case we think something should be done to guarantee a high duty on any feathered Japanese alarm clocks.

Fewer Acres, More Bushels

From Iowa comes another reminder of how difficult it is to control production of surplus crops by reducing the acreage planted to them.

In some parts of Iowa, as in Missouri, 1956 was a tough drouth year, following several years of abnormally low moisture. Yet the state's corn production averaged 51 bushels to the acre—2.5 bushels more than in 1955 and nearly a bushel an acre above the average for the past 10 years.

Iowa farmers in 1956 planted 5 per cent fewer acres to corn, and yet harvested just about as many bushels as they did in 1955. Many of them, it should be remembered, have been staying out of the federal corn program which requires a cut in acreage. But the steadily increasing yield of new hybrids was enough to offset drouth and a voluntary reduction of acreage, and over the long run it probably would be enough to offset acreage cuts under a federal program. That has been the experience with other crops. When surpluses pile up, acreage controls are inevitable in an effort to avoid creating new surpluses. But experience shows that they offer no permanent solution to the farm problem.

The Missing Element

A congressional review of "tight money" and all the ramifications of national economic policy will be very much in order when Congress meets next month. The key to the controversy was indicated by William McChesney Martin Jr., board chairman of the Federal Reserve System, in his interview with the Post-Dispatch when he readily conceded that high interest rates are not only hurting individuals and small business, but will delay or even prevent the construction of needed schools, hospitals and highways.

In a period of full employment which is tending always to spill over into inflation, interest rates have to be high and credit policy calculated to apply steady brakes to over-expansion. When the brakes are on, some individuals and some businesses are bound to be hurt. Yet to release the brakes and let inflation rip would hurt a great many more. Mr. Martin and his associates are exactly right, therefore, in trying to hold the price level and to keep demands for goods and services in rough balance with the supply of labor and resources available.

But when this has been said only half the problem has been dealt with. Given the need for a balance between total demands and total resources, there is also a need for distributing productive effort in the most desirable way, and this is something that present credit policy does not begin to cope with.

New schools are badly needed now, not 10 years hence. The highway system urgently demands overhaul now. There are unpostponable needs for new hospitals, new homes, and other facilities that contribute to public welfare. If it is true that the nation can have only so much of all these things in one period, it is also true that we need some way of allocating resources to make sure that the most urgent demands, from a social point of view, are satisfied.

To say otherwise is to suggest that many of these needs for schools and highways and hospitals can be met only in times of depression, when the economy is not fully employed by the private demands of consumers and business. But some of the needs cannot wait too long. We must find a way to meet them in a period of full employment—and find it without pushing prices and costs into a disastrous upward spiral.

A country which has enough steel to waste on over-sized automobiles with useless tail fins cannot afford to admit that it lacks the steel for schools and hospitals. A credit and fiscal system that supplies labor and resources for the first but not for the others has something seriously lacking.

City and County Contrast

The City of St. Louis can now list 33 projects completed under the 1955 bond issue, with 21 other projects under construction and seven planned. Thus in a year and a half the city has used nearly one tenth of the $110,639,000 bond issue, and of course this is only a beginning.

Congratulations are due the city administration for its sound planning and alacrity in achievement. And by comparison the government of St. Louis county deserves no credit at all.

More than a year ago, county residents approved a $39,712,000 bond issue, including some $25,000,000 in road projects. But after a year, construction work had not started on one road project, and none of the needed right-of-way had been acquired. In fact, except for the purchase of voting machines, the county could claim next to no progress on its bond issue.

As a mark of public leadership, and as a mark of the comparative efficiency of city and county administration, this contrast speaks for itself.

Beefing Up the Show

Congressional investigators, especially the members of the House subcommitte on aggression, have added such a heavy touch of melodrama to their proceedings that these seem closer to "The Perils of Pauline" than to a serious search for facts.

A few days ago two Hungarians gave the committee evidence about deportations to Russia. The witnesses used assumed names and wore headdresses resembling a neurosurgeon's bandage, not to mention white masks which more or less concealed their faces. But pictures were promptly sent out to all the nation.

This was by no means an isolated instance. For example, at the committee's hearings in Cleveland last August a Mr. Z appeared in a black hood which made him look like a medieval hangman. In New York, a Madam X was questioned while she sat behind a screen. A masked man also was called to the stand in Detroit. And the Senate Internal Security subcommittee has been putting on the same act.

We freely concede that some refugees from Communism must be careful lest by their words or deeds they imperil friends or relatives still on the other side of the Iron Curtain. Their solicitude demands respect. But such individuals can be heard privately. To the best of our knowledge, congressional investigators are not nearly as set against executive sessions as they might be.

If prudence is in order, let there be real prudence. Actually, the testimony given under an assumed name and from behind a mask cannot be truly impressive to those who know nothing about the identity and credibility of the witness. The touch of melodrama hardly enhances the investigators' work. The nickelodeon manner may draw a bigger crowd. But what does that have to do with the work in hand?

How Montreal Handles Snow

It's that season again—the time of year when St. Louisans habitually take to trembling at the thought of what an inch of snow on a normal working day might do to the flow of traffic. Bitter experience has taught them it can do plenty. The recent ice storm struck early Saturday, a free day for most people, and so did not present the disastrous conflict between traffic and the weather that St. Louis so frequently experiences.

Montreal has the prescription for wintertime peace of mind. The Canadian city suffers from (or enjoys, depending upon your age) the heaviest snowfall each winter of any metropolis larger than 1,000,000 population, but it has never had a day in recent years when a storm halted home milk deliveries. An immediate start is what counts. "If you don't keep ahead of a snowstorm you're lost," Montreal roads' director warns.

That ought to suggest a course of action to the responsible department head in the St. Louis City Administration. If St. Louis can keep ahead of the snow on such main arteries as Gravois, Natural Bridge and the Express Highway, it would be something in the nature of a municipal victory over nature.

The Prayers of Great Religions

Illustrating the Brotherhood of Man at Christmas Time

THE PRAYER OF ST. FRANCIS

From the Roman Catholic Church

Lord, make me the instrument of Thy peace.
Where there is hatred, let me sow love;
Where there is injury, pardon;
Where there is doubt, faith;
Where there is despair, hope;
Where there is darkness, light;
Where there is sadness, joy.

O Divine Master,
Grant that I may not so much seek
To be consoled as to console;
To be understood as to understand;
To be loved as to love.

For it is in giving that we receive.
It is in pardoning that we are pardoned.
It is in dying that we are born to eternal life. Amen.

PRAYER ON ENTERING THE SYNAGOGUE

From the Jewish Prayer Book

How goodly are thy tents, O Jacob, thy dwelling places, O Israel! As for me, in the abundance of thy loving-kindness will I come into thy house: I will worship toward thy holy temple in the fear of thee. Lord, I love the habitation of thy house, and the place where thy glory dwelleth. I will worship and bow down: I will bend the knee before the Lord, my Maker. May my prayer unto thee, O Lord, be in an acceptable time: O God, in the abundance of thy loving-kindness, answer me with thy sure salvation.

THREE REFUGES

The General Vow for Mahayana Buddhism

Hard is it to be born into human life. We now live it. Difficult is it to hear the teaching of the Buddha. We now hear it. If we do not deliver ourselves in this present life, no hope is there ever to cross the sea of birth and death. Let us all together, with the truest heart, take refuge in the Three Treasures!

I take my refuge in the Buddha.
May I with all others awake in His Great Way and aspire to the unsurpassed Bodhi Mind!

I take refuge in the Law.
May I with all others diligently learn the Law, so that wisdom becomes like the sea!

I take my refuge in the Brotherhood.
May I with all others melt into happy union and be unhindered in all ways!

Hard is it in myriads of ages to meet this unsurpassed and wonderful Law. We now see, hear, and uphold it. May we well attain the true meaning of the Tathagata!

(Bodhi: wisdom; Tathagata: the Perfectly Enlightened One.)

OPENING CHAPTER OF THE KORAN

Part of the Moslem Daily Prayer, said five times daily, facing Mecca

In the name of the merciful and compassionate God.

Praise belongs to God, the Lord of the worlds, the merciful, the compassionate, the ruler of the day of judgment! Thee we serve and Thee we ask for aid. Guide us in the right path, the path of those Thou art gracious to; not of those Thou art wroth with; nor of those who err.

A GENERAL THANKSGIVING

From the Book of Common Prayer; The Protestant Episcopal Church

Almighty God, Father of all mercies, we, thine unworthy servants, do give thee most humble and hearty thanks for all thy goodness and loving-kindness to us, and to all men. We bless thee for our creation, preservation, and all the blessings of this life; but above all, for thine inestimable love in the redemption of the world by our Lord Jesus Christ; for the means of grace, and for the hope of glory. And, we beseech thee, give us that due sense of all thy mercies, that our hearts may be unfeignedly thankful; and that we show forth thy praise, not only with our lips, but in our lives, by giving up our selves to thy service, and by walking before thee in holiness and righteousness all our days; through Jesus Christ, our Lord, to whom, with thee, and the Holy Ghost, be all honour and glory, world without end. Amen.

Between Book Ends

Razor Sharp Ribbing

GO IN BEAUTY, by William Eastlake. (Harper, 279 pgs., $3.50.)

The human comedy rarely finds an interpreter who mingles a tongue-in-cheek amusement with the lonely story of man's life and death, laughing at man's foibles while sensing the tragic impermanence of human yearnings. Although what William Eastlake has to say in this, his first novel, doesn't come through clearly, he exhibits a whole attitude toward his creations. He is entertained yet touched by their hurts and yearnings.

This quality of detached, yet sympathetic irony carries a conviction that Mr. Eastlake has a gift to be cultivated and encouraged. For most young novelists today have to be deeply tragic and overcome with the uselessness of it all—and seldom know how to laugh.

In the Indian country of the West we find two white brothers, bound to each other by fraternal love and jealousy.

William Eastlake

There they grow up, there George rescues Alex from an old mine shaft. There Alex steals his brother's wife and flees with her to Europe. After books and success, he returns with Perette to the other side of the border, near and still so far from his beloved Indian country.

The love of the exiled pair completes its slow living death, and Alex comes to his own end. For all his wandering, only death can bring him home again to the brother he wronged—and to the land he loved. Consciousness of this unparalleled Western landscape runs through each page.

This is several novels in one. The surface story, founded in Freudian complex, runs deep in its revelation of the human need for requited love, of man for man, surpassing the physical passion of the sexes. On another level, it is a rollicking satire. In sure-footed writing, it traces the relationship of the modern Navajo, The People, and the whites whom they accept.

In the priceless take-off on the contemporary scene—the sure, perfectly timed episodes of the Hollywood director, the D. H. Lawrence cult at Taos, the Little Magazines and Art with a big A—is razor-sharp ribbing. A little of it may be too wise, especially an incredible tribe of smart Indians with even more incredible names of More-Wives-Than-Anyone and Quicker-Than-You and Coyotes-Love-Me. But mostly it's the driest, most irreverent and ribtickling humor to appear in a first-class novel for ages. COLLIER FORD.

A Dwindling Field

THE BEST SCIENCE FICTION STORIES AND NOVELS OF 1956, edited by T. E. Dikty. (Frederick Fell, 256 pgs., $3.50.)

Although it may have been noticed by only a few, the publication of science fiction has dwindled to only a fraction of what it was two or three years ago. A number of science fiction magazines went under last year including one that had been published since 1929. The anthologies that could be counted by the dozen before, have diminished to the point that Dikty's is one of the few that appeared this year.

It would be nice to be able to say that with the decrease in quantity there has been a gain in quality, but this anthology does not show it. The fifteen stories included have been drawn from seven different magazines and range from poor to good. It rather appears that certain of the magazines may be holding on to their best stories for their own anthologies.

However, for the science fiction enthusiast Dikty does provide an excellent review of the developments during 1956 in both science and science fiction, and appends a 13-page list of science fiction titles published in 1955. For the casual reader of science fiction there will probably be better bargains forthcoming. JOHN S. HARRIS.

THOMAS L. STOKES

Government Hides From the People

WASHINGTON.

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT AT ITS HIGHEST LEVEL here in the national capital is getting more and more insulated from the people.

Fewer and fewer avenues are open to the generally recognized means of contact between Government and its citizens in a democracy—newspapers, magazines, radio, television. This insulation was encouraged by the need for secrecy during war, by the "sheer size of the Federal Government," and by the number of confidential relations between Government and citizen, as pointed out by James Russell Wiggins, executive editor of the Washington Post, in a new book, "Freedom or Secrecy," which treats of this increasingly vexing problem.

Wiggins

The inquiring citizen or inquiring reporter "is no longer met by employes eager to explain what the Government is doing," he says.

Suspicious of Citizens.

"Government employes in the agencies dealing with the most routine civilian functions of Government frequently give the impression of being on guard. The natural curiosity of citizens inspires suspicion. There is a chill in the place of the easy accessibility of even 25 years ago."

How apt is his diagnosis can be testified to by any long-time reporter of Government here.

It seems pertinent to explore the problem at this time because the executive branch of our Government will continue to be conducted by the same general management under which this insulation has been intensified in the last four years, though it had its beginnings in previous Administrations.

The insulation is the harder to tear down because the Eisenhower Administration has been protected as has none other in this century, and it comes back into power with support from the overwhelming preponderance of the avenues of information, including newspapers and magazines.

Closed Door Accepted.

In short, the tendency to challenge and question the conduct of Government, traditionally the mission of newspapers, has been greatly lessened. Upon the media of information the public had come to rely to take the initiative in breaking down the barriers between it and Government. This is being done by committees of the press here and there, but on the whole the initiative incumbent upon the newspapers and other media seems lacking in force.

Perhaps another reason for the general acceptance of the insulation is that the new generation of news-gatherers working here has no knowledge of the open doors that were available hereabouts before World War II. The closed-door policy apparently seems normal and natural to them.

That is far from the case. The last Republican management of Government before the Eisenhower Administration—the Harding-Coolidge-Hoover era from 1921 to 1933—is, in retrospect, a goldfish bowl compared with what we confront today.

Every cabinet officer every week had two news conferences at which he could be grilled freely about everything that went on in his department, and lower officials were always available.

Warren Harding's Way.

That continued into the Roosevelt Administration in which, too, Franklin D. Roosevelt opened up his twice-weekly news conferences with free-for-all oral questions in a real cross-examination.

During the previous Republican regimes, 1921-'33, written questions had to be submitted in advance to the President, which he would or would not answer as he pleased. Reporters were given no right to raise their voices in direct oral questions.

This system was put into effect by President Warren G. Harding because of a faux pas he made one day in discussing foreign policy which brought Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes running in protest, his beard all aquiver. The written question system continued until President Roosevelt opened up the press conference to the free-for-all that it is today.

President Truman reduced the White House news conferences to one a week and, during World War II, there were fewer news conferences with Cabinet officers.

Press Conferences Rare.

In the Eisenhower Administration, news conferences with the President are on a very irregular basis. As for Cabinet members, only two meet the press in a general news conference with any regularity—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, once a week, and Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson, less often.

With the eight others, weeks pass without newspapermen ever seeing them. The only way you know they are still around is through the social columns. Some Cabinet officers occasionally see individual newspaper and radio-television representatives in private interviews. This Wiggins describes as "the device of the official," explaining:

"It is in control of the man who gives the answers. The public press conference belongs to the people and is in control of the men who ask the questions."

We are about to lose by default precious rights that took a long time, and lots of courage, to win.

DR. ROBERT ELMAN MEMORIAL SERVICES

To Be Held Thursday — Surgeon Died of Heart Ailment.

Memorial services for Dr. Robert Elman, St. Louis surgeon who was known internationally for his work on intravenous nourishment of surgical patients, will be Thursday at 4 p.m. at Sheldon Memorial, 3646 Washington avenue. The funeral will be private.

Dr. Elman, who was professor of clinical surgery at Washington University School of Medicine and chief of staff as well as director of the department of surgery at Homer G. Phillips Hospital, died of a heart ailment yesterday at his home, 4456 Maryland avenue. He was 59 years old.

In 1945 Dr. Elman received the $1500 Samuel D. Gross award from the Philadelphia Academy of Surgery for a monograph he wrote explaining his methods for injecting amino acids, plasmas and blood. His methods for restoring lost proteins to patients were announced in 1936.

The research was completed at Washington University with funds provided by the late Louis D. Beaumont, a founder of the May Department Stores Co. It was of importance in treatment of wounded in World War II and in handling of nutritional ailments, as well as in routine surgery.

When a healthy person eats foods containing proteins, the body converts the proteins into amino acids. Army surgeons found during the war that patients with stomach or intestinal wounds recovered more rapidly when amino acids were used to supply proteins to the blood stream.

Dr. Elman was an authority on pancreatitis, or inflammation of the pancreas. He also developed improved methods for treatment of burns through transfusions of plasma. He began his research on burns in 1935 following the Mill Creek sewer explosion in which five workers burned to death.

He was an advocate of early ambulation for surgical patients. In 1946 he reported on strikingly successful results with a series of patients who were encouraged to walk and eat as soon as possible after surgery.

Born at Boston, Dr. Elman attended Harvard College and then obtained his medical degree at Johns Hopkins University in 1922. He was an assistant in pathology at Rockefeller Institute for two years before joining the Washington University faculty in 1925. He entered private practice in 1928.

Dr. Elman delivered the annual Douglass Stubbs oration before the National Medical Association, an organization of Negro physicians, at Washington in 1954. He was the first white physician to deliver the oration. At the convention, Homer G. Phillips staff members and former residents and interns honored him at a testimonial dinner.

During his career, Dr. Elman worked to improve training advantages for Negro physicians and for removal of race barriers in schools and in city hospitals. He also took an active interest in City Art Museum and other cultural affairs in St. Louis, including the construction of the proposed Saarinen arch on the riverfront.

Dr. Elman was the author of

textbooks on surgery. He contributed frequently to the American Medical Association Journal, and was a speaker at the organization's conventions. He was elected president of the American Gastroenterological Association in 1955.

In 1948 Dr. Elman went to Europe as a member of a group of eight American physicians and surgeons on a medical mission sponsored by the Unitarian Service Committee. He received a medal from the American Medical Association in 1950. This year he was appointed to a hospital advisory committee by the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

Dr. Elman suffered his first heart attack more than a year ago. Nevertheless he continued his research on nourishment of surgical patients, and on physiology of the adrenal gland, and hormones of the adrenal gland, in various types of operative stress.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Minna Elman; his father and mother, Samuel Elman and Mrs. Bessie Elman of Miami; a brother, I. J. Elman, Cazenovia, N.Y.; and two sisters, Mrs. Lillian Reiner of Syracuse, N.Y., and Mrs. Mildred Brooks of Miami.

COUNTRY DAY SCHOOL GETS $132,000 GIFT

Money From Danforth Foundation and Family Is for Chapel.

A $132,000 gift has been contributed by the Danforth Foundation and members of the Danforth family toward construction and completion of the chapel at the new St. Louis Country Day School, 425 North Warson road, Ladue, it was announced today.

The gift is the first the foundation has made to a school other than a college, it was announced.

The chapel, already under construction, is located in the center of the campus. It will have a seating capacity of 450 on the main floor and room for about 50 persons in a small gallery. The architectural design is functional Georgian in keeping with the rest of the school, Ashby Harper, headmaster, said.

The inscription which will appear on the wall of the new building, to be named Danforth Chapel, recalls the late William H. Danforth's philosopsy, Harper said.

It states: "Given with the hope that those who enter here may acquire the spiritual power to aspire nobly, adventure daringly, serve humbly."

The foundation was established in 1927 by Mr. and Mrs. William H. Danforth to "serve the needs of young men and women and to emphasize the spiritual and cultural aspects of education."

Mr. Danforth, founder of the Ralston Purina Co., died at the age of 85 of a heart ailment last Christmas eve. His wife died last Sept. 2, also at the age of 85.

Mr. Danforth was founder and president of the National Christmas Carols Association. He and his wife gave money directly or through the Danforth Foundation for a number of chapels throughout the country.

DR. DOWNEY HARRIS COLLAPSES AND DIES

Developed Freeze Drying Method for Anti-Rabies Serum.

Dr. Downey L. Harris, widely known St. Louis pathologist and bacteriologist, collapsed and died last night on a bus parked in the Clayton Loop. He was 82 years old and lived at 4405 West Pine boulevard.

Best known for his work with anti-rabies serum, Dr. Harris developed the freeze drying method of preparing anti-rabies vaccine in the period from 1911 to 1913.

Dr. Harris's paper on the new method was given to the Pasteur Institute at Paris. Later, in 1923, a paper prepared by him on the subject was read to the League of Nations.

After obtaining his medical degree at the University of Michigan, Dr. Harris did postgraduate work in Berlin, Germany. He served his internship under Dr. Adolph Meyer, known as dean of American psychiatrists, at Worcester, Mass.

He began practicing in St. Louis in 1902, serving as city bacteriologist. Later he participated in developing the city's first program for compulsory control of rabies. Most anti-rabies vaccines are now prepared by his system.

Dr. Harris was a key witness in an investigation of the death of Edward Melendes, a Mexican waiter who died in July 1942 in a cell at Police Headquarters. He testified that an autopsy, performed some time after Melendes's death, disclosed Melendes had been savagely beaten. Dr. Harris was associated with Washington University in this period.

Dr. Harris served as professor of bacteriology at St. Louis University, resigning that position in 1913. From 1933 to 1943 he supplied the city's rabies control clinics with anti-rabies serum.

In 1930 he was cited on to treat seven children bitten by a rabid dog in Pine Lawn. Two who had developed rabies died. The others were given concentrated doses of Dr. Harris's serum and lived. This incident resulted in establishment of a St. Louis county health system based on recommendations of the United States Public Health Service.

In recent years Dr. Harris had been working with members of the medical staffs of St. Louis and Washington Universities in an effort to discover a virus injection against leukemia. Tests were in the preliminary stage.

Dr. Harris had continued in active practice, maintaining offices in the Metropolitan building at Grand boulevard and Olive street.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Olive Harris, and a son, George Harris.

Private funeral services were held today at the Alexander & Sons undertaking establishment, 6175 Delmar boulevard. The body was cremated.

Shaw's Garden Dendrologist to Visit Spain, Portugal, Italy, Southern France.

Frederick G. Meyer, dendrologist at Missouri Botanical (Shaw's) Garden, will leave here about March 1 on a plant hunting expedition that will take him to Portugal, Spain, southern France and Italy, he told the Post-Dispatch today.

"We are especially interested in some rare camellias that are unknown in this country but which might prove hardier than the present varieties we have. There is also a wild narcissus in Spain and Portugal that we hope to get."

The trip, expected to last about four months, is being sponsored by the Longwood Gardens of Kennett Square, Pa., in co-operation with the plant introduction section, United States Department of Agriculture.

Meyer received his Ph.D. degree in botany from Washington University in 1949 and, after 15 months spent on a fellowship in Great Britain, joined the staff of Shaw's Garden in early 1951. He lives at 2944 Milton boulevard.

Run for Cardinals on Ziggy's 'Favorite' Boner.

CHICAGO, Dec. 24.

SUDDEN-LIKE, as is always the case, a couple of guys aren't with us anymore. One is, or was, Bob Olin, who used to be light-heavyweight champion of the world. The other was Ziggy Sears, a colorful baseball umpire of yesteryear.

Once upon a time Ziggy was working a game between the Cardinals and Redlegs in Cincinnati. The year should be 1935, with Frank Frisch managing the old Gashouse Gang and Joe Medwick on first. The arbiters, as usual, had gone over the ground rules of which this was one:

"If a ball got past the catcher, it was in play. A base runner could take as many bags as he could make. . . ."

Johnny Vander Meer threw one to the next St. Louis batter, who fouled it off. The bat boy brought it back to Sears. He didn't stick it immediately into his pocket, because he thought Johnny was ready to throw again.

Thus the stage was set for Ziggy's favorite boner!

When Vander Meer cut loose again, the ball was high and got away from Catcher Gilly Campbell. Medwick took off for second. Campbell turned around and barked at Sears: "Give me a ball" . . . and Ziggy not thinking, handed him the spheroid he was holding.

Medwick kept going around second and a horrible light began to dawn on Sears. "Throw that ball down," he barked at Campbell. "It's not in play. Go get that other one against the stands."

Gilly reacted in part. He dropped the ball, but didn't go after the original. Medwick scored while the fans rolled in their seats from unrestrained laughter.

Out came Bill McKechnie, manager of the Redlegs. "Did the hitter foul that?" he asked. The embarrassed Sears said no: "I was just caught dreaming," he said truthfully. "The ball I gave Campbell doesn't count. The run does."

Then, just to make sure, Sears walked out to where Bill Klem was umpiring at first. "What would you say?" asked Ziggy. Klem was succinct. "You're the umpire-in-chief," he said. "You rule on it. . . ." So the decision stood.

Once Drove In 13 Runs In Texas League Contest.

SEARS was quite a character even before he took up umpiring. Once he was a left-handed left fielder with Fort Worth of his native Texas. In a single game he hit three homers, a triple, a double and a single, driving in 13 runs and threw out three men at the plate. "That was one of my best games," he modestly told a reporter afterwards. . . .

A leg injury (he was hit by a batted ball) forced Ziggy out of duty in the National League in 1943, just when he was due to receive a World Series assignment with a fee of $2500 attached. Five years later he quit for good and did some scouting for the Pirates around Texas.

He was a typical Texan in size and drollery. He was the guy who first told the story of the Texan visiting a Northern friend and being flown over Niagara Falls. "Bet you haven't anything like this back home," boasted the pilot.

Sears carefully surveyed the scenic beauty of the famous waterfall and then said:

"No, we haven't . . . but we got a plumber in Fort Worth who'd fix that leak in a hurry."

One night he was having a libation with friends and the conversation got around to mosquitoes. "I umpired some games in Jersey City," said one guy, "and I was almost bitten to death. Those mosquitoes must be two inches long."

Ziggy poured himself another brew and drawled: "You should come down to Texas sometime. We've got mosquitoes so big that they debate whether to eat you right there or carry you out behind the barn . . ."

Happy landing, to both Olin and Sears. . . .

Kansas Is Still No. 1; Illini 6th

NEW YORK, Dec. 24 (UP)—Kansas survived a scare by Wisconsin Saturday night and remained No. 1 in the United Press college basketball ratings today, but the San Francisco Dons fell out of the first 10 for the first time since 1954.

San Francisco, national champion the last two seasons, skidded from fourth to seventeenth. The Dons' record 60-game victory streak ended as they dropped three of five starts on their recent Midwest tour. It's the lowest the Dons have been in the weekly ratings since they popped into sixth place on Dec. 28, 1954, at the start of their drive to the 1954-55 national championship.

The ratings are based on games played through Dec. 22.

Kentucky Flashes Old Skill.

North Carolina, which has swept its eight starts, remained in second place but the 35 coaches who rate the teams made some changes in the rest of the top ten. Kentucky showed some of its old-time skill in whipping Illinois Saturday night, 91-70, and advanced from seventh to third place, which had been occupied by the Illini.

Illinois, which started the game at Lexington, Ky., with a 5-0 record, slipped to sixth. Southern Methodist, fifth last week, moved into fourth place with its 7-1 record.

St. Louis advanced from ninth to fifth in the wake of its 101-78 Saturday night triumph over Baylor. Louisville dropped from sixth to seventh although it closed out the weekend with an 85-75 victory over Notre Dame.

West Virginia (8-0) joined Kentucky in making the biggest advance, moving up from thirteenth to eighth. West Virginia handed North Carolina State its worst defeat in 11 years Saturday night, 107-79.

Aggies One Notch Higher.

Oklahoma A. & M. and Iowa State tied for ninth and Kansas State was tenth. Oklahoma A. & M. was tenth last week, Iowa State was twelfth and Kansas State was eighth.

Kansas, which trailed Wisconsin by 20-7 Saturday night at Lawrence, Kan., before rallying to win, 83-62, received 28 first-place votes after drawing 30 last week.

North Carolina drew three first-place votes and Kentucky two. Southern Methodist and St. Louis U. shared the remaining two first-place votes.

With points distributed on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis for votes from first to tenth place, Kansas received 325 of a possible 350 points. North Carolina got 267, Kentucky 246, Southern Methodist 160, and St. Louis 146.

Then came Illinois with 145, Louisville with 92, West Virginia with 81, Iowa State and Oklahoma A. and M. with 59 each and Kansas State with 41.

Warnings From Kentucky.

Baron Adolph Rupp and Charley Tyra, two of the state of Kentucky's leading basketball figures, produced warnings for all rivals today as the college teams prepared for a big holiday tournament spree.

Saturday night Kentucky proved it's ready for the Sugar Bowl competition and Tyra-sparked Louisville showed it's set for the Blue Grass Festival—two of approximately 20 tournaments on tap this week.

Rupp's Kentucky team, long one of the sport's top powers, finished twelfth in the United Press national ratings last spring. But the Baron's boys served notice it might be different this time by handing third-ranked Illinois its first defeat of the campaign, 91-70.

The easy victory enabled the Wildcats to win their Kentucky Invitation Tournament and Rupp's lads looked remarkably like the old-time clubs that made him basketball's "winningest coach." Illinois, ranked third last week, never had a chance after the Wildcats used their fast-break to take a 21-point lead in the first eight minutes of the second half.

Rupp Proud of His Boys.

"The boys looked especially good in beating Illinois," Rupp admitted as he looked forward to Kentucky's game with Virginia Poly Thursday in the first round of the Sugar Bowl Tournament at New Orleans. Vern Hatton led Kentucky against Illinois with 25 points.

Tyra smashed the scoring records for Louisville and the new Kentucky Fairgrounds Coliseum while making 12 of 16 field goals and 16 of 16 free throws for 40 points in an 85-75 victory over Notre Dame. The 6-8 Louisville center made a terrific impression on coach Jimmy Jordan of the Irish.

"He is far and away the finest center we've seen this year, or expect to see for the rest of the season," Jordan said. "I didn't realize he had 40 points but he showed me an amazing brand of basketball."

Tyra, who led the nation in rebounds last season, also found time to grab 18 off the boards against Notre Dame.

Kansas Now Has 6-0.

Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain scored 32 points while leading Kansas, the nation's No. 1 team, to an 83-62 triumph over Wisconsin. Kansas now has a 6-0 record.

It generally was a tough weekend for Big Ten teams. Ohio State, which had shared with Illinois the distinction of being the conference's only unbeaten teams, dropped a 75-71 decision to Tulane. Cal Grosscup, a former Purdue player, made 29 points for Tulane.

Iowa salvaged some Big Ten prestige by upsetting Kansas State, ranked eighth last week, 85-83.

California Barring McCoy For Life, Others Losing Licenses in Boxing Purge

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Dec. 24 (UP)—The California State Athletic Commission voted today to bar Los Angeles boxing promoter, Babe McCoy, from California boxing for life.

The Commission made the decision during a conference telephone call after they judged the wealthy promoter ordered seven fights thrown, managed boxers while a matchmaker and associated with known criminals.

Dr. Dan O. Kilroy, commission chairman, said McCoy ordered fights lost to third-ranked welterweight Art Aragon, now involved in a similar situation in Texas, to Harry Matthews in Tacoma, Wash., in 1950 and to Del Flanagan in Minneapolis, Minn., in 1951.

Kilroy described McCoy as "undoubtedly one of the most ingluential figures in the boxing world for a decade," between 1945 and 1955.

The document now goes to the commissioners for their signatures and then will be transmitted to McCoy.

Kilroy said "if he wants it (his matchmaking license) back he will have to go to court."

He said in his telephone conference with commission members "we considered the nine charges against McCoy, and the commission then made a motion accepting the findings of fact, accepting the determination of issues and accepting the decision as was presented to the commission members."

He said the decision said "the matchmaker's license . . . issued by the Athletic Commission to respondent Harry Rudolph, also known as Babe McCoy, is hereby revoked. . . ."

The charges were that McCoy instructed boxer Watson Jones to lose to Joe Cahut in Portland, Ore., in 1949; instructed Ira Huges to lose to Cahut in Portland in 1946; Jones to lose to Pat McCafferty in Topeka, Kan., and to Harry Matthews in Tacoma, Wash., in 1950;

That he instructed boxer Georgie Hansford to lose to Enrique Bolanos in San Antonia, Tex., in 1946; Tommy Campbell to lose to Art Aragon in Los Angeles in 1950 and Campbell to lose to Flanagan in Minneapolis.

The charges also alleged that McCoy associated with Mickey Cohen, "a notorious criminal and racketeer," and that McCoy lent money to Cohen and testified in his trial on income tax evasion.

Kilroy said, "I gained the impression that McCoy had a very tight control over who could box in Southern California and throughout a large part of the nation. He seemed to have contacts throughout the entire country."

Kilroy also revealed the commission's plans to refuse renewal on "about a dozen" other California boxing figures but did not name them.

Except for clear weather in northern Minnesota, skies were overcast in the North-Central States and the Canadian provinces; light snow was falling in northeastern North Dakota.

Early temperatures today ranged from 5 to 10 degrees below zero in northern Saskatchewan and southeastern Minnesota to the low 20s in southwest Alberta; in the North-Central States and Northern Plains the range was from near 10 below in extreme northern Minnesota to 20 in southwestern South Dakota and the low 20s in extreme southeastern Minnesota.

Partly cloudy to cloudy weather is indicated for all North-Central areas during the next 36 hours, with snow flurries in eastern Minnesota this afternoon, and tomorrow in North Dakota and the northern portions of South Dakota and Minnesota. Temperature changes generally will be unimportant.

Weill Back From Europe; Now Manages Young English Heavy

NEW YORK, Dec. 24 (UP)—Al Weill, evidently convinced Rocky Marciano is sincere in his announced retirement from the ring, is back from Europe with a new heavyweight title prospect.

Weill flew in from Paris late yesterday after a two-week tour of England, France and Italy. Principal reason for the trip was to obtain the guardianship and manager's contract on 20-year-old Dave Rent of Bootles, Eng.

Rent, amateur heavyweight champion of the British Isles, will have his first professional fight next month in Canada—at Toronto, Montreal or Halifax, the manager said.

"I have a four-year contract as guardian and manager," the pilot explained. I'll move him slowly like I did Marciano—and I have high hopes for him."

Weill also has high hopes for Solomon McTier of Montgomery, Ala., former national and international Golden Gloves heavyweight champion, who turned pro this year under the Weill banner and registered two knockouts in his two fights.

In addition, Al may take over another young English heavy when he receives his discharge soon for the English army. He did not disclose the name.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 24 (UP)—The Cleveland Indians baseball club announced today that all the Tribe's games next season will be broadcast by radio station WERE. Club officials said the new contract extends through the 1962 season.

U.C.L.A. and Michigan Play Features Here

By Robert Morrison

Happy holidays will be happier for St. Louis University Billikens and Washington University Bears if they can sweep the boards with winning efforts this week.

The Bills, shiny as a Christmas tree ornament with their new No. 5 rating in the United Press college basketball rankings, return to action Wednesday night at Kiel Auditorium against 13th-ranked U.C.L.A.

Immediately after that contest the Blue and White athletes will take off for Louisville where they have a return match against seventh-ranked Louisville U. in the opening round of the Blue Grass festival tournament.

St. Louis will carry a 6-1 record into its game with U.C.L.A., which also is 6-1 for the season. The Bills and the Bruins each added a victory Saturday when St. Louis beat Baylor, 101-78, and U.C.L.A. walloped Occidental, 93-40.

The night before, the Pacific Coast Conference team of Johnny Wooden had trounced the Missouri Tigers, 77-54. U.C.L.A.'s only setback was in a split with Brigham Young. St. Louis's only loss was early, to Ohio State, which was upset by Tulane Saturday, 75-71.

Louisville (5-2), which had been defeated at St. Louis by 86-52, came back with an 85-75 win over Notre Dame Saturday and is expected to be more difficult for the Bills Friday night on the Fairgrounds court.

The other Blue Grass tournament teams, meeting in the first round, are Duquesne (4-2) and Dayton (4-4). Dayton finished fourth and last in the Kentucky Invitation at Lexington when it was defeated Saturday night, 67-59, by Southern Methodist.

Washington University's Bears, who made it close in their fourth consecutive defeat, a 56-53 loss to San Francisco here Friday night, entertain Michigan of the Big Ten in the Field House holiday feature Saturday night.

The Bears will be trying to improve a 2-5 record but they may expect to have their hands full against Ron Kramer and Co. from Ann Arbor. Michigan has won four games and lost two, the record including a 90-75 win over Pitt Saturday. Michigan's two defeats were in the only games it has played away from home—at Wichita, 81-76, and at Nebraska, 73-60.

Akins and Walker to Meet in Jan. 8 Bout

BUFFALO, N.Y., Dec. 24 (AP)—Sammy Walker, veteran middleweight of Springfield, Mass., and Virgil Akins of St. Louis were matched for a 10-round bout Jan. 8 in Memorial Auditorium.

Iowa Lineman Is Injured in Auto Accident

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 24 (UP)—Jeff Langston, second-string left end of the Iowa Rose Bowl team, yesterday was reported out of the Jan. 1 game against Oregon State because of an injury in a car accident.

Iowa officials said the 19-year-old Iowa City (Ia.) player suffered a dislocated hip when a car driven by sailor Robert Day, 21, smashed into a pole on a freeway between here and Long Beach, Calif.

Langston's loss means Iowa will have only two left ends for the game — first-stringer Jim Gibbons and fourth-stringer Jerry Jenkinson. The number three man, Bob Hoffman, had to return home to Gary, Ind., earlier because of an injury to his father.

The sophomore player was returning to the team's headquarters at the Huntington-Sheraton Hotel here when Day apparently fell asleep at the wheel, Iowa officials said. Langston was asleep at the time and had his legs propped up. Day was reported to have suffered a minor knee injury.

Dr. W. D. Call, team physician, said the injured hip was set. He said Langston would be on crutches for "some time" after his release from Huntington Memorial Hospital.

Coach Forest Evashevski said it was to late now to try to shift another player as a reserve for the twice-weakened position.

Robinson Practices Side-Steps in Work For Fullmer Battle

GREENWOOD LAKE, N.Y., Dec. 24 (UP)—Sugar Ray Robinson indicated in his sparring yesterday he would use side-to-side tactics in defending his middleweight crown against Gene Fullmer's headlong attack Jan. 2.

The champion stressed side steps, circles and walk-aways in two rounds each with Gil Turner and Lee Williams. His left hooks and combinations were sharp.

Dr. Vincent Nardiello, attached to the New York State Athletic Commission and also Robinson's personal physician, visited camp and pronounced the champion in excellent condition. Nardiello recently suffered a heart attack.

Stewards Disqualify Winner; 200 Mexican Race Followers Riot

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 24 (AP)—About 200 persons rioted at the Hipodromo De Las Americas horse race track yesterday when officials disqualified a winner of the second race of a daily double.

Several were reported injured when the rioting fans poured onto the track, overturning an official's automobile, wrecking the jockey scales, and damaging railings and the parimutuel board.

An estimated 10,000 persons in the stands watched in amazement as the rioters, apparently backers of the disqualified horse, erupted when officials announced the change.

A horse named Charrasqueado came in first in the sixth race, with Danny's Grill second. Officials disqualified Cherrasqueado, named Danny's Grill the winner.

Richardson Winner.

BARCELONA, Spain, Dec. 24 (AP) — Hamilton Richardson, Rhodes scholar from Westfield, N.J., and Malcolm Fox of Baltimore, Md., moved up a notch in the international Christmas tennis tournament at Club Turo.

Richardson, favorite to win the title, defeated J. Gauthier of France, 6-0, 6-3, and Fox downed E. Casado of Spain, 6-1, 6-2.

Macauley Fined $50 for Two 'Mistakes in Fundamentals'

Although Coach Red Holzman was sharply critical of Easy Ed Macauley and fined him $50 for "two mistakes in fundamentals" in the Hawks' 95-93 loss to Boston Saturday, Owner Ben Kerner of the Hawks today said that the team in general had been playing good ball and was expected to get rolling following its long trip.

Holzman, whose job has been in jeopardy since the St. Louis entry in the National Basketball Association began to tail off several weeks ago, was especially displeased with Macauley for making a desperate heave at the basket from 70 feet away with the scored tied 93-93 and eight seconds to go in the game with the Celtics.

Easy Ed should have called time so that the Hawks could set up an out-of-bounds play to get one last shot, Holzman said. Instead, the wild shot went out of bounds, Bill Sharman scored on a jump shot and the Celtics thus gained their fourth victory in as many starts against St. Louis. What irks Holzman and Kerner is the fact that in the last three games with the Celtics, all away from home, the Hawks lost by a combined margin of six points.

The other error Holzman charged to Macauley in levying the fine following the TV contest was in letting Tom Heinsohn, a rookie, get away from him to take a pass from Bob Cousy and score the tying basket.

Kerner praised Chuck Share, Slater Martin and Jack McMahon for their play against Boston. "It was one of Share's best games," Ben said.

The Hawks will have Christmas dinner in New York before meeting the Knickerbockers at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. Then Holzman's men return to St. Louis to oppose Syracuse at Kiel Auditorium Thursday at 8:30 p.m.

Russell Gets Only 5 Points As Celts Lose

BOSTON, Dec. 24 (AP)—Bill Russell, who boosted San Francisco's Dons to a record-shattering college victory string and the United States team to the Olympic title at Melbourne, has yet to give Boston's N.B.A. club the help they expected.

With Russell connecting on only two of eight field goal attempts and one of five free throws for five points, the Celts lost a full game of their Eastern Division lead yesterday.

After second-place Philadelphia had tripped the New York Knickerbockers, 95-90, in an afternoon game, Boston blew a 95-87 decision to the Fort Wayne Pistons. In the circuit's only other action, the Syracuse Nats beat the Minneapolis Lakers, 107-97.

Russell, who scored six points in his pro debut Saturday, and Arnie Risen, Boston's other center, were held to a combined 10 points by the slick defensive play of the Pistons' Bob Houbregs and Mel Hutchins. George Yardley, Fort Wayne's big gun with 22 points, hit three straight field goals late in the game to put his team in front to stay.

Russell played about 20 minutes. Teammate Bill Sharman, the free-throw whiz, hit on 10 of 10 charity tosses.

Neil Johnston scored 26 points and Paul Arizin 24 to lead the Warrior's attack. Johnston snapped a 90-90 deadlock with a layup as New York was held scoreless in the last three minutes. Philadelphia now is 2½ games behind Boston.

Johnston scored 15 of his points in the third quarter, including the last 10 tallied in that period. The Knicks' Kenny Sears was sidelined in the second quarter with a knee injury suffered in a collision with Jackie Moore.

A last-minute flurry enabled Syracuse to move past the Lakers. Minneapolis led 84-83 in the final quarter but the Nats went on a 10-1 tear to pull away. Dolph Schayes of Syracuse was the game's high scorer with 27 points, while Clyde Lovellette had 23 for the losers.

Flam's Leg Meets Test, He and Seixas to Play Davis Cup Singles

One Great Scorer.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24.

AFTER Indian Ortega had outpointed Tony DeMarco in Madison Square Garden the other night, the Einsteins of the State Boxing Commission consumed what seemed a long time tabulating the scores of the three officials on a master card. To liven up the period of waiting, Johnny Addie, speaking for "James D. Norris, president, and the International Boxing Club" wished everybody a Merry Christmas.

From somewhere in the crowd, a rich and resonant baritone responded:

"Drop dead!"

Greetings of the season were all very well, but the customers wanted to know who had won. The judges couldn't have told them. Under a new mandate from Julius Helfand, the Little Caesar of the commission, New York judges retain no written record of their scores, aren't supposed to remember how they voted, and are forbidden to answer if asked to explain their judgment.

From this we may safely conclude that all evil has been eliminated and all sinister influences scrubbed out of boxing in New York. History has taught us that each new commission chairman rides into office on a white charger of reform, lays about with lance and quarter-staff until he has put the powers of darkness to flight, then settles down to harmless little doodles calculated to louse up the scoring system.

Confusion Multiplied.

HELFAND seems to have completed the Derby distance. Papers have run through entire editions lately without once mentioning the name of Frankie Carbo, and the chairman has arrived at the doodling stage.

Under the plan recently put into effect, each official is provided with 10 little score cards for a 10-round fight. At the end of each round he writes down his score for that round and dispatches it by messenger to a deputy commissioner, who enters the three votes on a master chart.

When all 30 votes are in the deputy tabulates the scores consuming such time as his mathematical proficiency requires, and forwards the result to the announcer, who relays the information to the fans. The judge never sees his ballots again and, unless he has a rententive memory, may be astonished to learn from the announcer which fighter got his decision.

With only his memory to fall back on, a judge might be hard put to find an answer if the press asked how he arrived at his decision, but that is no inconvenience because Helfand has gagged the judges. "You know as well as I do," the chairman has told his officials, "that they (the newspapermen) are just a bunch of eager beavers."

Occasion of Sin.

UNDER the old system a judge kept his round-by-round score on one card, counted up rounds and points when the fight was over, checked the winner and delivered his decision. Now and then he added incorrectly; it remains to be seen whether the deputy, with three sets of scores to compute, will be less liable to human error.

Aim of the new method is to remove all temptation to alter the score of a round. An official might wish to make such a change to rectify an error, or because he was incompetent and lacking in conviction.

The principal objection to the revised system is the fact that the commission deemed it necessary. Setting up new "safeguards" seems clearly to imply a lack of confidence in the officials, and if the commission has little faith in its appointees, then that of the public is unlikely to be stronger.

Why must measures be taken to prevent the alteration of scores during a match? Because the judges are incompetent or dishonest? Then what are they doing on the job?

Next to Last Word.

IT is an article of faith that when a fight goes the distance the decision of two judges and one referee be final. This needn't necessarily be so now, because the judges and referee no longer add up their own scores.

At the end of a bout a judge might have a score of five rounds and five points for each man and wish to cast his decision for the one in white trunks on the basis of aggressiveness or defensive skill or some other consideration. Or his card might give five rounds to one man and four to the other with one even, but show such a plurality of points for the second man as to justify calling him the winner.

In both instances, this discretion is permitted to the judge by the rules, but with the card no longer in his hands he cannot use his discretion. This the rules are nullified in part, and it becomes the deputy commissioner, not the judge, who renders the final decision.

What it comes down to is this: Any scoring system is satisfactory when officials are honest and competent and none is of any value if there is incompetence or dishonesty.

U.S. Star In Snappy Workout

ADELAIDE, Dec. 24 (AP)—California's Herbie Flam definitely will join Vic Seixas as the United States's singles hopes Wednesday when the Davis Cup challenge round gets under way, Coach Bill Talbert announced today.

The draw for the forty-fifth renewal will be held at 1:30 a.m. (St. Louis time) Christmas day. Cup play begins Wednesday afternoon and ends Friday.

After watching Flam whip through a stiff practice session against pro star Tony Trabert, Talbert said there was no doubt in his mind about Flam's ability to go the distance against either Lew Hoad or Ken Rosewall.

"There never was any doubt as far as I was concerned," Talbert said. "Herb was favoring his leg yesterday only because he did not want to hurt it. But he looked fine today and I could not be happier about him or Seixas."

Good Report by Trabert.

Flam's service this afternoon zipped across the net and he seemed to be hitting the ball with more authority and power than he has since practice sessions started here last week.

Some question had arisen yesterday when Flam came back from a workout and asked to have his leg treated by the team trainer. But he said his leg is now fine and he has no complaints.

Trabert said the spirit and drive shown by both Seixas and Flam was "absolutely great."

"If they go at today's pace during the Cup, they could give the Aussies trouble," he said.

Over in the Australian camp, Coach Harry Hopman has his boys razor sharp and tennis experts here say Lew Hoad is playing better and hitting the ball harder than he has in recent weeks. Yesterday he concentrated on his three-quarter speed serve against young Ashley Cooper.

Hoad and Ken Rosewall are the key men expected to lead Australia to its second straight 5-0 victory over the United States.

Seixas Seems U.S. Best Bet.

The challenge-round competition between the two countries is a long standing affair, dating back to 1908. Each country has won 10 times in the showdown for the coveted cup. This is the tie-breaker.

The consensus here is that the marvelously conditioned Seixas, who now is playing some of his best tennis this year, is America's best bet to stop either Hoad or Rosewall and prevent an Aussie sweep. The feeling is that the 33-year-old Philadelphian, aware of the United States under choice role, will be more relaxed than the Aussies and can go all out.

Both Australians are cast as favorites and they also know that professional tennis promoter Jack Kramer, with cash contracts in his pocket, will be watching them from the Memorial Drive grandstands. Rosewall is believed to be ready to sign with Kramer immediately after cup play is completed. Hoad has not indicated immediate interest in a contract, but there are hints that he might weaken.

Kramer also hopes to sign Seixas. Vic is non-committal but prospects are good that he will join the pros.

French Offer Trabert Job as Davis Cup Coach

ADELAIDE, Australia, Dec. 24 (AP)—American professional star Tony Trabert said today he is considering a private offer to help train France's Davis Cup team next year.

Trabert said the proposal was made by some French tennis enthusiasts who are eager to help re-establish their country's reputation in the sport. France played in nine successive Davis Cup challenge rounds between 1925 and 1933 but has not got into a Cup playoff since.

Trabert said the job, if he accepts it, would take him to Paris in April for a period of from one to three months.

Pedigo Takes Furgol's Place At Westwood

Roger Pedigo, Ohio-bred golf professional and brother-in-law of the nationally-known tournament star, Dow Finsterwald, has been appointed head pro of Westwood Country Club to succeed Ed Furgol.

Rosewell Messing Jr., a Westwood board member who made the announcement, said he understood that Finsterwald "would be in St. Louis quite a bit and, although not playing out of Westwood, would be available there for exhibitions and lessons."

Furgol, who made a successful return to the tournament tour during the past season, had resigned his post here as of last October.

Pedigo, 28, graduated from Athens, O., high school and from Ohio University. In 1953 he was assistant pro to Bob Littler at the Athens Country Club. From 1954 through 1955 he was in the armed forces. While stationed at Ft. Sam Houston he was an associate professional and in Germany on military duty, he was an associate professional at a club in that country.

Pedigo's golf accomplishments include the Ohio state junior amateur championship in 1947 and 1948, the Mid-America intercollegiate title in 1950, Tri-State (Indiana-Ohio-Michigan) intercollegiate title in 1951, and the 1952 Rubber City Open low amateur honor. In 1954 he captured the Seventh Army title and in 1956 won a Long Island pro title.

Since his Army discharge he had been professional at the Inwood Country Club, Inwood, N.Y. He is married and has two children.

Mikes Outlast St. Pius, Spanish Club 7-0 Winner In Amateur Cup Soccer

By Dent McSkimming

Traveling by different routes, one taking a short cut and the other a strenuous, tortuous trail, Spanish Society and the Mikes won a pair of United States Amateur Cup soccer matches Sunday and reached the local semi-final round.

On a muddy field at Fairground, the County League leaders, Mikes, outlasted a doughty St. Pius team of the C.Y.C. League for a 4-3 victory. At Heman Park, the Spanish team of the Muny League splashed through the County A.C. club, 7-0.

The spirit of giving that prevails in this Christmas season must have carried away two St. Pius fullbacks, Kenny Funk and Jerry Knobbe. Each contributed a goal to the opposing team, the Mikes, by fouling in the penalty area.

And the Mikes, believing it is more fun receiving than giving, took advantage of the generosity. Right Halfback Mike Kearney of the County League team placed both spot kicks into the lower left corner of Goalie Jerry Schoer's citadel for two important scores.

Nienhaus Ties Score.

These two gift points enabled the Mikes to take a 3-1 first-half lead at the 24-minute point. Bobby Walters had scored from Ray Foster's pass early in the game and Kenny Nienhaus had tied it up with a header from Frank Palazzola's corner kick. Then came the two penalty kicks, only four minutes apart.

Thus, for a few minutes, it appeared that St. Pius would be shellacked. But the C.Y.C. team displayed great recuperative powers and before the halftime whistle sounded, Dan (Duke) McVey slammed a short shot right through the hands and legs of Goalie Jerry Kohler, making it 3-2.

The second half was even more thrilling, the spunky St. Pius players tying the score three minutes after the restart. This time an attack through Outside Right Palazzola got a bit of help from Nienhaus who sent the ball along to Bill Olliges who scored.

Then came a succession of errors by the forwards of both teams. In most of these lost opportunities it was just a case of wild shooting, but in some others, especially those mishaps by St. Pius forwards, the ball was just too deep in mud to be moved over the line. Five times Nienhaus and his helpers bogged down because they didn't have the strength to boot the ball six inches.

Gorski Gets Seventh Goal.

Footing was more firm at the north goal and there, at the 20-minute mark, Inside Right Joe Gorski finally blasted the ball past Schoer for the seventh goal of the game and what proved to be the winning tally for the Mikes.

Happy about the victory that puts his club into the local semifinals of the National Amateur tournament, Manager Mike Tamme was not completely satisfied with his team's performance. He thought his defense was too vulnerable.

"We gave them too many scoring chances," said Tamme. And he couldn't understand how his own forwards failed to make good on some close-in openings. But, the ground conditions were really bad.

Center Forward Tony Arias scored two of the Spanish team's goals; Outside Left Joe Perfetto two; Bernie Brown and Earl Doggendorf one each and Pete Sorber tallied from the penalty spot. Halftime score was 3-0 and the Municipal Leaguers were never in any apparent danger of defeat.

Furloughed Soldiers to Play.

Remaining quarterfinals of the Amateur Cup series will be played next Sunday in a doubleheader at Public Schools Stadium. There, St. Ambrose, with three vacationing servicemen available, will face Kutis I, and the ex-Simpkins team now Pattersons will oppose the reformed St. Louis Soccer Club (ex-Meramec).

Sam Sapienza, Gene Cucchi and Frank Ferrara, all home on furlough, will play for St. Ambrose, Manager Lou Farotto reports. It was St. Ambrose that knocked Kutis out of the United States Open Cup tournament last season, with these three players in start roles.

Schwaben of Chicago, in defeating the Serbian A.C. of Milwaukee, Sunday, has qualified to meet the Kutis-Patterson survivor in a western Open Cup semifinal. Schwaben, the team that eliminated the Simpkins last season in a similar western semifinal, scored a 2-0 victory over the Milwaukee team at Winnemac Park, Chicago. The Kutis-Patterson local final will be played Jan. 6 at Public Schools Stadium.

St. Ambrose turned up for next Sunday's Amateur Cup match by defeating Holy Rosary in a C.Y.C. league match, 4-2. . . . St. Louis S.C. and Pattersons won their Muny and Khoury league matches but Kutis was idle.

Siebert Stars In Mizzou Win

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 24 (AP)—The Missouri Tigers beat Southern California 76-69 Saturday night in the second half of a basketball doubleheader at Pan-Pacific Auditorium. In the first game U.C.L.A. smothered Occidental College, 93-40.

Missouri showed a reversal of form from its defeat Friday night by U.C.L.A. 77-54.

The Tigers dropped 17 out of 20 free thoows in the first half.

Missouri's Sonny Siebert had a 17-point first half, right behind Trojan Monte Gonzales's 18 points.

At halftime Missouri rested on a 41-37 bulge. Missouri boosted its lead by 10 points 12 minutes into the second half.

The officials were whistling merrily away and the Tigers were collecting at the free throw line, sinking nine straight free shots at one stage of play.

There were 51 fouls called in the game and Missouri counted 32 points from the free-throw line. Each team counted on 22 field goals.

Carter Totals 557 and Loses TV Pin Match

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Dec. 24 — Don Carter of St. Louis, had a tough time in his first bowling appearance since winning the National All-Star bowling tournament two weeks ago in Chicago.

Don, who had been sidelined for two weeks because of an infected index finger on his bowling hand, rolled only 557 for his three-game series on a nationally televised show from Faetz-Niesen Recreation in Chicago, losing by 148 pins to Eddie Kawolics of Chicago's Meistr Brau team, who shot 705.

"It was my worst series on alleys five and six here," Don said, "and I think it's only the second time I've been under 600 on the pair."

Carter seemed to have trouble gripping the ball. Most spectators thought the three-time all-star champion was throwing a much slower ball and as a result failed to carry the 10 pin on several occasions.

In the first game, Don rolled 205 as he more than matched a 5-7 split with a turkey in the last two frames. However, Kawolics took a 29-pin lead with a 234 game. Carter continued to have his troubles in the second game. He had a pair of 4-6 splits and only one double for 182, while Kawolics finished with 246. The St. Louisan shot 170 in his final game as he ran into an 8-10 and a 7-9 split. Kawolics doubled in the final frame for 225.

66 Harness Horses Recorded 2-Minute Miles During Year

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 24 (AP)—Eleven trotters and 35 pacers among the 14,622 horses that raced in 1956 accounted for the 66 two-minute races recorded, the U.S. Trotting Association (USTA) said. Trotters contributed 13 of the marks and pacers 53.

There were five more two-minute miles run this season than last, the USTA said. The figure is four short of the all-time record of 70 set in 1953.

Duane Hanover, a 4-year-old pacer, turned the trick six times, the fastest in 1:58. The pacer is owned by Pine Acres Farm of Garden City, N.Y., and handled by Billy Haughton.

The only trotter to win the mile in less than two minutes on more than one occasion is Scott Frost, a three-timer. Scott Frost was named "horse of the year" in a poll of 95 turf writers.

Dottie's Pick, a four-year-old pacing mare, was the year's fastest harness horse, with a 1:56.8 in a California time trial. Prince Victor and Galophone, both pacers, were timed at 1:58.2.

A 2-year-old pacer named Torpid set a new world's record for that age with three two-minute miles, one in 1:58. Torpid is the only 2-year-old to break two minutes more than once. Only seven 2-year-olds—two trotters and five pacers—have bettered two minutes in a mile run.

Gwin was assisted from the ring after taking a severe battering for six rounds.

Long Pass Gives Colts Victory

Unitas and Mutscheller Are Stars

BALTIMORE, Dec. 24 (UP)—The National Football League closed action on one of its most successful seasons yesterday and the windup game between the Washington Redskins and the Baltimore Colts served as a perfect example of just how close play was during 1956.

The Colts, battling uphill all the way, defeated the Redskins, 19-17, on a 53-yard pass play from Johnny Unitas to Jim Mutscheller in the closing game of the regular season.

The New York Giants and the Chicago Bears meet in the title game in New York's Yankee Stadium next Sunday.

A crowd of 32,994 turned out despite rain and fog to bring the Colts' home attendance to 238,471, a new club season record. The league as a whole set an attendance mark for the sixth straight year.

The game marked the twentieth time in 72 games this season that a game was decided by five points or less including two ties. Ironically, the Redskins, who won four games by three points or less, were on the receiving end this time.

The victory gave the Colts a 5-7 season record and fourth place in the Western Division. The Redskins wound up the season with a 6-6 record and third place in the Eastern Division.

Up until Mutscheller made his sensational catch, the Redskins were in command. Al Dorow had provided both Washington touchdowns on pass completions, one for 35 yards to Steve Meilinger in the second quarter, and the other to Tommy Runnels for 14 yards in the third period. Sam Baker, whose 65-yard field goal attempt just before the final gun fell short by 18 yards, booted an eight-yarder shortly after the game got underway.

The Colts got their first score in the second session, when Allen Ameche bucked over from less than a yard out and added their second early the final period when Lenny Moore ran seven yards.

The climax came when Mutscheller grabbed Unitas's pass in the end zone after the ball had been deflected by Norm Hecker of the Redskins.

The final league attendance totaled 2,856,999 for 72 games for an average game turnout of 39,666.

Parker Tells Why He Failed to Sign New Contract With Lions

DETROIT, Dec. 24 (UP)—Raymond K. (Buddy) Parker, after maintaining silence for three days, finally revealed his reason for not signing a 1957 contract with the Detroit Lions. Although the pact reportedly calls for $30,000, it doesn't contain the multiple-year clause Parker demands.

"Most of the coaches in the National Football League have contracts that run more than on year," Parker said. He added that some coaches, who win only three or four games a year, operate under the security of two- or three-year contracts.

And the Texan; who has guided the Lions to two world championships, three straight divisional titles, two second places and only one last place, feels his record calls for better treatment than a single year pact.

Since Parker left the Chicago Cardinals to coach Detroit, his clubs have won 48, lost 23 and tied two in regular season play.

Only Paul Brown of the Cleveland Browns, can show a better record among the N.F.L. coaches.

Tubbs and Dawson to Lead North All-Stars

MIAMI, Dec. 24 (INS)—Jerry Tubbs, All-America center from Oklahoma, and passing wizzard Len Dawson of Purdue, will lead the North All-Stars in the North-South football game Wednesday night in Miami's Orange Bowl.

The two players were elected co-captains of the Duffy Daugherty coached squad yesterday.

Both Daugherty and South Coach Art Guepe announced they will wind up preparations with a long drill today. Paige Gothron of Mississippi, was named the South's kickoff specialist.

Silver Skates Favorites

BEVERLEE SCHULZE

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.
DONNA WILKE

Speed skating coaches like to get their prospects started young, so Joan Gadd, who is in charge of the girls for the Silver Skates Carnival, is working extra hard with such standouts as Beverlee Schulze and Donna Wilke.

Little Beverlee, only 11 years old, will be a defending champion in the Skates Carnival the afternoon of Jan. 6 at The Arena. A favorite because she took the midget race in last January's event, Beverlee has won all four races in the city championship series this season, two 110-yard sprints and two 220-yard races. She lives in Overland and attends Harrison School.

Miss Wilke, a 13-year-old who goes to Gardenville School, has won two 220-yard races and the 440 for a 15-point total that puts her on top in the juvenile class. Susan Helbling is second with 12 points and Alice Van Vleet third with 10.

There will be no workout tomorrow at the Winter Garden because of Christmas, but the title races leading up to the Post-Dispatch-sponsored Silver Skates will be resumed Thursday evening.

Meanwhile, Bill Kelly and Dan O'Connor, Missouri Skating Association officials, are busy lining up entries from Chicago, Milwaukee, Detroit, Cleveland and other cities.

How to Get Your Silver Skates Tickets

TICKETS for the thirty-second annual Silver Skates carnival are now on sale at The Arena Ticket Office (West Tower), 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

The big speed-skating show of the season in St. Louis, including 23 races and four figure-skating events, will be held Sunday, Jan. 6, at 2 p.m. at The Arena. The Post-Dispatch again is sponsoring the event along with the Missouri Skating Association.

There is no increase in prices: Box seats, $2; Arena Circle $1.25 and $1.50, and unreserved 50 cents.

For mail orders, send requests with check or money order made out to "SILVER SKATES" to The Arena, 5700 Oakland avenue.

Hungary Would Stop Soccer Stars From Jumping Contracts

VIENNA, Dec. 24 (AP)—Hungarian soccer authorities will refuse to permit their coveted stars, who fled to the West, to play for other countries, it was announced today over the Budapest radio.

Hungary was runner-up in the last world soccer championship.

The statement was quoted from the newspaper "Esti Hellap" (evening news). It was attributed to Marcel Nagy, president of the temporary executive committee of the Hungarien Soccer Association.

By international agreement among soccer clubs, players may not play with foreign teams for two years without the consent of their former clubs.

Nagy said the ban would apply to leading members of the Hungarian national team now in the West—Ferenc Puskas, Gyula Grosics and Sandor Kocsis, whose wives have fled to Austria to join their husbands.

Houston Likely Site of Brown-Smith Rematch

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) Dec. 25—Joe Brown, world's lightweight boxing champion, is expected to defend his title against former champion Bud Smith in Houston in late January or early February.

Lou Viscusi, manager of the New Orleans champion, said Houston has been selected for Brown's first defense of the title. Viscusi said Cincinnati, Miami and New Orleans also were seeking the Brown-Smith rematch.

Brown won the title from Smith in New Orleans last August despite breaking his right hand during the fight.

"The doctors have released Brown and he has started training," Viscusi said. "He'll be ready for the Houston fight and will set up his training camp here."

Hockey Record.

Fred Glover of Cleveland scored at least one goal in 11 straight games in 1950-51 while playing with Indianapolis. It is still an American Hockey League record.

Four M.I.A.A. Teams Are in Holiday Meets

KIRKSVILLE, Mo., Dec. 24 (UP)—The defending champion Kirksville Bulldogs head the list of M.I.A.A. teams going into a week of holiday tournament play.

The Bulldogs have won three games and lost one. The other teams, with the exception of Warrensburg, are playing at a .500 clip or better.

Kirksville and Warrensburg both play in the Ottawa (Kan.) tourney Thursday through Saturday. The Bulldogs open against Oklahoma Baptist University at 7:15 p.m. Thursday and Warrensburg plays Kansas City University at 4 p.m. Other teams in the meet are Pittsburg, Kan.; host Ottawa; Washburn, and Drury.

Springfield plays in the Terra Haute (Ind.) Midwest invitational tourney starting Wednesday and Rolla plays at the Portales (N. M.) tourney, which opens Thursday. Maryville and Cape Girardeau both have a week of rest.

Former Prospector Collects $46,287 in Caliente 5-10 Pool

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex., Dec. 24 (AP)—A 72-year-old former prospector and miner from Aztec, N.M., hit the biggest strike of his life yesterday, a $46,287 payoff for a $2 ticket in the 5-10 handicapping pool at the Caliente racetrack.

George Hall, who picked five winners out of six races, had the only winning ticket in the pool. He claimed a North American payoff record, surpassing the $45,981 shared by four aircraft workers a few weeks ago.

Pinckneyville Gains Seventh Straight Win

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 24 (UP)—Elgin turned in an impressive win over Rockford West's defending state champion Warriors, and Pinckneyville, Collinsville, Herrin, Edwardsville and Springfield Lanphier all scored double wins in a generally successful weekend for top-ranked prep basketball teams.

Second-ranked Elgin's 103-79 win was its seventh of the campaign and established the Maroons as a clear favorite for the Big Eight Conference title. The loss was Rockford West's first in six games.

Top-ranked Pinckneyville added Moline to its string of victims Friday night, 52-30, then came back Saturday to dump Galesburg's seventh-ranked Silver Streaks, 52-49. The Pincks now have won seven straight.

Galesburg had handed Paris its first loss of the season Friday night, 58-52.

Eighth In Row for Herrin.

Collinsville's Kahoks, rated third in the state by the United Press coaches board, bowled over East St. Louis, 52-40, Friday night and belted Belleville, 72-58, Saturday night for their fifth and sixth straight triumphs.

Ninth-ranked Herrin clouted Centralia, 78-52, and Benton, 79-51, to run its record to 8-0.

Edwardsville, fourteenth in the ratings, survived two tight squeaks, edging Alton, 66-64, Friday and then shading Wood River, 63-61, Saturday.

Springfield Lanphier conquered Beardstown, 65-48, Friday, then clipped Lincoln, 57-55, Saturday for their fifth and sixth in a row.

Decatur had upset Lincoln, beaten only once until this weekend, 54-38, Friday.

Pekin, which has lost only to East Peoria, bounced back with victories over Danville, 73-60, Friday night and Washington, 77-52, Saturday.

Tenth-ranked Quincy won its own four-team weekend tournament, dumping Lewistown, 51-36, in the first round and knocking over Depue, 89-72, for the championship.

Gillespie Bounces Back.

Gillespie and Hillsboro, each beaten only once, by Collinsville and Pinckneyville, respectively, bounced back, the Miners dumping Benld, 69-46, and Hillsboro stopping Shelbyville, 59-51.

Peoria Central, off to a disappointing season start with two early losses, added its third straight win, 59-51, over Peoria Manual.

West Frankfort's Redbirds clipped Mount Vernon, 67-65, Saturday, while Paducah, Ky., nipped Marion, 65-63, and Centralia beat Harrisburg, 76-67.

Leading Bruins Lose To Blackhawks, 4-1

BOSTON, Dec. 24 (UP)—Just when things were going right for the Boston Bruins they ran into what may turn out to be their jinx team in the National Hockey League this season—the Chicago Blackhawks.

The Bruins, coasting along without star goalie Terry Sawchuk, saw their first-place lead shaved by a point when the Detroit Red Wings and the Montreal Canadiens, tied for second place, battled to a 3-3 tie, while they were dropping a 4-1 decision to the Hawks.

The Hawks, who shut out the Bruins earlier in the season, almost turned the trick again. However, Larry Regan averted the whitewash when he rifled a shot past goalie Al Rollins in the third period. Forbes Kennedy scored one goal and assisted on another to lead the Hawks to victory. Boston's lead now stands at three points.

In other action, the Toronto Maple Leafs moved to within two points of the fourth-place New York Rangers on the strength of two third period goals by Rudy Migay for a 3-1 win over the New Yorkers.

Germany 4, Belgium 1.

COLOGNE, Dec. 24 (UP)—Germany gained a 4-1 victory over Belgium in an international soccer match before 60,000 specators at Muengersdorf Stadium, yesterday.

OUTFLOW OF U.S. DOLLAR ASSETS SHOWS INCREASE

Foreign Holdings Up $1,300,000,000 in Nine Months as Trade Increases.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24 (AP)—Foreign holdings of gold and United States dollar assets increased by $520,000,000 in the third quarter of this year, the Department of Commerce reported yesterday.

The net ouflow of dollars in an expanding two-way volume of international transactions resulted in a rise of $1,300,000,000 in foreign holdings in the first nine months of the year, the department estimated.

This suggested that western Europe—except for Britain, which has been forced to borrow dollars heavily—came into the Suez crisis fairly well supplied with foreign exchange to spend on oil and other commodities required from the western hemisphere while the canal remains blocked.

United States payments abroad totaled $6,561,000,000 in the July-September quarter, a slight increase from the second quarter. This compared with foreign payments to the United States totaling $5,776,000,000 for goods, services and long-term investment in American enterprise.

Balanced for Quarter.

An estimated $265,000,000 of foreign payments were received here in transactions not yet recorded, the department said. This, when added to the $520,000,000 increase in foreign gold and dollar reserves, balanced the international account for the quarter.

In terms of annual rates, the outflow of dollars was $26,600,000 in the third quarter, up $1,400,000,000 from the previous quarter. Foreign payments to the United States moved up about $500,000,000 to a rate of $24,300,000,000 a year.

The rise in outgoing payments was attributed mainly to an increase in the outflow of investment capital by private concerns, to a total of $824,000,000.

The Commerce report said this was about four times the rate of a year ago and, for the most part, represented corporations' investment in foreign branches and subsidiaries.

Oil Firm Purchased.

This total included funds for the purchase of a British oil company for $176,000,000, purchases of Venezuelan oil concessions for $50,000,000, investment in a Canadian pipeline company totaling $45,000,000, and a $50,000,000 bank loan to France.

American imports of foreign merchandise rose by about $150,000,000, reaching an annual rate above 13 billion dollars.

SCIENTISTS WANT U.S. TO HAVE BOMB IF ONE CAN BE MADE

atomic bombs as quickly as possible. We agreed that Conant would call together at Washington a small group of us who were most actively concerned. The fight had now begun.

When Ernest Lawrence made his personal decision to devote the years ahead to building atomic bombs, it meant a sharp change in his pattern of life. The same was true of everyone who committed himself to the project. Our own family readjustments were typical. We had to rid ourselves of all extraneous demands and put ourselves on a Spartan regime.

I have always been one of those who must talk over important problems with his wife. Later, when the question of "clearance" for work on the atomic project arose, I explained that if they cleared me it would be necessary for them to clear my wife as well, for it would be unrealistic to suppose that I would keep from her matters that strongly affected me.

At this time I had the combined positions of chairman of the department of physics and dean of the division of physical sciences at the University of Chicago.

The morning after that fireside conference I looked up Samuel K. Allison, professor of physics at the university, who was concentrating on the study of uranium fission. He was much better acquainted than I with the problems of nuclear physics.

"To whom should I go to get the most reliable calculations on the critical size needed to set up a chain reaction in U-235?" I asked.

"No one can answer that question as well as Enrico Fermi," was his reply.

A few days later I called on Fermi in his office at Columbia University in New York.

Stepping to the blackboard, he worked out for me, simply and directly, the equation from which could be calculated the critical size of a chain-reacting sphere. He had at his fingertips the most recent experimental values of the constants.

Fermi's calculations bore out everything that Lawrence had said. Even the most conservative estimate showed that the amount of fissionable metal needed to effect a nuclear explosion could hardly be greater than a hundred pounds.

This amount of U-235 or plutonium one might hope to prepare.

On the train that evening I recalculated the critical size of a U-235 bomb using a simplified equation that I worked out for myself. Allowing for minor approximations, my results agreed with those of Fermi.

The search was gathering momentum.

Tomorrow: The Einstein letter to President Roosevelt and subsequent developments. Government aid hinders rather than helps work on atomic fission.

IRAQ ASSAILS INTERFERENCE BY EGYPTIANS

Premier Says Baghdad Will Determine Its Own Policy—Favors U.S. Joining Pact.

BAGHDAD, Iraq, Dec. 24 (AP)—Premier Nuri Said, Iraq's 68-year-old strongman, has served notice on Egypt and its "satellites" that the Iraqis themselves will determine what is good for them.

Iraq has been assailed frequently by Egypt, Syria and Russia for its membership in the Western-supported Baghdad pact, which also includes Britain. The attacks have been stepped up since the British-French invasion of the Suez Canal Zone.

Said called one of his rare press conferences yesterday to fire a counterblast. His eyes flashing, he called Egyptian President Nasser a dictator and said "there is no cause for him to criticize Iraq."

He said that the decision on whether Iraq adheres to the Baghdad defense treaty is a question within Iraq's sovereignty, adding:

"Iraq—the Parliament, public opinion, and the politicians—they are the right people to say whether the treaty is a good or bad thing for them."

Defends Pact.

The Premier recently defended the pact strongly as a shield against aggression. Other members beside Iraq and Britain are Turkey, Iran and Pakistan. Asked whether he thought the United States should join it, he said:

"It was your idea in the first place, and I had a long talk about it with Mr. Dulles and Mr. Stassen. I couldn't understand why you didn't join."

Iraq was put under martial law Nov. 1 to counter anti-government and anti-British sentiment in the oil-rich country. Asked when martial law would be lifted, Said replied:

"Iraq is more normal now. We do suffer from less oil production (due to the blowing up of Syrian pumping stations on the Iraqi pipeline to the Mediterranean). But there are no delays in our development program. We are watching Communist elements and non-balanced people who are playing into the hands of the Communists."

Said contended the main problem in a Middle East settlement was the plight of the Arab refugees from Palestine.

"The 1,000,000 refugees have no hope," he said. "They are waiting to see some justice done."

Parley Plan Rejected.

Meanwhile Arab diplomatic sources in Damascus, Syria, said that Syria, Egypt, Jordan, and Saudi Arabia had agreed to turn down Iran's invitation for a Middle East conference on disputes among Moslem states.

Informants said the four thought such a meeting would serve no purpose and might affect their policy of participating in no conference "aimed in fact at weakening their immunity from aggressive foreign pacts." Iraq, Turkey, and Pakistan have accepted Iran's bid.

Also in Damascus, a reliable source said Syria would ask Lebanon soon to hand over "runaway conspirators who prepared a plan to overthrow Syria's present regime." The authorities have arrested 47 Syrians on charges of preparing a pro-Iraqi coup. Among them is ex-dictator Adib Shishekly.

PRAVDA ASSAILS 'NATIONALISM' IN RED COUNTRIES

but to the Soviet Union and other members of the Communist camp who "have already embarked on the socialist path of development."

In its warning to the Poles not to raise nationalist goals too high, Pravda recalled Lenin's attacks on "narrow-minded nationalism" and "nationalistic distortions."

As for "Stalinism," Pravda said, "we know of no such doctrine." It praised Stalin as an "eminent Marxist" whose "services to the revolutionary movement are common knowledge." However, it conceded he had committed "serious errors," both theoretical and practical. It said the Soviet party would continue to fight vigorously against "the harmful consequences of the cult of Stalin's personality."

The newspaper acknowledged that the Soviet Union had made serious blunders in the past in its relations with other Communist countries, but hastened to add it had condemned those errors itself and was correcting them. It cited recent agreements with Poland and Romania as evidence of the "new look" in relations between Communist parties and countries.

WHEAT TURNS HIGHER ON CHICAGO BOARD

Soybeans in Cent Range, Most Grains Only Fractional.

CHICAGO, Dec. 24 (AP)—Most grains firmed in a trade which started out very slow but picked up a little speed later on the Board of Trade today. Volume still was well under that of a normal day.

New crop wheat, corn and soybeans added fractions to around a cent. A good demand for cash grain helped corn. Soybeans were up with soybean oil, in which there appeared to be buying by export houses.

Demand for new crop wheat was stirred up by the possibility that, because of reduced supplies, the wheat support price for 1957 might be raised from its announced $2.00 level. This support under the flexible system is based upon supplies.

With little action expected in the short pre-holiday market, brokerage houses turned their attention to possible grain price movements in the coming year.

Harris, Upham & Co. said, "We may expect a two-way market in wheat from this time forward as speculative interest will center largely in the new crop deliveries which will be influenced chiefly by weather conditions."

Most houses were not optimistic about corn. Francis du Pont & Co. summed up most trade opinion "the Government selling policy appears to be discouraging and influencing liquidation, and undoubtedly prices will work lower"

Opinion was divided on soybeans. Thompson and McKinnon said "firm selling is disappointingly small considering the fact that prices are at a fair premium over the government support price."

"We would not be surprised to see some further strength develop in soybeans but increases in country selling may develop if prices move up 4 to 5 cents from here."

Cash lard was 14.00 a pound today; loose 12.87½.

LONDON STOCK LIST UP IN BRIEF TRADE

News That Suez Canal Clearing Work May Begin Soon a Factor.

LONDON, Dec. 24 (AP)—Prices in nearly every section moved up today during a brief Christmas Eve trading session of the London Stock Market. News that clearing work may begin soon on the Suez Canal boosted interest.

British government bonds had a good turnover and prices closed up to one-eighth higher. Foreign bonds and rails were neglected. Industrials went ahead. British petroleum and Shell were well represented in sales.

Tea and rubber changed little and interest in gold shares was low. Prices on gold remained firm, however. Copper moved up.

U.S. TREASURY ISSUES STEADY IN QUIET TRADE

NEW YORK, Dec. 24 (AP)—U.S. Government bonds closed steady and quiet today in the over-the-counter market.

Over-the-counter dealers, who handle the bulk of trading in U.S. Treasury obligations, remained open until noon today to accommodate the banks.

All other bond markets, including the big board, were closed on Christmas eve

The 2½s of 1963 closed at 94 bid; the victory 2½s of December, 1972-67, at 88; the 30-year 3¼s at 97 12-32, and the 40-year 3s at 92 8-32 bid. All were unchanged from last Friday's close.

New financing activity will be sparce until the end of the year in the lull between the holidays but investment bankers are keeping a wary eye on the mounting list of new issues slated for marketing in the new year.

Well over a billion dollars of bonds, convertibles and common stock already is on the corporate calendar and more is being added daily. In the municipal field, the 30-day visible supply of new offerings amounted to $217,596,282 compared to $97,709,435 a week ago, according to the daily bond buyer. Because of this hike, dealers see renewed pressure on the market before the end of next month.

TV CAMERAMAN PULLED OFF BUS AS NEGROES RIDE

Tries to Photograph Persons Breaking Segregation Law in Florida.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Dec. 24 (AP)—A white television cameraman was pulled off a bus today as he attempted to make pictures of Negroes seating themselves in unsegregated fashion.

The incident occurred at the main bus stop here as Tallahassee's Negro bus boycott ended.

Manager Charles Carter of the Cities Transit Bus Co., who had said he would not allow pictures on the busses for fear of embarrassing white passengers, took away the photographer's camera, hauled him off the bus and returned the camera to him. No blows were struck.

The cameraman's name was not learned, but Carter said he was a Jacksonville television photographer. Efforts to reach the bus company manager for further information were unsuccessful.

The Rev. J. Metz Rollins, treasurer of the Negro Inter Civic Council, and Dan Speed, a council officer, reported they took seats toward the front of a bus and were asked by the driver to move to the rear.

The Rev. Mr. Rollins said they made no reply but did not comply with the request. The driver made no effort to force them to take other seats.

Council President C. K. Steele, who also rode toward the front of busses, said, "The drivers were very nice and so was the bus company manager."

The end of the bus boycott came when busses were uncrowded and incidents less likely to develop than at almost any other time.

Negroes were under instructions from their leaders to "turn the other cheek" if violence should occur.

Mayor John Humphress called an emergency meeting of the city council to consider the situation. Segregated seating is the law here.

The decision to resume riding the busses, ending a 7-month-old boycott, was taken last night at a meeting of 400 members of the Negro Intercivic Council.

A policy of nonviolence was urged even to the extent of asking Negroes not to defend themselves it attacked.

Montgomery Negroes Set New Integration Goals.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 24 (AP)—Schools and public recreation may be the next goals for Montgomery Negroes now that they have gained integrated busses, a spokesman suggested last night.

Less than 12 hours after an unidentified person loosed a shotgun blast into the front of his home, the Rev. M. L. King Jr., president of the Montgomery Improvement Association, outlined possible new segregation targets.

The Rev. Mr. King said the group which sparked the mass bus boycott still has plenty of work to do.

"Some of our people have apparently fallen in love with protesting," he said. "We've got to stop protesting and go in for reconciliation."

Outlines New Goals.

He outlined these as possible new goals:

"Recreation: We have none, but we must work toward being able to use all facilities with the same determination we worked on with the busses. Separate but equal always winds up with it being separate but far from equal."

"Voting: The more Negroes we can get registered, the stronger we'll be. If a city commissioner or official doesn't please us, we can use our vote in a determining and decisive way."

"Internal areas: We must work within our race to raise economic, health and intellectual standing."

"Education: Here, we are going to lose many of our white friends that helped us during the bus boycott. But still we must have integrated schools as the Supreme Court in 1954 said we can. That is when our race will gain full equality. We cannot rest in Montgomery until every public school is integrated."

'We Must Go Back.'

Urging all Negroes to resume riding the busses, he said "We must go back to the busses in big numbers. Then, perhaps, we might even be able to do something about the fares."

Some Negroes, he said, have complained because the fare has now gone up from 10 to 15 cents since they first began their boycott.

"Let me say, however, I would rather pay $2 to ride an integrated bus than pay one cent to ride a segregated one," he added.

Other than the shotgun blast at the Rev. Mr. King's home yesterday, no violence was reported as City Lines busses went through their third day of integrated service under a federal court order.

Capt. E. P. King sent two police officers to investigate the shooting incident. No one was hurt and little damage was done.

The Rev. Mr. King told his congregation of the shooting and added: "I would like to tell whoever did it that it won't do any good to kill me. There are 50,000 others in our movement seeking equal treatment under the law. They can't solve it this way."

HARBOR PILOT WHO WOUND UP AT SEA FINALLY RETURNS

BELFAST, Me., Dec. 24 (INS)—Ship Capt. George H. Jennings made it home for Christmas from a routine Penobscot Bay piloting assignment that took him to France.

Capt. Jennings, 36 years old, set out Dec. 11 to pilot the French Line's Indo-Chinois out of Searsport and was prevented by rough seas from leaving the vessel after getting it out of the bay.

The rough seas also prevented him from leaving the Indo-Chinois at Nova Scotia, so he wound up in Le Harve, still wearing the hunting jacket and boots he had donned for the piloting assignment.

He still was wearing the jacket and boots when he returned home. He sang the praises of the French line, his hosts for the voyage and his short stay in France, saying: "I must say it couldn't have happened with a better company. They were wonderful. They even sent someone shopping with me so I could buy a few things for the kids and some French perfume for my wife."

GUIDE DOG KILLED BY TRAIN, ROAD TO REPLACE HIM

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24 (AP)—A blind North Carolina girl whose guide dog was killed by a Southern Railway train will get a replacement for him as a gift of the company.

"Merry Christmas—and happier New Year," Southern president Harry A. DeButs wrote the girl, Ellamae Peck of Olivet, N.C., now a student at Western Carolina College at Cullowhee, N.C.

DeButts told Miss Peck today that Southern Railway would underwrite the cost—which the firm said will be about $1250—of obtaining and training a new guide dog.

She had written DeButts seeking assistance in replacing a dog who frisked to his death beneath a Southern train near Olivet early this year.

Southern said Miss Peck will choose her own German shepherd dog and make arrangements for attending a guide school.

NEW GOVERNMENT OF HAITI GETS RECOGNITION FROM U.S.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24 (UP)—The United States today recognized the new government of Haiti, formed earlier this month when former President Paul E. Magloire was ousted from control by a general strike.

The State Department announced that the United States embassy in Haiti's capital, Port au Prince, today informed the Foreign Minister of Haiti that the United States has formally recognized the new government headed by Provisional President Joseph N. Pierre-Louis, chief justice of the Haitian Supreme Court.

The nation's constitution calls for the court to fill the presidency pending new elections. Magloire has gone into exile.

FOUR LITTLE R-A-T-S S-T-A-R IN CHURCH CHRISTMAS PLAY

KUNA, Idaho, Dec. 24 (AP)—Some children, all in their early school years, got out of line while putting on a Christmas pageant in church last week.

Thirteen of them were to walk across the stage, each carrying a letter-bearing placard. All together—if they were in correct order and line—the cards would spell: B-E-T-H-L-E-H-E-M S-T-A-R.

Some of them got turned around and went in backwards, spelling out: B-E-T-H-L-E-H-E-M R-A-T-S.

EPISCOPAL DEAN DENIES IT IS SIN TO SEE 'BABY DOLL'

NEW YORK, Dec. 24 (AP)—A leading Protestant-Episcopal clergyman says, although he does not deem it a "sin" to see the controversial movie, "Baby Doll," he would not recommend it to others.

The Very Rev. Dr. James A. Pike, dean of the Cathedral Church of St. John the Divine, devoted his sermon yesterday to a discussion of the film. Cardinal Francis Spellman has exhorted members of his Roman Catholic New York archdiocese not to see the film "under pain of sin."

Dean Pike, who attended the premiere showing of the picture last week, told 3500 persons: "I don't think that I sinned in seeing it," but added:

"Actually it is not especially important that you see it at all. There are other plays, motion pictures, novels and poems which can serve as well or much better to deepen your understanding of yourself and others."

Dean Pike said he joined with Cardinal Spellman "in his forthright condemnation of the brazen advertising promoting the picture. It is a crude misrepresentation of the author's work and an insult to the public."

"Those who do not want the sexual aspects of life included in the portrayal of a real-life situation had better burn their Bibles as well as abstaining from the movies," he said.

"Baby Doll," written for the screen by Tennessee Williams, deals with a girl-wife who refuses to live as a wife with her husband but encourages another man.

NUTTING CALLS JOINT U.S.-BRITISH POLICY NECESSARY

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 24—Formation of British-American foreign policy on a world-wide basis is "absolutely imperative," Anthony Nutting, former British Minister of State for Foreign Affairs, said yesterday.

Nutting, who resigned his government post and his seat in Parliament last month because of disagreements with the Conservative party policy on Egypt, was interviewed after his arrival from London.

"Both our countries will have to go through a reappraisal—perhaps agonizing," he said.

One of the main problems facing a joint approach to world problems, he said, would be "how to get on terms with nationalism." Nutting thinks that "we can guide the forces of nationalism." One such example is Turkey where, "a great national movement has been harnessed to an international cause in such things as NATO and the Baghdad Pact."

U.S. REPORTER DEFIES BAR, GOES TO COMMUNIST CHINA

HONG KONG, Dec. 24 (AP)—William Worthy, an American newspaperman representing the weekly newspaper Afro-American of Baltimore, crossed the Hong Kong-Red China border today for a one-month visit to the mainland.

Worthy, a Negro, is believed to be the first United States newsman to defy the United States government bar on travel to Red China. He said he had assurances of support in any legal action against him by American authorities on his return. He added he had signed documents waiving all claims against the United States government in the event of personal injury, loss of property or detention in China.

He was handed his Red China visa by Communist guards at the Lowu border bridge. Red China invited several United States journalists to visit the mainland a few months ago but the State Department barred Americans from making the trip.

AUTOIST BEATEN TO DEATH AND ROBBED IN PARKING LOT

YPSILANTI, Mich., Dec. 24 (UP)—A father of four from Port Huron, Mich., who drove to Willow Run airport to pick up relatives for a Christmas reunion was robbed and beaten to death last night in a parking lot across from the terminal.

La Verne W. Wegener, 41 years old, a St. Clair county agricultural agent, said before he died that he was bludgeoned by a pair of "quite young" hoodlums. When he entered the huge parking lot after greeting his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard F. Miller, who flew in from Detroit Lakes, Minn. Wegener's wife, Lois, had stayed with her parents while her husband went for the car.

GIRL FIRE-EATER IN BRITAIN GETS FUEL AS 'VEHICLE'

LONDON, Dec. 24 (AP)—Good news today for the fire-eaters of Britain—their gasoline rationing problems are over.

A test case was posed earlier this month by Priscilla Birt, 18-year-old Londoner who bills herself as the youngest fire-eater in the business. She applied for a few gallons of gasoline to keep her circus act alight. There were severe doubts at the time whether she qualified as a vehicle within the meaning of the rationing regulations.

Word came out today, however, that officials of the Fuel Ministry had classified Miss Birt as ½ horsepower, entitled to 4 gallons of gasoline over the next 4 months.

"I normally use about half a pint per performance," said Miss Birt, "and my ration should be adequate provided I watch my appetite."

Miss Birt said she was asked to write down what make and type of vehicle she is, and she obliged with: "Circus artist (fire-eater), white, female, British."

NIKE B EXPECTED TO BE AVAILABLE IN TWO YEARS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24 (UP)—The Nike B, an atomic-armed anti-aircraft missile capable of knocking out whole fleets of enemy bombers, will take its place in the nation's arsenal in about two years.

The Nike B, or Nike-Hercules, is a more advanced and lethal model of the Nike I missile now guarding 19 principal cities against air attack. It is capable of carrying atomic warheads and has range enough—about 75 miles—to take over the functions of a short-range interceptor plane.

R. Adm. J. S. Sides, deputy to Defense Department missile chief Eger Murphree, said in Chicago Thursday that Nike B "will soon take its place alongside the Nike I missiles in defense of the continental United States."

A Defense Department spokesman was asked how soon "soon" might be in military parlance. After checking with Sides's office, he said "this usually means about two years, more or less."

He said the Nike B is now in "an advance state of testing."

TORNADOES LEVEL BUILDINGS IN ALABAMA AND GEORGIA

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 24 (AP) — Tornadoes struck rural areas of Alabama and Georgia yesterday. Several houses and buildings were flattened, but there were no deaths and only one injury.

Four persons escaped death when a twister cut a 200-foot path through an area 12 miles northeast of West Point, Ga., near the Alabama-Georgia line. Mrs. Joe McLendon was injured.

Damage to property was extensive from tornadoes that struck two communities near Montgomery and two rural settlements about 90 miles southwest of the Alabama capital.

RUSSIAN WALKS 200 MILES, GETS OUT OF HUNGARY

Soldier Crosses Austrian Border in Train —Wanted 'Christmas Eve in Freedom.'

EISENSTADT, Austria, Dec. 24 (UP) — A youthful Russian tank corps soldier walked 200 miles across Hungary and escaped across the Iron Curtain last night "to spend Christmas eve in freedom," Austrian police said today.

Police said Pvt. Nikolai Rocanov, 22 years old, stationed at Miskolc, Hungary, entered Austria last night hidden in a Hungarian freight train.

He asked Austrian officials for political asylum.

He had covered the 200 miles to the Austrian border mostly by walking at night.

At the Hungarian border town of Hegyeshalom, he hid in the freight train which crossed the border a few hours later.

By the Associated Press.

Reports from Vienna said that 751 more Hungarians came across the border last night. Among them were a Budapest physician, his wife and their 11 children.

Austrian officials, private citizens and representatives of charitable organizations in many countries are trying to make the refugee's Christmas pleasant. Christmas dinners and special food will be served to the Hungarians. Toys, clothing and delicacies will go to the children. At every refugee camp and in numerous Roman Catholic churches midnight mass will be celebrated.

Meanwhile, the United States Air Force's airlift of Hungarian refugees to the United States, Operation Safe Haven, had ferried more than half the quota assigned to it. The latest count showed that 4910 of the 9700 refugees who will use the airlift have taken off from the Munich airport in the last 12 days. President Eisenhower has agreed to admit 21,500 Hungarian refugees to the United States.

FOUR KILLED IN ATTEMPTING TO LAND ON DARK AIRFIELD

DEL NORTE, Colo., Dec. 24 (UP)—Two southern Colorado tavern owners and a state liquor inspector and his 10-year-old son were killed last night when their light civilian airplane crashed in an attempted landing on a dark airfield.

The dead were Charles R. Fouquet, 41 years old, a state liquor inspector from Del Norte; his son Richard, 10, and George Gray, 47, and Gus Hoof, 37, both Alamosa (Colo.) tavern owners. Hoof was piloting the plane.

It was believed the four were on a local flight and had returned to the unlighted airfield at dusk. Hoof made one pass at the field, but circled about and came in again. He overshot the runway the second time.

PUSHES DOOR OF BANK OPEN AND FINDS SHE'S ALL ALONE

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Dec. 24 (AP)—When no one answered her shouts, Mrs. Maude Towne decided she must be alone in the bank.

She was, too. It was Saturday—and the bank had supposedly been closed since Friday. She had pushed the door open and entered seeking to cash a check.

She called the police.

They in turn called a bank officer at his home. His explanation: "Somebody forgot to lock the door."

The door was locked—and quickly.

1700 Pilgrims Cross From Israel Into Jordan to Visit Holy Places

Number of Christians Bound for Old City of Jerusalem and Bethlehem Greatly Reduced by Recent Hostilities.

JERUSALEM, Israeli Section, Dec. 24 (AP)—A procession of 1700 Christian Arabs from Israel crossed into Jordan today on a pilgrimmage to Christendom's holy places.

The aftermath of recent Middle East hostilities made this a somber Christmas in the Holy Land.

The crossing began at dawn, and by midmorning hundreds had passed through the Mandelbaum gate into the Jordanian old city of Jerusalem.

Usually 7000 to 10,000 make the pilgrimmage. But there was only a sprinkling of pilgrims from foreign lands. The annual influx of tourists, churchmen, scholars and others was all but halted by the recent warfare.

The pilgrims will return tomorrow evening after visits to Christian shrines in the old city and to Bethlehem, two miles south of Jerusalem in Jordan.

Raid Reported.

Even as Christian pilgrims gathered in Jerusalem, an Israeli army spokesman reported a raid by Jordanian infiltrators. He said a time bomb wrecked a dispensary in a village in northern Israel.

In Jerusalem, Arab legionnaires and Israeli soldiers maintained frontier watch from sandbagged rooftops.

For the first time since the State of Israel was founded eight years ago, Jordanian authorities barred the traditional consular corps procession from Jerusalem to Bethlehem along the route taken by Mary and Joseph. The route was blocked by four rows of stone fence barricades and a row of concrete "dragon's teeth" at the border point on the outskirts of Jerusalem.

Contradictory Signs.

On both sides of the Mandelbaum gate, authorities set up tents to check on permits and packages carried by those making the crossing.

Weatherbeaten "welcome" signs on both Arab and Jewish sides of the gate contradicted other signs reading "Danger. Frontier ahead. Enemy territory."

Jerusalem itself seemed like a dead city. Hotels in both the Jordan and Israeli sectors are nearly empty. They have been especially hard hit by United States State Department restrictions on most travel by Americans to Jordan, Israel and other countries close to the Middle East conflict.

TWO MURDERED CANDIDATES WIN IN AFRICAN VOTE

YAOUNDE, French Cameroons, Dec. 24 (AP)—Voters in the French Cameroons have elected two candidates who had been murdered and two others who are missing. The election was for a 70-seat assembly to draw up a constitution.

In a previous local election about six years ago cannibals ate one candidate in a remote region of the interior.

The new assembly is to set up statutes providing the French trusteeship territory in West Africa with more self-government. Control of foreign, defense and financial affairs will remain in French hands.

Complete results from the voting yesterday are not expected to be known for several days. The murdered candidates included a prominent young African doctor. They, and the missing candidates, made up the Nationalist list in a district south of Yaounde.

The murders and kidnapings were blamed on left-wing extremists who boycotted the elections. The two bodies were found in the brush country near their homes.

The French Carmeroons is a territory of 166,489 square miles, with a population of about 3,000,000, on the gulf of Guinea below the bulge of northwest Africa.

SHEFFIELD, England, Dec. 24 (UP)—The jazz-loving Fourth Earl of Wharncliffe announced his engagement to a 19-year-old stenographer last night at a gay rock 'n roll party in the family mansion.

His 56-year-old mother, Countess Wharncliffe, blessed the match while the band played "See You Later, Alligator."

The Earl, who inherited a 5000-acre estate worth $375,000 on his twenty-first birthday last March, celebrated by playing the drums with the band. His bride-to-be is Aline Bruce, a slim brunette who works in a Sheffield insurance office. The couple started going steady 18 months ago and plan to marry next summer.

TEXAS JAILBREAKERS CAUGHT IN TENNESSEE

'Copters, Boats, Patrol Cars, Roadblocks Used to Round Up Six.

DOVER, Tenn., Dec. 24 (AP)—Highway patrolmen used helicopters, boats, patrol cars and roadblocks yesterday in rounding up six Texas jailbreakers who had robbed a motel and wounded a state trooper here.

The six, who had slugged a jailer in escaping from their cells in Georgetown, Tex., Friday, were accused of this string of offenses:

Locking up the Texas jailer and his wife; looting the jail of cash and firearms; breaking into an apartment to get a woman's auto key and taking her car; robbing a Groesbeck, Tex., couple of cash and their auto; robbing a motel near here at midnight Saturday; taking a Tennessee patrol car, wrecking it and shooting the patrolman who had chased them; stealing and abandoning three other cars.

State Trooper J. W. Bilbrey spotted the speeding car after the motel robbery and caught the men when they got lost on a side street.

They took his cruiser at pistol point and put him in the back seat, split up into the two cars and headed back to the town square.

Bilbrey tried to take a pistol from one of the fugitives. The driver turned and shot him in the hand, losing control of the car which rammed a utility pole in front of the courthouse.

The six then fled in the Texas car. Bilbrey alerted the state highway patrol, which ordered 75 troopers into the manhunt. They set up roadblocks around the area, launched patrol boats on the Cumberland river, and borrowed three radio-equipped Army helicopters from Fort Campbell, Ky.

By 4 a.m. Kenneth Ward, 19 years old, Marked Tree, Ark., and Fred Conklin, 17, Los Angeles, were picked up trying to hitchhike.

About 10 a.m., James Long, 20, Bedford, O., and Robert Riviera, 24, Temple, Tex., were caught while trying to build a raft to cross the Cumberland river.

An hour later a helicopter and patrol cars working together trapped the last two at a roadblock in the last of the stolen cars. They were Bobby Dean Moore, 22, Austin, Tex., and Karl Lautenschlager, 20, Kansas City, Mo.

Escapees Hold Reporter and Family Hostage in Home.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Dec. 24 (UP)—Two escaped county jail prisoners held a newspaper reporter and his family hostage in the reporter's home for two and one-half hours yesterday, but left without harming them.

The sheriff's office said the two prisoners, Robert B. Kennedy, and Floyd L. Stokes escaped along with Paul Reid of Laguna, N. M., and Wesley H. Luke of Gallup, by sawing their way through a cell skylight with a kitchen bread knife.

Jack Gill, who has covered city hall for the Albuquerque Journal for the last five years, said that Kennedy and Stokes, whom he interviewed at Stokes' request last October, came to his home about 4:30 p.m. and stayed until about 7 p.m., then left in his automobile.

"They said they would 'hole up' here a day or so until the roadblocks were gone," Gill said. "But we talked them out of that. Then, they decided they had better make a run for it for the state line, and so they took our car and left."

Gill's wife, Linda, and their two children were all home at the time. Gill said, "They didn't harm us. As a matter of fact, they were quite polite."

ALLEGAN, Mich., Dec. 24 (UP)—"Santa Claus" robbed a service station proprietor of $270 early today without so much as wishing his victim a Merry Christmas.

A man dressed in a complete Santa Claus costume, including the high boots, robbed John May at 3:20 a.m. at his station.

May said "Santa Claus" spoke in a southern accent. After the robbery the man fled to a mud-spattered automobile where a woman waited for him.

"He didn't even wish May a Merry Christmas," a state trooper said.

GASOLINE IGNITES WHEN AUTO UPSETS, TWO BURN TO DEATH

GENERAL 13A

Emily Post

SAYS:

Upon the death of a friend you should go at once to the house, write "With sympathy" on your card and leave it at the door. Or, you write a letter to the family. In either case you send flowers, addressed to the funeral of (name of the deceased) or to the nearest relative. The latter method is preferable, if the relative is a friend. But the former method is followed if the deceased alone was known to you.

At the end of one long year.
Sadly missed by WIFE, DAUGHTER, SON, and who loved him.

PLATT, DAVID WM., in loving memory of my son, who passed away June 10, 1956.
Your gentle face and patient smile with sadness we recall,
You had a kindly word for each and died beloved by all,
The voice is mute and stilled the heart that loved us well and true
Ah bitter was the trial to part from one so good as you.
You are not forgotten, loved one,
nor will you ever be
As long as life and memory last we will remember thee.
We miss you now, our hearts are sore, as time goes by, we miss you more.
Your loving smile, your gentle face, no one can fill your vacant place.
Sadly missed by MOTHER, STEP-FATHER and FAMILY.

PLATT, DAVID WM., in loving memory of my beloved son, who passed away June 10, 1956.
David, could you have spoken and seen the tears in my eyes
You probably would have reminded me that I once told you only babies cry.
Yes, David, it's like everything I told you which you learned was always true.
To guide your steps to manhood
so we could all be proud of you.
Our eyes will dry as time goes on,
but our hearts will always be sad,
In memory of your youth and goodness and the many, many loyal friends you had.
MR. J. H. TAYLOR.

SCHULTZ, FRED, our dear granddad, May 10, 1956.
So dear to our hearts
Are the memories of you,
To treasure forever
Our whole life through.
Sadly missed by Mr. and Mrs. Norman H. Cramer and family.

Chances Unlikely for White Christmas

—Associated Press Wirephoto

Low temperatures and areas of precipitation expected tonight.

Generally cloudy weather tonight and tomorrow with continued cloudy weather for Wednesday was predicted for the holidays by Assistant Meteorologist Arthur A. Rausch. But the cloudiness does not mean snow. "We won't be having a white Christmas," he said. High temperatures tomorrow and Wednesday will be in the middle 40s.

Although the total precipitation for this month stands at 3.97 inches compared with a normal of 1.89, Rausch said that the St. Louis area has had several Decembers wetter than this, with the record standing at 10.90 in 1846. There was only a trace of precipitation in the area last night, and over the state the greatest fall was .09 inches at Kansas City and Farmington.

Maximum temperatures over the nation ranged from 84 at Jacksonville, Fla., to 10 at Devil's Lake, N. D., while minimum temperatures varied from 15 below zero at Eagle, Colo., to 74 at Key West. Over the state, maximum temperatures were from 59 at Malden to 36 at St. Joseph, and minimums ranged from 23 at Kansas City, St. Joseph and West Plains to 33 at Malden.

Yesterday's high in St. Louis was 46, with a low of 32. Record temperatures for the date are a high of 73 set in 1889, and a low of 14 below zero recorded in 1872.

Hocking the Auto

The French Reaction To Gasoline Rationing

By Art Buchwald

PARIS.

A FRIEND of ours drove her car into a French garage the other day and, in the course of getting a few liters of gasoline, asked the garage attendant how long the crisis would last.

ART BUCHWALD

"Only about two weeks," the attendant replied.

"Two weeks?" my friend said, surprised at the optimism.

"Yes. It will take about two weeks to get the black market operating again."

In the meantime, 4,000,000 Frenchmen are faced with the problem of what to do with their automobiles, since it's obvious they can't drive them very far on the rations available.

A French friend of ours decided that, rather than pay storage in a garage, he would hock his car at the Credit Municipal, the city pawn broker. All the hockshops in Paris are run by the city and specialize in different things. The one that gives loans on vehicles is located between the Pere-Lachaise, the famous Paris cemetery, and La Roquette, the French women's prison.

It is a hangar-type building filled with bicycles, automobiles and even busses. When we drove up in our friend's battered Plymouth, one of the attendants came out and gave the car an appraising look before speaking to us.

WE TOLD HIM we wanted to hock it, and he said: "You've come to the right place. Do you have the receipt of your electricity bill?"

"Why do we need a receipt for an electricity bill if we're going to hock a car?"

"How do we know your credit is good? If you don't have an electricity bill, we will accept your gas bill, and if you don't have that, we will take a tax receipt."

We drove out again to find a paid electricity bill. Unfortunately, the gas gauge of the Plymouth was hovering around zero and there was some question whether we'd make it back. The electricity company was very reluctant to give us a document. They said they would send it to us at the end of the month. Our friend said he needed it right away, but it was explained the record of payments was in archives along with those of 3,000,000 other people. The gas company also turned us down and we finally had to go to the tax office, where a receipt was produced.

THE GAS GAUGE now rested on absolute zero. Somehow, the Plymouth made it within a few blocks of the pawnshop and we pushed it the rest of the way. It is hard to create a favorable impression, when you're trying to borrow money on a car, if you push it into a garage.

"What we should have done," our friend whispered, "was push it most of the way and then drive it in."

But there was no use crying over spilled gasoline. The attendant came out again, checked the tax receipt and, when he was satisfied, started inspecting the car.

"Push it behind the grille," he said.

Then he asked for the insurance policy. We didn't have one.

"Can't take a car without an insurance policy," he said.

There was a big sign over the garage saying "NO TIPPING."

It apparently meant no tipping the cars over, because the insurance policy was waived.

AFTER MUCH DISCUSSION the price of 70,000 francs ($200) was mentioned. "If you had driven it in instead of pushing it," the man said, "we could have given you 80,000 francs."

There was a charge of 1500 francs for the garage and 800 francs upkeep on the loan.

The man told us people were hocking their cars by the hundreds.

"To rent a garage," he said, "costs between 7000 and 10,000 francs a month. Here a person can leave his car in good hands and invest the money we give him in something else.

"You can come to visit your car any time you want to," he assured us.

As we left we saw a man and a woman pushing a blue Mercury toward the hangar. We tried to warn them, but it was too late. The attendant had seen them and had already written off 10,000 francs.

Lack of Sleep

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D.

IS there a parent anywhere who has never been concerned about the lack of sleep in his youngsters? A woman writes to ask about the effect of too little sleep on college boys and girls.

DR. PETER STEINCROHN

"Many I know are getting along too frequently, it seems to me, on four to six hours a night with possibly a short daytime nap now and then," she says. "How long can they keep this up without eventual bad effect on their health? And if there are any deleterious effects, what might they be?"

ANSWER: The trials and tribulations that we parents go through! Are our children keeping proper company? Is rock-and-roll music and the responsive gyrations of our youngsters sure evidence that the present generation is headed for perdition? Will late hours and lack of sleep transform these healthy young bodies into prematurely wasted physical specimens?

Such are but a few of the problems that throw us oldsters into questioning and despair. We want so much to do what is right for our children without interfering with their lives.

Unfortunately and unwittingly, often we walk where we are not wanted. We tell them when to study and how to study. We admonish them about staying up too late and not getting sufficient sleep. We get into the habit of telling them this and telling them that—but asking them little about their likes and dislikes. We forget to treat them as sensible human beings who have a right to their idiosyncrasies and pleasures.

I DO NOT ADVISE a rein too loosely held; but a constant tight rein is even worse, and the question about sleep fits in here. There is no pat formula that will answer it. I recall that when I was in college there was many a week that I "averaged" four or five hours a night. But being one of those unfortunate individuals who "need sleep, the following week found me in bed early enough for my full nine or 10 hours of deep slumber.

College kids are no different in their physical requirements today then they were in your or my day. Occasional periods of sleep deficiency will not harm them. I assure you that after a week or two on the debit side, they will "hit the hay"—and they won't need the help of a sleep capsule, either.

Hollywood's $15,000,000 Gamble

Studio Invested That Much in Anthony Perkins Before Fans Saw Him on Screen

By Sheilah Graham

HOLLYWOOD.

"I'M not a star," said Anthony Perkins, the 24-year-old new hope of Hollywood with pictures valued at $15,000,000 invested in him before the public saw him on the screen. "I thought when I got this many pictures, that I'd feel like a star, but I don't. A star is someone people go to see in a picture which isn't any good. I haven't reached that stage."

Nonetheless, the tall, lanky son of the late stage and screen star, Osgood Perkins, has reached a very high level. He's the talk of the town because of his acting with Gary Cooper and Dorothy McGuire in "Friendly Persuasion." Before that he played opposite Jean Simmons in "The Actress." He stars in three still-to-be-released movies: "The Lonely Man," with Jack Palance; "Fear Strikes Out," the story of the breakdown and recovery of baseball player Jim Piersall; and "The Tin Star," with Henry Fonda. Coming up are "The Matchmaker," with Shirley Booth; "The Sea Wall," with Sylvana Mangano; "Desire Under the Elms," with Sophia Loren and Spencer Tracy; "Joey," which he did first on television; and the Thomas Wolfe saga "Look Homeward Angel," probably with Audrey Hepburn. Still, he doesn't own a tux, lives in one room, and rents a car.

ANTHONY PERKINS HAS TO BE PARAMOUNT'S BIGGEST STAR, BUT TONY FINDS SUCCESS MERELY "GRATIFYING AND A LITTLE SCARY."

"When I first came here, 18 months ago," Tony related, "I moved into one room in a small hotel. I'm not kidding you, but I'm still there. I didn't know how to drive a car when I came here. Now that I can, I rent a new convertible. When I come back from Rome after doing 'The Sea Wall,' I'll buy a car. You know I haven't had a minute to myself in two and a half years except for a week in the hospital. My doctor sent me to the hospital because I had a high fever and they made me sleep. This 'Tin Star' picture isn't too hard on me. The horse does the work and I'll send the horse to the hospital."

Tony's seat on a horse is better now but, at the movie's beginning, "The wrangler shouted to me, 'Sit down, you're giving the horse a headache!' "

In "Friendly Persuasion" Tony plays the son of a Quaker who does not believe in bearing arms or fighting back. "Do you believe in passive action when attacked?" I asked the young actor. His brown eyes looked skeptical. "D'ye mean by the critics?" he replied. "One said I should dress more neatly. Should I? Because I don't own a tux, Paramount has one they lease out to me. It didn't fit at first, now it's getting to know me."

THERE are two girls in Tony's date book: Elaine Aiken—she was his girl in "The Lonely Man"—and Norma Moore, ditto in "Fear Strikes Out." But there's no marriage on the horizon. I haven't got the courage. I've worked so hard for so long, I think it would be irresponsible of me to marry." I asked if he would ever buy a home. "No, I never will until I marry. And when I marry I'll keep my wife in New York. Hollywood is a bad place for marriage—it's hard enough for single people. The moment the wheels of the plane hit Los Angeles something happens, I can't figure it out—a sort of lethargy, let's call it the climate. No, I haven't been to Palm Springs—that'll be the end. Palm Springs is my idea of old Pompeii."

His mother lives in New York, which Tony still calls home.

"My mother pretends she is not delighted by all this," he laughed, "but I know she is. She's seen 'Friendly Persuasion' several times. You know, if I worked every day except Saturday and Sunday, I will have made five more pictures by this time next year. And every picture is all set, written and cast. This has never happened to any actor before, they tell me. It's gratifying and a little scary. And I think it's pretty provocative to see my face on a magazine cover captioned, 'Anthony Perkins — Hollywood's $15,000,000 Gamble.' Life is wonderful; I'm doing what I want, and it's fun too."

Says Paramount executive Don Hartman who is gambling with most of the $15,000,000, "Tony is either the biggest motion picture star in America—or I'm ruined!"

Contract Bridge

By Sam Fry Jr.

On Saturday's quiz the bidding went like this.

North	East	South	West
1♦	Pass	1♥	Pass
1N.T.	Pass	?

You were South and were asked your bid on each of the following hands.

1. ♠J43 ♥KQ852 ♦72 ♣1032
Answer: Pass. You have nothing more to say. The incidence of the fifth heart does not justify a second voluntary bid with only six points. And there's no reason to believe that you can do any better in hearts than your partner at no-trump.

2. ♠Q73 ♥AQ54 ♦Q1076 ♣J4
Answer: Two no-trump. You're too good to just bid two diamonds and neither good enough nor have the right type hand to bid three diamonds. No harm in concealing support in a minor when you have a no-trump type hand.

3. ♠64 ♥AQ53 ♦Q976 ♣1053
Answer: Two diamonds. Here, with a weaker hand we make the weaker bid. If partner passes that's fine and if he goes on, of his own will, we can stand it.

4. ♠K93 ♥AQJ5 ♦QJ63 ♣J7
Answer: Three no-trump. We have the values for this jump to game. Three diamonds would be pointless as we don't even want to suggest slam or even an 11-trick game in diamonds.

5. ♠952 ♥J10642 ♦— ♣K9543
Answer: Pass. Keep that five-card club suit in reserve to rescue with if one no-trump gets doubled by West. If we bid two clubs now, even though that bid is not a force, partner will never read us for so little strength.

6. ♠K84 ♥KQ10862 ♦Q7 ♣103
Answer: Three hearts. This bid, on this sequence, is 100 per cent forcing with almost all American players (no so, the English). However, we are willing to take a fling at game with our cards. If partner bids three no-trump we'll let him try for nine tricks there; if he bids four hearts we'll give it a go ourselves (speaking of the English).

7. ♠4 ♥AQJ63 ♦108 ♣AJ973
Answer: Three clubs. Two clubs is not a force on this sequence, when the opener has rebid one no-trump. We surely want to play for game somewhere — clubs, hearts or no-trump—and should not risk a pass to two clubs.

8. ♠AQ103 ♥AK7532 ♦93 ♣6
Answer: Three spades. Although the non-jump reverse by responding hand—two spades in this case—cannot be passed, we see nothing to be gained by making this minimum call. We surely want to be at game and slam is a possibility. Let's suggest it right away. The minimum bid of two spades will not ease your future problems and certainly will not suggest your full strength to your partner, to help him to help you.

The Meaning of Christmas

By Fulton J. Sheen

SUPPOSE that on the next Fourth of July everyone began sending to friends postcards on which were engraved images of Chinese temples, Bali dancers, minarets, Italian wine feasts and Hindu holy men; one would suspect that our nation had forgotten the great historical event behind the Fourth of July.

Fulton J. Sheen

In like manner, when at Christmas one sees an exchange of cards on which are burning logs, rabbits, reindeer, dinner scenes, snow scenes and sleighs, one wonders if we are not having the feast without the festival and merriment without a reason for being merry. In such case, we would be like one awakened from a sleep who orders a drink to toast a dream which he cannot remember.

Christmas is an historical event. Its solemnity has been told in the most pregnant words ever written by the pen of man: "The Word became flesh and dwelt amongst us." A word of explanation about this sentence. As I write this column I have a word or a thought in mind—but no one knows what it is until I declare it or write it. When I write the word Mary, who was the Mother of the Babe of Christmas, you can say that the word became ink and dwelt upon the page. Now God has a Thought or a Word. We have many thoughts because our knowledge is so imperfect. God has only one Thought or one Word, which reaches to the abyss of all things that are known or can be known. Go back, pile century on century, aeon on aeon. "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God."

FROM ALL ETERNITY, God the Eternal Thinker had an Eternal Thought or Word. This Thought or Word is distinct from, but not separate from the One who thought it, as our thoughts are distinct, but not separate from our mind.

But this Thought or Word of God has another name. He is also called a Son. But why Son? Go into your own mind for the answer. Where did you get the thought of "relation" or "fortitude" or "hope?" These do not exist as such in the visible experimental world. These thoughts were generated by your mind in the course of time. Now God "generated" a thought or a Word. But that Word was not generated in time, as our thoughts or words. As the reflection in the mirror and the face that looks into it are instantaneous, so are the Thinker and the Word co-eternal. Because eternally generated, God who Thinks is called the Father or the principle of Generation, and the Word, who eternally thought or conceived, is called a Son—the Son of God.

A little boy who had been to Sunday School told his father that he learned that God the Father and Son were equal. The father said: "That is ridiculous. I am your father; you are my son. I existed a long time before you." "No," said the boy, "you did not begin to be a father until I began to be a son."

AT CHRISTMAS, He who was eternally generated by the Father is generated in time, in the womb of a virgin Mary. The Son of God then becomes the Son of Man.

As the word which I speak to you is not different because I give it breath and sound, so neither is the Word of the Son of God changed because He takes on a human nature like ours in all things except sin. "The Word became flesh and dwelt amongst us." Jesus Christ is God in the form of man. The eternal appears in time. The Eternal Word, by whom all things in the world were made, is now rejected by the world He made: "There was no room in the inn." The Bird who built the nest of the universe is hatched therein; He who made His mother, is born of His Mother. All the nations of the earth are made of one blood, and now the Son of God partakes and assumes that blood as the new Head of Humanity. At Bethlehem, heaven and earth meet; God and Man look each other in the face. A Mother for the first time in the universe, as she holds the babe in her arms, now looks "down" to heaven.

Because nothing greater than this will ever happen in the world, the peace of the world is conditioned upon that great act being repeated, in a reduced measure, in each of us.

As God took upon Himself a human nature through the free consent of a woman, so too He asks us, through our free consent, to give Him our nature, as Mary gave Him one. Then Christ begins to rule our mind; then we put on the mind of Christ, the love of Christ, the Spirit of Christ. Not many are willing to do this. "He came unto His own and His own received Him not." That is why there are Christmas cards with sleighs and fat men.

But there will always be some who will see and understand the meaning, and to all who received Him "He gave them the power to become the sons of God." We cannot have the word Christmas without Christ; so neither can we be merry on the inside without Him.

Fix It Yourself

SMOKING FIREPLACES

THERE are a good many smoky fireplaces in this country but actually very few improperly built fireplaces. Most of the smoking is caused by other than improper construction. A prime cause for a smoking fireplace is a soot filled flue. If the flue is coated with heavy soot and dirt the draft won't be enough and the fireplace is going to smoke. Cleaning the chimney usually takes care of this one.

Many fireplaces smoke because the chimney isn't high enough. The chimney should extend at least two feet higher than the highest portion of the roof and there should be no nearby trees or branches to cause downdrafts.

Many fireplaces smoke because the fire is built too far out from the fireplace opening and in other cases they smoke because the wood just won't burn hot enough to sustain a draft. Using a fireplace as an incinerator is a good way to make it smoke up the house.

Another cause of smoking is that there just isn't enough air in the room to produce complete combustion. If you close up a fireplace in a room with all doors and windows closed tight it can't help but smoke. A good solution to this problem and also one that will keep drafts off your back while sitting around the fireplace is to install a register in the floor in front of the fireplace. This will allow cool air from the basement or crawl space to feed the fire and prevent the fireplace drawing the warm air out of the room.

Now and then a fireplace will smoke because the opening is too large. This can usually be fixed by installing a metal hood across the top to reduce the size of the opening somewhat.

Glaze for Hot Bread

Want a really shiny glaze for a hot bread? Then spoon on the confectioners' sugar frosting usually used while the bread is hot.

Butternut Squash

Have you tried butternut squash? It's delicious mashed with butter or margarine, salt and pepper. Serve it with a pretty sprinkling of minced parsley.

FRANK CRITICISM... AMUSING COMMENT

John Crosby's "TV in Review"

IN THE DAILY POST-DISPATCH

Postcard

Bone Pointers

By Stan Delaplane

SYDNEY, Australia.

AS EVERY school moppet knows, Captain Cook wound up with bearnaise sauce on the menu of a Hawaiian dinner.

However, before this happened he got around in a very touristy way. Poking his nose into the Society islands and around Australia. Asking nosy questions and probably making the natives pose for photographs.

STAN DELAPLANE

One day in Australia the captain spotted a kangaroo. The kangaroo gave a couple of hops and pulled a little kangaroo out of its pouch.

"Dig that crazy mule," said the captain, and, turning to a dusky native, he inquired: "What kind of animal is that"

The native then replied: "Kangaroo." Which only meant "Good heavens, what an accent these foreigners have."

This is the way the kangaroo was named, according to the books I have been reading. It is a very unlikely story. But, then, this is an unlikely country.

EVERYBODY WHO COMES to Australia is daffy over the little koala bears.

The koala bears are cuddly and kind of dopey.

Well, in the book I read that koala bears live entirely on eucalyptus leaves. This is a hardy diet. But the little koala bear does not mind. In his stomach he has a built-in still. It changes the leaves to a kind of alcohol.

As near as I can figure it out, the cuddly little koala bear is blind drunk. He does not know he is cuddly.

AUSTRALIA IS the home of about 50,000 natives called Blackfellows, or aborigines.

The aborigines eat witchey grubs, white ants, caterpillars and clay. Kangaroos, wallabies, wombats, dingo dogs, snakes and lizards. It is a pretty exotic menu.

The most interesting thing, I think, is when they get mad at somebody. When an aborigine gets mad, he goes to the local medicine man. The medicine man is not like our medicine men. He does not tap the mad gentleman on the chest. Or advise him to eat more fresh fruit and green vegetables. Nor advise him not to worry so much and to get a hobby.

"You don't like the boss? O.K.," he says, "we will point the bone at him."

He then takes a bone and sings to it. I do not know what he sings, but it is not "Lover, Come Back to Me." It is a mad song.

THE MEDICINE MAN points the bone at the enemy. And the enemy thereupon lies down and dies. It is the neatest way of scragging your friends since in Chicago mobs invented the cement overcoat and a dip in Lake Michigan.

Our white medicine men shoot the native with miracle drugs. They put him in iron lungs and hold story conferences over him. The native pays no attention. He has been boned and he has had it. He dies in spite of everything. And it drives the white medics wild.

I think this is a marvelous idea. There are a lot of people I would point the bone at if I could get the right action going. It would make a very good angle for one of those the butler-did-it whodunits.

Point the bone the other way, Claude. It might go off.

Spirit of Christmas

By Angelo Patri

CHRISTMAS has a special meaning for those who celebrate it, and who doesn't? It has spiritual overtones and these make it an outstanding day in our lives. Without its deeper meaning, it would be just another occasion for commercial exploitation. And that would be altogether too bad.

Christmas means goodwill toward men. As the day draws nearer, its spirit grows brighter. The sight and smell of the Christmas trees, the gaily decked shops, the Santas on the corners, the hurrying and smiling crowds, the expectant children all add to the mounting excitement, fun and joy of Christmas.

THIS SPIRIT of goodwill is what we should try to keep alive in the children. Gifts help. Family gatherings help. But there must be a background of deeper meaning for the day, or its real significance will be lost to youngsters. To accent this, we read the Christmas story in St. Luke. It is a beautiful story that all children enjoy, one they never tire of hearing. Without the story of the Babe laid in a manger, without the story of the Three Wise Men, what would Christmas mean to children—or to their elders?

Santa Claus is fine. There should be magic in Christmas. And read "The Night Before Christmas," too, for there should be poetry and fun in this day, the children's day. The gifts are highly important to them, because they are tokens of affection which can be shown to others as visible proofs of the youngsters importance to their families.

But again, there should be an accent on the deeper meanings of the day. Without the background of the church service, without the carols and the candles and the holly and pine, the celebration would be empty of its true values.

THIS YEAR let us leave nothing out that will make Christmas stand out in the memory of the children as a great joy with overtones of a beauty scarcely to be expressed, yet deeply felt. Retell the old stories, including those of the Christmas times when you were like them, full of excitement of the coming day. Fill in the background of family tradition, of religious implications, of the meanings of Christmas to us all.

Memories of happy days in childhood are what support the difficult hours of age.

Try and Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

ON his beautiful estate near Monte Carlo, Somerset Maugham, author of "Of Human Bondage" and many other best-sellers, is mourning the loss of 252 palm trees killed by the unprecedented cold of the 1955-56 winter.

"The cypresses could be straightened," he told us, "but 200-year-old palm and olive trees are gone forever." There was a man working in the top branches of a tall tree while we watched. Suddenly he leaped several feet from the bough to the roof of the villa. "He gets 400 francs for that job," commented Maugham. "Maybe writers aren't so badly paid, after all."

Maugham added that from here on in he expects to devote himself principally to essays. "First," he said, "an author publishes for the money, of course. Later, if he's lucky, he can afford to do it for the prestige."

A Christmas Parable

A World United by Bethlehem Star

But, Sad to Say, Good Will Among Men Lasts Only Long Enough for Them to Shoot It Down

By Bob Considine

(Copyright, 1956, by International News Service.)

"THEY NEED A SHAKING UP DOWN THERE. GIVE ME PERMISSION TO DUST OFF AND HANG OUT THAT STAR THEY CALLED THE STAR OF BETHLEHEM."

"I'M SORRY about that promise I made in Your holy name," the Angel said to Christ. "I mean that business of 'Peace on earth to men of good will.' From the looks of things, I goofed that night over Bethlehem. But You get the blame, from some people."

They walked to the window of His study and looked down on our panting Earth.

"Look at them down there," the Angel said glumly. "Things all fouled up around Your old home town . . . The Soviets, who don't believe in You, burning Your cross in Hungary and China and killing Your friends The Americans, British and French, who got along so well, now saying horrid things about one another . . . People buying Christmas presents with an eye only on getting something better in return . . . Scotty dogs still outnumbering You on Your birthday cards."

Christ nodded patiently.

"What do you propose?" He asked the Angel.

"Glad You asked that," the Angel said, rubbing his hands with enthusiasm. "They need a shaking up down there, some kind of shock treatment. I think the thing to do would be for You to give me permission to dust off and hang out that star they called the Star of Bethlehem—remember the one that attracted those Three Wise Men?—and if that doesn't bring them to their senses, well, I don't know what will."

All too clearly, Christ saw the outcome of the Angel's plan. But He said, "That's a good idea. Please take care of it for Me."

RADAR screens at Lydda, the big airdrome between Jerusalem and Tel Aviv, picked up the unlighted object at 10:04 p.m., Dec. 23, just 43 seconds before the Angel turned the light on. The Chief of Staff, Israeli forces in the Sinai peninsula, was instantly alerted. The British and French remaining in the Holy Land were notified within seconds. Simultaneously, a crack Russian radar team spotted the object and, alarmed by its configuration and approach from directly overhead, notified the Kremlin.

And so it came to pass that while this message was crackling across the world to Moscow (and was being monitored at Offut Air Force Base, Omaha, Nebr., HQ of the Strategic Air Command) the Angel proudly turned on the star's light switch. And that whole troubled portion of Earth shone like unto day.

The Angel had organized some good voices for the occasion, including a stout tenor named Caruso who had just completed his course in Aramaic, which was the language the Babe of Bethlehem had spoken as a Child. The Angel rapped his baton of stardust, gave the signal, and ever so softly they began to sing the old carols that had dazzled the simple shepherds of 1956 years ago and sent them trooping off to the stable of a crowded inn.

But to the dismay of the Angels and the consternation and confusion of the carolers, their voices were drowned out by gunfire. They were being fired on from both sides below.

Even pygmy tribes in central Africa were launching clouds of poisoned blow-gun darts in the direction of this most menacing object.

WITHIN the hour, emergency conferences were called at the Kremlin and the White House. The former had open lines to its long-range ballistics missile installations on Big Diomede and other Arctic bases. The first decision reached was that New York, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Chicago, Omaha, Denver, Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles should be demolished at once, for the object hovering over the Holy Land was most certainly an American weapon-craft whose commander had descended just long enough to get his bearings before continuing on to bomb Russia.

(Khrushchev vetoed this proposal, just before the button would be touched, by saying, "Let's wait a bit. It can't be American. If it were, they would have bragged about it before this, and our people there would long since have sent us all the blueprints.")

At the White House conference, the consensus within the National Security Council was, as one admiral expressed it, "Obviously, only Russia—with its captured Nazi scientists—could create this . . . this thing. I say hit Russia now with all we've got and thus avoid another Pearl Harbor magnified a million times over."

(The President interrupted and rejected the suggestion by remarking, "It can't be Russian. If it was, they'd have used it on us first.")

It was the Holy Land correspondent of the influential Yorkshire Post who first identified the object as a flying saucer not of earthly manufacture. BBC, which had recorded snatches of the carols, confirmed this estimate. It announced that the saucer's commander apparently had made efforts to communicate by voice with ground installations when he took up his position overhead, but spoke in no language the BBC had ever heard.

By the next day, Christmas eve, the whole world accepted the stunning fact that the Earth was under seige by a power from outer space. Churches filled. The proud begged forgiveness of the meek they had reviled. The Kremlin leaders, saving their souls and sealing their pact with America, emancipated their slaves. Thieves returned money, and good names. The acquisition of money lost its meaning. No one cared what he got for Christmas. He wanted only to give.

A curious repose settled on humanity as covetousness dissolved and doom impended.

But the powers of the world would not take it lying down. They took steps which only a few days before would have been made of the blatherings of a daft idealist. The formal announcement came from United Nations headquarters. It was simple, to the point, and in 38 languages: The nations of the world, bound by new and solemn pact, would stand shoulder to shoulder to repel the invader. All differences of opinion, restrictions, repressions and restraints would be lifted. Earthbound wars, jealousies, barriers between peoples would cease.

Jordan kindly set aside the little known town of Bethlehem, over which the enemy saucer seemed to have been anchored, as a suitable launching site for the attack provided by the newly combined United States-Soviet Union Joint Staffs. The United States contributed the rocket — the super-sized, three-stage missile earmarked for launching the first earth satellite during World Geophysical Year—and the U.S.S.R. gave the 20 megaton lightweight hydrogen warhead.

The hydrogen-pointed rocket worked fine. It scored a direct hit—Dec. 25—on the thing that menaced all humanity, and atomized it. Its light went out like a flashbulb. No debris was recovered.

"CAN You ever forgive me?" the Angel asked, when he could face Him. "How could they do such a thing? Look, they're right back where they were before I turned the light on. The Russians broke all the pacts and made their friends do the same. It's East against West again, and all those wavering peoples in between. Why did You let me go through with it?"

Christ shrugged.

"How can I ever pay for Your broken star?" the miserable Angel wondered aloud.

Christ put His arm around him. "It was a great success," He said gently. "Truly. The adults down there found peace and brotherhood for a few days. And the children knew what it was, all along. One star was little enough to spend. . . ."

Bedroom Furnishings

By Elizabeth Hillyer

THERE are usually two good answers to the question of what's wrong with a bedroom that misses in style. It's furnished with a bedroom set, furniture that came that way, whether or not it fitted the room.

And once the set was bedded down in the bedroom, nothing much happened about the other room elements. Curtains and bedspreads, for instance, were save-money afterthoughts.

Even the nicest furniture doesn't lift a bedroom to style if it crowds it, and it can't save it if curtains are skimpy and bedspreads are nondescripts in highwater lengths.

On the other hand, beautifully made fabric items can make something special of a bedroom when furniture is limited and very simple. And no longer must style-maker curtains and spreads be custom made. Look around the stores now and you'll find ready-made bedroom ensembles which sometimes even boast canopies for four-posters as well as spreads, pillow covers, draperies or curtains and dressing table skirts.

FABRIC FOR A BEDROOM.

Write to Elizabeth Hillyer for her booklet, "What's Wrong With That Room?" and you'll receive just the information you need to spot room faults and correct them. Inclose 15 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope, please with your request and send to Elizabeth Hillyer at the Post-Dispatch.

"ON SECOND THOUGHT, GIVE THEM A LOLLYPOP AFTER YOU TALK TO THEM."

A Triangle Problem for Teen-ager

By Elinor Williams

A BIG cause of problems among girls is—boys . . . especially when two girls like the same boy and one of them believes that "all's fair in love and war." One of the girls writes:

Q.—"Dear Elinor: I am a junior in high school and going steady with a boy who is a senior. All at once one of by best friends who is a freshman likes him, too. She is always sending notes by her friends, saying that he and she are going steady. I asked him about it, and he always has something different to explain. What should I do about this boy? Forget him or remain as I am?"

Answer—If you're "going steady" with this boy, you must have a pretty good idea whether he has time enough left to "go steady" with your friend, too.

If he spends all his available date-time with you, he can't also be "going steady" with her. If this is true, why not just disregard her notes as a trouble-making scheme to separate you and your boy-friend?

But if you're sure he does date her, then that ends your "going steady" arrangement and you're free to date other boys, too . . . and you should do so. It would be silly to tie yourself to a "going steady" deal while the boy has other dates.

Incidentally, a girl who tries to steal your boy-friend is not a "friend" at all. You can find better friends than this trouble-making, date-stealing freshman who apparently thinks she can have your boy-friend and your friendship, too.

Green Peas With Scallions

Ingredients: two bunches scallions (green onions), three tablespoons butter or margarine, one can (one pound and one ounce) very young small green peas, salt, pepper.

Method: Clean and wash onions, leaving on most of green tops. Cut into 1½-inch slantwise lengths. Melt butter in medium-sized saucepan or skillet; cook onions gently in butter for several minutes; they should remain slightly crisp. Drain peas and add. Reheat with salt and pepper to taste. Makes eight servings.

Words, Wit And Wisdom

By William Morris

The War of Words.

THE war still rages between North and South—not the real, shooting war, of course. That ended nearly a century ago. But the controversy over Southern vs. Northern pronunciation rages merrily on, with my mail about equally divided between those who claim that Southerners can't enunciate the letter "I" and valiant defenders of the South who insist that anyone who alleges that "you-all" is ever used to address a single person is nothing better than a danged carpetbagging Yankee.

A few weeks ago a Southern housewife, seeking to bring harmony to the quarrelsome ranks, wrote from North Carolina that she had never heard "fire" pronounced "far" or "briar" pronounced "brar." Indeed, she dismissed such pronunciations as "Little Abner" talk and, in the end, suggested to Northerners "Let's all be friends. You all talk the way you want to and we'll do the same."

Now comes Edwin Erchenbrecher of Fremont, O., to comment: "I'll go right along with her on that sentiment but if she never heard 'fire' called 'far,' either she lives where the northern way of talking is predominant or else she never roamed very far from home.

"My wife," he continues, "came to Ohio some 30 years ago from the Blue Ridge mountain country near Winchester, Va., and if your 'Southern housewife' ever chances to go 'down thataway' she will 'shore' for sure hear herself alone called 'you all.'" And she will not have to go more than one 'whoop and a holler" before she will hear somebody say to an especially fast driver, 'Hey, you all, whar's the far?'

"If she's there in the summertime and goes berry-picking, she will be told to 'watch out for them thar brars' — and it won't be only the old-timers that say it that way, but the young'uns (teen-agers) as well. We have many Southern people up 'hyar,' more coming every year from 'daown thar'—mostly good, fine people. Lord love them. But every blessed one I've talked to fails to articulate the letter 'I' and makes it sound like 'ah.'"

Well, as for me, Ah'm neutral.

In many older homes, the outside walls of closets are not insulated. To prevent heat loss, weatherstrip these closet doors and cover the inside face of the door with a sheet or rigid insulating board.

Two Debutantes Feted At Weekend Parties

By Marilee Chadeayne Martin

APPROXIMATELY 50 members of the debutante set were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Belz at their home, 53 Portland place, yesterday noon for a breakfast in honor of Miss Barbara Persons. Miss Persons is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace R. Persons Jr., 10 Upper Ladue, Ladue, who were also present for the party.

In keeping with the Christmas holiday atmosphere, gaily-wrapped presents under the Christmas tree in the living room were distributed to the guests as they arrived. Seasonal tunes were supplied by a trio of strolling musicians, under the direction of Guy Williams, while an accordionist also added to the festivities. A special feature of the party was a "character analyst" who predicted bright futures for the debutantes.

A green cloth covered the buffet table which was illuminated by tall Christmas candles. Guests sat at many small tables placed throughout the lower floor. In addition to Miss Persons, young women who attended the party were Miss Margery Abbott, Miss Helene Bakewell, Veiled Prophet Queen; Miss Joan Bardenheier, Miss Wanda Lea Bickel, Miss Judith Brownlee, Miss Ann Burford, Miss Ruth Clifford, Miss Denise Coyle, Miss Julie Henson, Miss Melissa Hickey, Miss Julie Hurd, Miss Suzy Niedringhaus, Miss Mimi Norcross and her house guest, Miss Lou Owens; Miss Sarah Jane Scott, Miss Marian Shipley, Miss Carol Smith, Miss Rosalind Tupper, Miss Anne Vogler, Miss Marcella McKenzie, Miss Susan Robinson and Miss Janet Weber.

Miss Persons and Miss McKenzie Share Honors.

MISS PERSONS shared honors with Miss McKenzie at another weekend party, a luncheon at Bellerive Country Club Saturday, at which Mrs. Hord W. Hardin, 6348 Washington boulevard, was hostess. Miss McKenzie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. McKenzie of the Pierre Chouteau apartments, 4440 Lindell boulevard. The girls and their contemporaries were seated together in the main dining room. Decorating the large table were five-branch candelabra with red and white carnations clustered at their bases while more of the flowers formed a centerpiece. Corsages marked each guest's place.

The other debutantes who attended included Miss Abbott, Miss Bakewell, Miss Bardenheier, Miss Eugenia Beam, Miss Burford, Miss Dorcas Carr and Miss Laura Lee Burroughs, twins; Miss Brownlee and her house guest, Miss Parmela Pearson of Indianapolis; Miss Clifford, Miss Coyle, Miss Patricia Dickmann, Miss Peggy Flint, Miss Caryl Green, Miss Naomi Hanser, Miss Patricia O'Neill, Miss Patricia Pollnow, Miss Robinson and her house guest, Miss Leslie Van Vlack who returned to her home in River Forest, Ill., yesterday morning; Miss Tupper, Miss Shipley, Miss Scott and Miss Weber.

At a separate table Mrs. Hardin entertained the mothers of the guests of honor and Mr. Persons's mother, Mrs. Wallace R. Persons of Cleveland, who has arrived to spend Christmas with her family.

Parham-Rinck Engagement is Announced.

GUESTS invited to attend a double feature production of, "His Fair Lady" and "Most Happy Fella," references to present Broadway shows of note, Saturday evening at St. Clair Country Club in Belleville celebrated the engagement of Miss Elizabeth Joan Rinck and James Robert Parham. Miss Rinck, who is known by her second name, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Joseph Rinck, 120 Willow Creek road, Belleville; the prospective bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. James E. Parham, 17 Signal Hill boulevard, East St. Louis.

The clever invitations to the party, in the form of play handbills, stated that "R-P Productions, Ltd." was starring the two principals in the double bill. Names of popular songs from both shows, appropos of the engagement, were listed on the program, including "Let a Woman in Your Life" from "My Fair Lady." In the Christmas mail rush, however, some guests had thrown out the invitations thinking they were advertising pieces.

Miss Rinck was graduated from St. Teresa Academy, East St. Louis, and St. Louis University, where she was a member of Kappa Beta Gamma sorority. She is at present a member of the teaching staff of the Belleville school system. She is the sister of Mrs. Earl P. Mueller.

Mr. Parham was graduated from Princeton University, where he was a member of the Princeton Triangle Club and Cloester Inn, and received his law degree from the College of Law, the University of Illinois. He belongs to the Bath and Tennis Club of St. Louis, St. Clair Country Club, and Phi Delta Phi and Order of the Coif, legal fraternities.

The pair plan to be married in the spring and make their home in Belleville.

My Day

A Non-Segregation Step

By Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK.

THROUGHOUT the country our eyes are turned on Montgomery, Ala., as the Supreme Court's order ending segregation on busses goes into effect. The Negroes celebrated this order at mass meetings on Thursday night and they have already gone back to using the busses on a non-segregated basis. Their spiritual leader, the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., cautioned them not to allow any violence.

"This is a time when we must observe calm dignity and wise restraint," he said. "Emotions must not run wild."

ONLY ONE or two minor incidents occurred the first day of non-segregation on busses. The Negroes in Montgomery had been given careful schooling in a non-violent approach to any difficulties that might arise. Special emphasis had been laid on "remaining peaceful even if others strike first."

It is to be hoped that everything will continue to move quietly, for this experiment of non-segregation is already in force in the airlines in the South, and in the North there is no place where one may not sit next to an individual of any nationality or color in public conveyances. Once it is accepted, I am sure it will seem as natural for the people of the South as it does for the people of the North.

PRIME MINISTER NEHRU'S first day in New York was crowded with appointments, every minute of his time being filled. His speech from the rostrum of the U.N. General Assembly, though given to an informal gathering rather than to an official meeting, was a very significant one. The time had come, he declared, when world peace could better be preserved by the force of world opinion than by the force of arms. That is a doctrine, of course, which would naturally receive wide acclaim in the U.N., for that is where they are trying to establish the habit of reasoning together and creating public opinion rather than of resorting to arms and force.

There is no question but what the Prime Minister feels this very deeply. He repeated it in a short evening speech to a group of about 250 leaders of non-governmental organizations gathered in the Carnegie Endowment building under the auspices of the American Association for the U.N., and he said again that this was what we must strive for.

Like all of us, when it comes down to cases and where his own special emotions and feelings are concerned—as they are in Kashmir—he becomes somewhat more heated than when he is talking about problems in general. But he is probably right in his belief that if all troops were removed from Kashmir there would be more chance, even there, of finding an equitable solution to their difficulties.

Martha Carr's OPINION

Dear Martha:

WE are a group of girls working for one of the large organizations in St. Louis. Several months ago a girl from a nearby town came to St. Louis to work in our office. We all think a lot of her and would like to help her as we feel she is a bit confused. Shortly after coming to work here, this girl started dating one of the men in our office. We feel she is more concerned with his position than with his personal character as he is quite a bit older, divorced, has small children and is a member of a different religious faith." Recently, she told us they are planning to be married but the man denies it. We know they argue constantly about their religious differences, which is not a good basis for marriage and we are afraid she will be hurt if she does not quit seeing this man soon. Will you please give us your opinion of this situation as this girl refuses to listen to her family or friends. THE FRIENDS.

Then I'm very much afraid that she won't listen to me either. But I agree that this engagement—if it is that—is on a most precarious footing and from what you say it doesn't appear that the marriage would be at all wise. The fact that one is broadcasting news about a forthcoming wedding while the other denies it certainly doesn't speak well for them. Their constant quarrels, coupled with the age difference, the failure of his first marriage and their religious conflict, would give their marriage little chance of success. However, although it appears certain that she will be hurt, it must be her problem to work out and if she refuses to listen to her friends or heed the storm warnings, she'll have to find out the hard way. There's not much that an outsider can say in a situation like this.

Dear Martha:

WHEN GIVING a bridal shower, is it necessary to invite relatives who live such a distance as to prevent them from coming? Should wedding invitations be sent to the groom's parents and to members of the wedding party? M.C.

I see no reason to invite to a party guests you know cannot attend, even though they are members of the honoree's family. Usually, the groom's parents are asked how many invitations they would like to have to keep as mementoes, and, by the same token, invitations could be sent to members of the wedding party with a note from the bride's mother suggesting they might like to keep them as a special remembrance of the occasion.

Dear Martha:

IN ANSWER to Troubled, whose friends have a boisterous, friendly, demanding little 3-year-old, has it ever occurred to this writer to visit these people after the child has gone to bed? I see no reason why they should shut the child out of the living room or expect her to be "seen and not heard" just because guests arrive. As for her "seeking attention," don't we all in one way or another? When I visit a home with children I expect to play with them and talk to them just as I do with their parents. They, too, are my hosts. CHILD LOVER.

Write today for Martha Carr's free list of baby names which includes several hundred for both boys and girls. Please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

International Designer Pattern

WOMAN of distinction, madame chairman, either of these captions would aptly describe this beautifully tailored dress by Charles Montaigne. The flattering low V of the neckline is filled in with a bias fold of pique, linen or organdy, the weskit-like detail of the lowered bodice is topstitched. In back the bodice dips and has a slight blousiness, the skirt has a pair of pleats for graceful motion.

For this exclusively sized pattern that is cut by hand and perforated so accurately that couture detail is simply handled, choose dress-weight wool, shantung, faille, cotton tweed, linen or pique. From this chart select the one size best for you.

Sizes.	Bust.	Waist.	Hips.	(*).
14	36½	26½	37½	17
16	38	28	39	17¼
18	40	30	41	17½
20	42	32	43	17¾

(*)-Length from nape of neck to waist.

Pattern S-340, size 16, requires 2⅝ yards of 54-inch material for dress and ¾ yard of 36-inch material for contrast.

To order a pattern, state size, inclose $1. Airmail handling requires 25c extra. Address International Designer Patterns, in care of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, P.O. Box 993, G.P.O. Dept. The Dean Speaks Up

A Refugee Family of Long Ago

By Adele Starbird

THE pictures of refugees are with us every day. Babies bundled up against the cold, and smiling, unaware of dangers escaped or of uncertain days ahead; women walking a precarious log to freedom; anxious men shepherding their families through the death zone to a new life.

Dean Starbird

Christmas cards remind us of another refugee family, of Joseph and Mary and the baby Jesus on their long trek down to Egypt to escape the assassin, King Herod. The Bible account doesn't say how many days the journey took, nor how they traveled, but the traditional paintings show a wide expanse of desert, Mary riding on an ass with the Child in her arms, and Joseph walking beside her.

It is in the name of that Child, once a refugee, that the western nations are opening their borders and their homes to Hungarian refugees.

IT WAS in the name of that Child that the great Hungarian, Cardinal Mindszenty, set his will against the red god of the Communists, the red god described by a Hungarian Communist in the following bombastic terms:

"A new god has come to you, my people. He was not born in heaven. The new god is born from earth and blood. Under the thunder of his steps the globe trembles from east to west. This is the red god. The Seine shudders at his impact and tries to break its banks. Westminster trembles before him like Jericho, and across the green ocean his shadow falls on the walls of the White House. Hosanna! New god!"

I quoted that paragraph eight years ago, and added: "The red god and the cardinal are engaged in a cosmic duel, a duel which the cardinal will win, no matter what happens to his body. The fact that he was willing to enter the terrible arena guaranteed at the outset his ultimate triumph."

Now we know that the cardinal has won his due, and it is a matter of rejoicing in all the free world. He opposed the sacrificial red to the murderous red of Stalin, an inflexible willingness to suffer against the violence of brute force, and the grace of the Christ-child against the impersonal monster of Communism. We could hardly be grateful enough to him and his people for their courage. It is a joy this Christmas to express our gratitude through an outpouring of generosity to the Hungarians.

OUR PICTURES of the escape into Egypt always show the Holy Family setting out by night from Bethlehem, or else traveling across the desert; never do they show the arrival in Egypt. However, this week Mrs. Eugene McCarthy, vice president of the international Y.W.C.A., received a Christmas card from an Egyptian woman who is a Christian, and it showed the Holy Family's arrival in Egypt! Probably the Egyptians like to remember that they offered asylum to a humble family from Galilee, just as they had centuries before to its ancestor, Benjamin.

The Egyptian Christmas card is a remainder that we all see things from our own angle, even in matters of geography. There is hardly an event, whether personal or international, which does not take on a different coloration, if viewed from a different vantage point.

Even the color of the skin changes. I have seen Japanese Christmas cards which showed the characters of the Nativity as Japanese people, and in Africa and the Latin-American countries there are black Christs and black Virgins. We ourselves visualize the Holy Family as Italians of the fifteenth century, because of the many Italian paintings of the Madonna.

To try to understand other viewpoints, to be aware of our own distortions, would make for a merrier Christmas. As Gerard Manley Hopkins wrote:

"Now beginning, and alway
Now begin, on Christmas Day."

Cottage Cheese Pancakes

Ingredients: three large eggs, one teaspoon vanilla, ¾ cup sifted flour, one tablespoon sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, one cup water, butter, one pound dry-type cottage cheese, ¼ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, grated rind of one orange.

Method: Beat eggs and vanilla just until yolks and whites are combined. Add flour, one tablespoon sugar and ½ teaspoon salt; beat until combined. Add water; beat until smooth. Melt about ½ teaspoon of butter in an eight-inch skillet; spread butter so there's a film of fat over bottom and sides. Into moderately hot skillet, pour just enough batter to cover bottom; as you pour, lift skillet off heat and swirl to make as thin a pancake as possible. As soon as pancake sets, turn out on board; do not turn pancake in pan. Make rest of pancakes the same way, using about ¼ teaspoon butter for each. Cooled pancakes may be stacked on top of each other, browned side up. Sieve cottage cheese; mix with ¼ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt and grated orange rind. Put a spoonful of the cheese in the center of the browned side of each pancake. Fold two ends over; fold remaining ends over to seal in cheese. Refrigerate until serving time, then fry stuffed pancakes in a small amount of hot butter until browned on both sides; turn carefully. Serve at once with sour cream or jam. Makes 16 pancakes.

Husbands Change

By Ruth Millett

THERE'S no such thing as a "perfect wife" as an ideal that any woman might strive to become.

There's not even any way for a woman to know when she marries a certain man the kind of wife she'll need to be in order to make her husband happy.

RUTH MILLETT

For it takes a long time of living with a man for a woman to even begin to understand him. Even so, he never stays the man she married.

As the man matures and his responsibilities and interests change and broaden he actually becomes a different person with different needs.

That is why we so often hear the phrase, "Keep up with your husband." It doesn't really mean you have to know everything he knows about his work, share each and every one of his interests, or be afraid to let him go anywhere that you can't follow.

It really means that you've got to know him as he is today and again as he is tomorrow instead of thinking of him in terms of what he used to be and what he used to want.

Women who fall behind their husbands do so because they don't really know their husbands. They remember how they used to be and think defiantly, "He used to think such and such was important. What's wrong with him now?"

Nothing is wrong with change. And what does it matter how he used to be and what used to be important to him?

The important question is always, "What is he like now and what does he need from me now?"

It's no trick for a woman to keep up with her husband or to continue to be a good wife to him through the years if she accepts him as he is and quits worrying about what he used to be or what she thought he was like.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

A READER ASKS: "If a bride receives a wedding gift which is a duplicate of one she has already received and there is no indicaiton where the gift was bought, is it proper to telephone the person who sent it and tell her that her gift is a duplicate and ask her if she would mind telling you where it was bought so that you could exchange it for something else? I would very much appreciate your advising me on this matter."

It is not considered discourteous of a bride to exchange duplicate wedding presents when she knows where they were purchased, and no one should feel badly at her doing so. It is a custom that is generally accepted. But the bride should not ask the person who sent the present where it came from.

DEAR MRS. POST: Will you please tell me what is correct in this situation? We have just moved into our new house: Two friends come visiting at the same time. One friend brings a gift, the other does not. Do I open the gift in the presence of the person who brought it or, in order to spare the other's feelings, do I put it aside and open it later? It has always been my understanding that a gift should be opened in the presence of the person who brought it, but I have been told that it would be very embarrassing to the person who did not bring one. Your opinion on this matter will be appreciated.

Answer: You should open the package and thank the giver with appreciative pleasure. This is not belittling to anyone who happens not to have brought a gift.

How to Plan A Successful Teen Party

By Elinor Williams

ARE you a party-girl? You've probably discovered that you can't be a party-goer and enjoy the fun of your friends' parties unless you're a party-giver sometimes, too. One of the first rules of etiquette—good manners—is to entertain those who have entertained you.

It's easier and more successful if you plan your party in advance. If this is your first one, ask a friend to help you organize it and run things, as a sort of assistant-hostess, if you like. Your parents should be there, but not always in the room where the party is held.

GUESTS—Make a guest-list, for it's important to invite people who have invited you to their parties and not leave out good friends. Try to invite boys and girls who know each other . . . the right number for your home and budget.

INVITATIONS — Invite the guests when you see them or by telephone, by note, card or with invitations that you make in the theme of the party . . . winter sports, kids, come-as-you-were, etc. It's a good idea to ask the boys verbally first, then send each guest an invitation with "RSVP" and your telephone number on it. Invite them a week or two in advance.

ENTERTAINMENT — Plan and prepare it ahead with enough variety in games, record-playing and conversation to keep things going. Make dancing the highlight, if possible. When the party lags and boys gather in a group or couples begin to get ideas about necking, begin another game or dance that you have ready in reserve—a lively one! Or serve refreshments.

AS HOSTESS—You greet guests first when they arrive. If they come in couples, speak to the girl first, then the boy. In introductions, always introduce the boy to the girl—"Sue, this is Bob Smith. Bob—Sue Brown." Introduce a group to a girl and a boy to the group. Help shy ones get into the act. Make each guest feel that the red carpet is out for him or her.

Wall Linoleum

Before applying wall linoleum, keep it at room temperature for about 48 hours. This will make it more flexible and easier to handle. Also be sure that the room temperature is 70 degrees or more. When cold linoleum becomes brittle it can be easily cracked.

IN MANY countries, people are excited on the day before Christmas, and their good cheer is likely to last through Christmas Day—perhaps until the opening of the New Year.

Christmas is one of the most important holidays in Christian countries, but about two thirds of the world's people belong to Buddhist, Moslem or other groups outside the Christian faith.

There are 804,000,000 Christians, according to the latest estimate. They live chiefly in Europe, North America, South America and Australia. Three per cent of the people of Asia are Christians and 12 per cent of the people of Africa.

In English-speaking countries, Christmas celebrations are much alike, but most countries in southern Europe and Latin America celebrate Twelfth Night or the eve of the Twelfth Day, to a greater degree than Christmas.

Q. What about northern Europe?

A. Germany, often called "the first home of the Christmas tree," has a hearty celebration of the holiday season, with excitement centering around Christmas Eve and Christmas Day. The same remark may be made about Norway, Sweden, Finland and Denmark.

Special features mark the holiday season in each country I have named. In Denmark, for example, it is an old custom for children in a family to put a sheaf of wheat where birds can find it and eat the grain. Limbs of trees and roofs of houses commonly support the sheaves of wheat.
